DEDICATION

This book is dedicated to my late wife, Jennifer A. Titus. For twelve years she encouraged me to keep going and finish this book. Sadly, she died of breast cancer just before I was ready to send this to the publisher. Few people are as lucky as I have been to have had such a wonderful companion. She was a great mother, wife and friend.

I miss her.

Titus Index 628

Battle of Gettysburg,
July 4, 1863

Thank God we have overtaken the enemy and had a terrible battle, decidedly in our favor. My regiment had a hard fight, but behaved nobly. We captured a strong position, fired over 2,200 rounds, drove the enemy from our front, and received special thanks, from Generals Slocum, Newton, Geary, Shaler, Wheaton and two others, names not remembered. Every officer and man did his duty in the most gallant manner; not one faltered or hesitated for a moment. The only difficulty of the field officers was to keep them from firing so fast, the guns getting so hot that many of them became useless, but were readily supplied from the great number of arms strewn over the field. I think at least one half of the Enfield rifles we took into action were left, and yet, when we mustered and inspected arms and ammunition on the field, every man had a first rate gun, embracing a great variety of manufactures. Each man went in with sixty rounds. I sent to Gen. Shaler for more ammunition; he offered to relieve us with a fresh regiment but the offer was declined. He could not immediately supply the ammunition, and we had recourse to the cartridge boxes of the dead and wounded scattered around us. We had worked our way up to a good and strong position, and to fall back would have cost us many lives, and like good soldiers we took the surest and safest course to stand fire, which proved our safety and success. The rapid and correct firing drove the rebels entirely out of sight and range at least. Five hundred to six hundred muskets were abandoned within twenty yards of our line. We opened fire at 9 a.m. after a two mile march from left to right. At 2 p.m., when all was quiet, we gave up to a fresh regiment to guard the spot, and we fell back and rested until 4 p.m., and then hurried back to the left to take part in a desperate assault there by Longstreet. On this march shot and shell screamed over and fell around us, but we fortunately escaped by taking advantage of the broken ground, but our work was done for the day, as Longstreet and the division he led were annihilated, as several of his officers now prisoners, assured us, that his division was all killed or captured. Please say to my friend C. T. Longstreet, that my promise for his donation of one thousand dollars to give to his namesake two thousand rounds, has been redeemed. I send you the mournful list of casualties, which we deeply deplore, but are truly grateful that we escaped so well-we sincerely mourn with the friends of the fallen brave. Every possible attention will be given to the wounded. In fact, I have been acting as surgeon all day today; many a wounded man has called me Doctor and begged my assistance, and vast numbers of rebels have been dressed and cared for by my officers and men with as hearty a good will as they yesterday fought their enemy. Many thanks they gave us, and are most grateful for the unexpected attention. We fought side by side with our brothers of the 149th, and in fact, Lieutenant Colonel Randal and Captain Doran were both wounded at the moment of recognition, in the midst of the fray. Old Onondaga may well be proud of her soldier sons. I will not attempt to give farther details as the papers will be ahead of me in that. This is written in great haste in the loft of an old barn riddled by shot and shell, the floor covered with wounded, and in the misdt of a heavy rain which always follows a battle.

Col. Silas Titus,
122nd Reg't, N. Y. Vols.

SECTION I

INTRODUCTION & ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

In the 1870's the Reverend Anson Titus Jr., of Weymouth, Massachusetts, began compiling genealogical information on individuals with the TITUS surname. He sent letters and questionnaires across the United States seeking to find the descendants of the first Titus to come to America. In 1881 he published an article in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record called "The Titus Family in America – Three Generations" (Vol. XII, New York, Jan. 1881, No. 1). The article outlined the first three generations of the descendants of Robert Titus, who was born in England in 1600, and immigrated to America in 1635.

For genealogists interested in the TITUS name, Rev. Anson Titus' article is probably one the most referenced sources. It is one of the earliest published documents presenting the history of the first of the TITUS name to immigrate to America.

Over 120 years after Rev. Titus began compiling his work, I was in the early stages of researching my own family history when I stumbled upon a gold mine that gave me the idea for this book.

The Beginning

At the end of 1993 my wife Jennifer and I were living in Foxboro, Massachusetts. I had developed a casual interest in my family history after learning about my great, great, great grandfather, Col. Silas Titus, who commanded the 122nd N.Y. Vol. Regiment during the Civil War. I was very interested in Civil War history, so the discovery that I had an ancestor who was at the battles of Bull Run, Gettysburg and others was very exciting.

One day I received a photocopy of a page from a book with some Titus names on it. The book was titled "Refugees of 1776 from Long Island to Connecticut" by Fredrick Mather. There was a brief genealogical history of Robert Titus and about six generations of his descendants. One of the individuals was possibly the father my ancestor Col. Silas Titus. There was also evidence that some of these individuals served in the Revolutionary War. Now I was really excited! I became obsessed with trying to find out if my Col. Silas Titus was related to this line and possibly a descendant from a Revolutionary War veteran.

At about the same time Jennifer began working on a graduate degree at Boston College. There were many occasions that her studies required spending time at the library on campus. On one of these occasions I accompanied her to the library, probably because we were going somewhere together afterward or I had nothing else to do. While Jen was doing her work, I wandered into the stacks of books on American History. I started pulling down books and checking the index for the name TITUS. The more I looked the more Tituses I found. I started taking stacks of books to the copy machine and making copies of pages that had references to people with the name Titus.

From that point I started gathering and sorting the information. I had no connection to these Tituses, and I didn't know how they all connected to Robert. I hoped that keeping this information would help me piece together my own family history as I traced my line further and further back.

The Gold Mine

As my interest in tracing my roots grew, I decided to join the New England Historic Genealogical Society (NEHGS) in Boston. I was not familiar with the society and wasn't sure if they would have any information that could help me, but I decided to join and explore their library on Newbury Street. I was thrilled to find thousands of genealogy books to explore. I resorted to my original game plan of pulling books down and scanning indexes for any mention of a "Titus". I spent many hours there as Jen was doing her studying. My collection of Titus information grew exponentially given all of the new found sources. Then there was the day I found "The Gold Mine". It was purely by accident. As I casually walked from the main reading room of the NEHGS library into the stacks of books, I noticed about six or seven three-ring binders on a shelf. A sign taped to the shelf below the binders said "Manuscripts". Each binder had a white card on the spine with handwritten notes indicating the alphabetical range of names contained in the binder. For example, one of the binders might have had "Carter – Fisher", indicating the binder started with information about the Carter family and ended with the Fisher family. What caught my eye was the second binder from the end that started with "TITUS". I grabbed it.

Inside the front cover was an outline of the contents of the manuscript collection of Rev. Anson Titus Jr.. The outline indicated that there were three boxes on file at NEHGS that contained all of the original notes, edited manuscripts, letters, charts and questionnaires that Rev. Anson Titus used to write his original article in the 1870's and early 1880's.

I went to the librarian and asked if I could look at the boxes. After a lengthy search, the librarian told me that the boxes were not available. Apparently the contents were being copied onto microfilm and would be unavailable for several months. Somehow I was able to talk the librarian into locating the boxes deep in the bowels of the library where they were being archived. He generously allowed me to review them with the explicit instructions that I leave everything in the exact order that I found it. I went back to the library several times to carefully go through each box, page by page. Most of the documents were hand written letters and questionnaires written by Tituses from across the country in the late nineteenth century.

Before finding the manuscript collection, I was working backwards collecting information on individual Tituses with the hopes of figuring out my ancestral line back to Robert. After I found the manuscript I was able to start from the beginning, from Robert Titus, and piece together the puzzle of his descendants. Not just my direct line, but many lines of his descendants in colonial America. Collecting Titus information and connecting it to the family tree became a hobby for me. It was like putting together a huge puzzle. Within months, I had compiled over 1,000 names connected to Robert Titus and I started to consider putting together a book to expand on Rev. Anson Titus's article published over 100 years ago.

Bill Arthurs

A couple of years into collecting Titus information, I stumbled across Bill Arthurs of Ottawa, Canada. Our meeting on the internet was inevitable. Bill is by far the premier source for information on the descendants of Robert Titus. I decided early to limit my research to the TITUS surname. Bill, on the other hand, has taken on the enormous challenge of collecting information on descendants of Robert Titus with ALL surnames. As a result he has compiled a database of over 100,000 names related to Robert Titus.

Bill has been very generous sharing information with me over the years. His information is cited as a source for many of the individuals in Section II of this book. Many times Bill's information was a confirmation of data I had already found. In other cases, Bill was my only source. A special thank you goes out to Bill Arthurs for his input.

How to Use This Book

I wrote this book with two purposes. First, I wanted to document as many descendants of Robert Titus in one volume to be used as a reference by other people looking for their Titus roots. Second, I decided to include a section on the ancestors of my three daughters so that they along with other close relatives could have a source of information on their family tree.

Section II of this book covers the descendants of Robert Titus. It is in standard register format with an identification number given to each individual that is carried forward to the next generation. Someone doing research for a particular Titus should first start in the TITUS INDEX. Once a name is located in the index it should be located somewhere within Section II where ancestors and/or descendants can be traced.

Section III is a compilation of more lengthy biographies. Many of the individuals in Section II have biographical information in addition to traditional name, dates and places. I found several biographies that were relatively long or particularly interesting, so I decided to highlight them in a separate section.

Section IV is the family tree of my three daughters. This section is specifically for my immediate family members to learn more about their family history.

Section V is a tribute to my late wife, Jennifer (Sierzant) Titus who died of breast cancer just as I was finishing this book.

The TITUS Index provides a list of each individual with the Titus surname in alphabetical order by first name. Since there are multiple individuals with the same first name, I used birth dates in the appendix, when known, to identify specific individuals.

Sources

About four or five years into compiling my Titus database, I began to think seriously about publishing a book. I knew that if I were to publish a book that would be considered to be a decent source of Titus information, I would have to provide the sources from which all of the information was compiled. Unfortunately, the first few years of compiling, I was not thinking about keeping track of all of my sources. In 1996 I started to go through all of the pieces of information that I had collected and had stored in boxes. I went through each piece of paper trying to identify sources for the information in my database. Working on it on and off, it took almost another four years to go through everything. At the same time, I was continuing to collect more and more information.

Ideally I would have liked to list sources for each piece of information such as a birth date, place of death, etc. However, given the scope of this book, if I were to try to go to that level of detail with my sources, it would have taken several more years to complete. I decided it would be easier to make a list of general sources for each individual. In some cases the sources are published books and articles that can be found in libraries. In other cases the sources are letters or emails sent to me by others. Sometimes the information came directly from an internet site. Unfortunately, since I spent four or five years collecting information without being diligent about sources, there are some individuals in this book that have no source listed. The only reason for that is that I was not able to find where I got the information from originally.

Some of the best sources are Titus genealogies already written by others. Below is a list of some published Titus genealogies that were valuable sources for this compilation of Titus data. Most can be found in genealogy libraries.

Disclaimer

This book is a compilation of Titus genealogical information that has been collected over the span of over ten years. A lot of the information was provided by other Titus researchers. I was not able to verify or prove all of the information using official documents such as birth and death records, or marriage records. It is entirely possible that some of the information presented in this text is incorrect. In cases where information was unclear or contradicted other sources, I either excluded it or made a note of the issue.

Acknowledgements

Besides Bill Arthurs, I have corresponded with hundreds of individuals over the years regarding their connection to the Titus line. Many were kind enough to provide me information on their individual Titus information. There are too many to list here, but I have tried to include all of their names as I listed sources under individuals in Section II. Without their help and willingness to share their genealogical information, this book would be much smaller.

I would also like to thank all of the dozens libraries and librarians that gave me access to so much information. Some of the libraries that were most useful include the following:

The Descendants of Robert Titus

1. ROBERT[1] TITUS was born 1600 in England, and died Bef. 1679 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. He married HANAH CARTER June 24, 1624 in England, daughter of ROBERT CARTER and PETRONILLA CURLE. She was born 1604 in England, and died 1679. Robert Titus was born in 1600. He was the first Titus immigrant from England to America and is the progenitor of many of the Tituses in America today. Marriage records of the parish register of Watford, England show a Robert Titus and an Anne Carter who were married on June 24, 1624. Based on the date and similar names it has been assumed by other genealogists that this record refers to Robert Titus and Hannah Carter of St. Katherines who immigrated to America on the Hopewell on April 3, 1635.

Robert Titus is described on the Hopwell's passenger list as being a husbandman (farmer). Robert was 35 years old when he took his family; Hannah age 31, John age 8 and Edmond age 5 and embarked with a minister's certificate from St. Katherine's by the Tower in the city of London. The following is the entry in the passenger list for April 3rd, 1635: " Theis underwritten names are to be transported to New England, imbarqued in ye Hopewell, Mr. WM. BUNDICK, the pties have brought certificates from the Minister and Justices of the Peace, that they are no subsedy men. The have taken the oath of allegeance and supremacie. ROBERT TITUS, husbandman of St. Katherines, 35; Uxor (wife) HANNA TITUS, 31; Jo. Titus, 8; Edmond, 5.

The family arrived in Boston a few weeks after leaving London and Robert was granted some land in the present town of Brookline, Massachusetts. They lived in Brookline for two or three years and then moved to the town of Weymouth. Robert's land in Weymouth is described in the town records and is printed on page 274 of The History of Weymouth: "Six acres in the plaine 3 of them first giuen to George Allin 3 to Arthure Warren bounded on the East with a highwaie on the west and north with high waies on the south with the land of John Ozborne ffower acres on the other side first giuen to James Ludden the greate swampe being on the west and south of it One acre of ffresh marsh at his dore beinge at the north end of the greate swampe."

Robert and his family belonged to the Church of Weymouth where Rev. Samuel Newman was pastor from 1639 to 1643. In 1643 Rev. Newman and most of his parishioners, including the Titus family, moved out of Weymouth and settled to the southwest and ultimately founded Rehoboth, Massachusetts. In 1643 Rehoboth was a large territory west of Plymouth and was comprised of what is at present Rehoboth, Seekonk, Attleborough, North Attleborough, Massachusetts as well as East Providence, Pawtucket and Cumberland, Rhode Island. The actual town green and church were located in what is now Rumford, Rhode Island just west of the Ten Mile River. The original town green is now a cemetery where the graves of many of the early settlers including Rev. Newman are buried. The eight acres of land that Robert and his family lived on in the 1640's is still undeveloped with the exception of a few residential homes.

The first recorded meeting of the original planters of Rehoboth took place in Weymouth on Oct. 24, 1643. At that meeting it was determined that 65 lots were to be divided between the inhabitants. Each planter had until April 20th of the following year to fence their lot or they would forfeit their land and be forced to move out of the settlement. At the same meeting the townsmen were required to provide the value of their estates so that the size of allotments of land would be distributed accordingly. Robert Titus reported his estate as being worth 156 pounds and 10 shillings. His land is described in the Rehoboth Town Records: "Robert Tytus, Imps his home Lot Eight akors at the South East side of the towne. # Eighteen akors in the woodland plaine being the 24th Lott. # on ackors halfe and 12 Rod fresh medow lying in the 40 ackor med. # three ackors three quarters and 25 Rod of Salt Marsh (28. p. 52.)"

It appears that Robert was a fairly important man in earl Rehoboth. In 1645 he was chosen by the town along with three others to inspect the quality of the fences of each lot and to levee fines on those whose fence did not meet town standards. That same year a levy was made on each estate to be paid in butter or wampum and Robert was chosen to be a collector of the revenue. In 1649 and 1650 Robert was chosen to be a Deputy of the Court along with Stephen Paine.

In spite of Robert's activity in the town government, it is clear that he began to have some problems with his fellow townsmen. According to the town records Robert was called into court on June 6, 1654. At that meeting he was told to move his family out of the Plymouth Colony for allowing Abner Ordway and a woman with children, "persons of evil fame" to live in his home. It has been assumed by several genealogists that the reference of persons of evil fame indicates that Abner Ordway and his family may have been Quakers. However, as it was pointed out to me by Mr. Alex Simack of Stelle, Illinois, this is unlikely since the first Quakers in New England didn't arrive until 1656. I believe it was some kind of religious dispute and perhaps, as Mr. Simack suggests, it could have been a witchcraft accusation.

The practice of banishing a family from the colony was known as a "Warning Out Notice" and the actual Warning Out of the Titus family was the first recorded in the Plymouth Colony Record (22. p. 52):

Village green of Rehoboth Plantation founded in 1643.
It is now part of the town of Rumford, Rhode Island

"6 June Robert Titus enformed this Court, that hee, haueing sold his house and land att Rehoboth, and being ere long to remoue out of this goument, and that Mr Browne had layed an attachment vpon some pte of his estate to the vallue of aboue fifty pounds, requiring him to cecure the towne of Rehoboth of Abner Ordway; and vpon hearing and debateing the matter, it did euidently appeer that the said Robert Titus had, contrary to the mind of the towne, receiued into and harbored in his house as inmates Abner Ordway and a woman, psons of euill fame, with children. It is therefore ordered by the Court, that the said Titus, when hee remoueth himselfe and famyly, shall carry the said Abner, and all that appertaineth vnto him, or else giue such cecuritie as Mr Browne shall see meet for the saueing the inhabitants of the towne harmles from any determent that may befall them by Abner Ordway, or any such as belong vnto him; and in the interim of his remoueall to repaire such dammage as any shall sustaine therby."

Robert took his family to Long Island in the summer of 1654 after being forced out of Plymouth Colony. His son Edmond had moved to Long Island four years earlier and later became a Quaker. Robert settled near Oyster Bay in Huntington, Long Island. Robert's oldest son John was a land holder in Rehoboth in 1654 and remained there when his father moved to Long Island. John had several children and is the ancestor of most of the New England Tituses today.

Robert probably died before 1679 when his wife Hannah's will was read. The following is the will of Hannah Titus made at Huntington, L.I. in 1672. The original is on file in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals, in Albany, N.Y.: "May 14th 1672. The last Will and testament of Hanna Titus, being in prefit memory, I bequeth my sowl to God that gave it, and my body to the earth, and for my Estate I depose of it as followeth:- Imprimis I give to my sonn Content my house and all my land; and out of the forsaid house and Lands I give to my sonn Johnn tenn poundes, which my son Content is to pay him. And also I give to my son John my mare, and to my son Edmond I give a horse, and to my son Samuel a browne cow, and a yearlen stear, and I give to my son Samuel's wife my warming pan, and to my son Abialle's wife my smothing yron and to my son Contente's wife my Skimar, and for what remnantes of sarg and cloth I have, my will is, that it be equally divided among all my children, and to my dafter Susana I give my sarg hoode, and for all the rest of my estate within the house and without it, I give to my sun Abiall and Content to be equally divided between them two, and to this my will I set my hand in the presence of Richard Williames... Richard Williames being one of the witnesses to this will have given his oath to the truth of it before me. Jonas Wood this 28 of May '79. 2. JOHN[2] TITUS (ROBERT[1]) was born Dec. 18, 1627 in England, and died April 16, 1689 in Rehoboth, MA. He married (1) RACHEL Bef. 1650. She died Bef. 1659. He married (2) ABIGAIL CARPENTER 1659 in Rehoboth, MA, daughter of WILLIAM CARPENTER. She was born April 09, 1633 in Weymouth, MA, and died March 05, 1709/10 in Rehoboth, MA. From "Titus Family in America" by Rev. Anson Titus: "He was one of the original purchasers of Rehoboth, north Purchase, now Attleboro, and was an active citizen in church and State. He and his son John Jr. were engaged in the King Phillip Indian war (1675), this renowned chieftain residing but a few miles distant..."

From "The Rehoboth Branch of the Carpenters" by Amos B. Carpenter: "... John's first wife Rachel, probably died in 1658, soon after her daughter Hannah was born, as it is evident that a contemplated marriage with Abigail Carpenter was known to her father, William Carpenter, when the body of his wil was written. They were probably married after the will was written but before the addition of the memorandum in which John Titus is called "son". Samuel, the son of John Titus and Abigail Carpenter, was born June 1, 1661, and was no doubt their eldest child..."

3. EDMOND[2] TITUS (ROBERT[1]) was born 1630 in England, and died Feb. 17, 1714/15 in Westbury, New York. He married MARTHA WASHBURNE 1655 in Hempstead, Long Island, NY, daughter of WILLIAM WASHBURNE. She was born Abt. 1637, and died 1727. He left Rehoboth, Plymouth colony when he was about 20 years old. He settled in Hempstead, Long Island where he owned land in 1658. In 1671 he sold his property to Adam Mott and settled on 200 acres north of Heampstead plains.

He came to Nassau Co., NY in 1650 and became prominent in the Quaker movement. As described in the book, Adam and Anne Mott, Their Ancestors and Descendants, "A meeting had been established at Westbury, when the place was still called Plainedge, on the 25d of 3d month, 1671. The meeting was to begin on the 25th of 4th month, and so every fifth First day, and was held at Westbury or 'Plainedge,' at the house of Edmond Titus. Other meetings were held on the intervening First days at other Friends' houses in other neighbourhoods at Jericho, Bethpage, &c. After the coming of Henry Willis in 1677, the meetings were sometimes held at his house instead of the house of Edmond Titus in Westbury. In 1697, the Monthly Meeting revised the rule, and it was directed that 'a meeting shall be held every five weeks, on the First day, to begin at Edmond Titus', the next First day at Jerusalem, the next at Bethpage, next at Jericho, and next at Hempstead. Traveling ministers, when they reached Westbury, usually stopped at the house of Edmond Titus, and after the coming of Henry Willis they sometimes stopped with him." m. Martha (Mary according to Samuel Willis notes) Washburn (also spelled Washbourne), daughter of William and Jane of Hempstead, Nassau Co., NY in 1655 at Westbury. She

b. Dec. 18, 1637 in Bengeworth, England. d. Feb. 19, 1728 at Westbury. Edmond was left a horse in his mother's will. Settled in Hempstead, Nassau Co., NY by 1658 when he was given 10 acres on a list compiled on Nov. before moving to Westbury, Nassau Co., NY.

From the Samuel Willis Genealogy reprinted in The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, Vo. LXXVII, No. 3, July, 1946: "... My mother's father's name was Edmund Titus who was born in England, as I have understood, about the year 1630; hence, he must have been about six years younger than George Fox. It appears that he left England when a youth and came to New England, as is believed, in company with some of his brothers. He resided at a place or town called Seaconk until he had attained the estate of a young man; he then proceeded to Long Island where he settled first in Hempstead and married my grandmother, Mary Washburn, daughter of William Washburn. After a few years' residence he removed to Westbury and settled on the place where William Titus, his grandson, now lives, 1760. (At the present day, 1858, our friend William Titus and his family reside on the same farm which has ever been occupied by some of the immediate descendants of the original ancestor of all bearing his name.)...

...Edmond and his wife were both convinced of the principal of Friends in the early part of their lives, and lived in a strict and circumspect manner, and were pious examples to their friends and others. Edmund in his latter days was afflicted with loss of sight, which he bore with patience and resignation, having often filled with the spring of Divine Goodness, he would show the effects thereof to those that were present, in his advice and counsel, to live a Godly and sober life, and would often express weighty passages of Scripture, as they occured to his mind, tending to the encouragement of a well governed life and conversation."

In his last sickness his daughter Phebe Field standing by him with other friends, he said, "My life is in Christ Jesus my God," and many other sweet expressions that could not all be taken down, he being very weak. His last words were, 'I have put away all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, I have received with meekness, the engrafted word, that is able to save the soul' and soon after departed this life in a quiet frame of mind, the 7th of 2nd mo. 1715, aged near 85 years. His wife survived him 12 years and 10 days. She was born according to best accounts in the year 1637. She had great skill in surgery, and a particular judgement in the nature of herbs and vegetables, and how to apply them for the good of mankind. She entered into the marriage state young, and lived a married life upwards of 60 years. Some years before her death, she was helpless, and her natural faculties became much impaired, yet she retained a lively sence of Devine Goodness... Some hours before her departure she said my life is hid with Christ in my God, and now added, 'I now feel the spring of Divine Life.' Her last words were, 'My soul is going to rest with God'...

5. ABIEL[2] TITUS (ROBERT[1]) was born March 17, 1639/40 in Weymouth, Massachusetts, and died 1736 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. He was buried in the old cemetery in Huntington Long Island. He married REBECCA SCUDDER 1672 in Huntington, Long Island, NY, daughter of HENRY SCUDDER and CATHERINE ESTE. She was born Abt. 1650. Abiel was the first Titus in my direct line who was born in America. The Weymouth Vital Records Abiel Titus being born in Weymouth, Massachusetts on March 17, 1640. He moved with his family to Huntington, Long Island in 1654. Thompson's History of Long Island describes Abiel along with his brothers Content and Samuel as landowners in Huntington, Long Island in 1666. The following are entries in the Huntington-Babylon Land Deeds, 1663-1797 that describe land owned by Abiel:

"July the first 1668 - It was ordered and Agreed the same Day that Abiall Titus shall have fower acrars off land on the north side off a small pees of land of Richard Watels it not Being found preiadicall to any high way it being in part towards his second devision

In 1683 Abiel was chosen constable of the town as recorded in the Huntington-Babylon Land Deeds, 1663-1797: "At a towne meeting Legally warned ye 2d of April 1683 the day above sd abiell titus was chossen constable..."

The following was found on Page 472 of Benjamin Thompson's The History of Long Island: In 1684 this town choose Thomas Powell and Abial Titus, and Oyster Bay Thomas Townsend, Nathaniel Coles and John Wicks, to ascertain and settle the line between said towns, which was concluded Aug 9, 1684, to mutual satisfaction.

The following information concerning Abiel was found in Rev. Anson Titus'(R.A.T) manuscript collection and is originally from the "Huntington Manuscript": The "Huntington Manuscript" - filed p.28 of Folio I in Register. "The record of the Titus Family in Huntington, L. I. Abiel Titus, the common ancestor - on the tax list for 1675. Son of Robert Titus. He owned the lot where Thomas Rogers now living and also three rights in the old purchase and it is probable he purchased another right and gave one to each of his sons. He had two daughters and four sons.

vi. JONATHAN TITUS, b. Bet. 1686 - 1690.

6. CONTENT[2] TITUS (ROBERT[1]) was born March 28, 1643 in Weymouth, Norfolk Co., Massachusetts, and died Jan. 17, 1729 30 in Newton, New York. He married ELIZABETH MOORE Abt. 1665, daughter of JOHN MOORE and MARGARET HOWELL. She was born Bet. 1630 - 1647 in Newton, New York, and died Bef. July 1711 in Newton, NY. Extracts from The Hopewell Valley Heritage by Mrs. Alice Blackwell Lewis: "... Captain Content TITUS remained at Newtown and became an active and valuable resident. At a town meeting in 1681 he, with three others, were appointed to see that an orderly record was kept of business matters concerning the town.

A curious little paragraph found in an old Newtown record shows that a committee must have been needed to look after things a little. The following was recorded: "Let none marvel at the promiscoos and disorderly setting down of things, or of the names of such as are, or may be aride, or may be borne, or dye, for they ar sett, as they were brot to me, as disorderly as sett downe. If the corts order had been minded respecting this matter, they had been other wise placed then they are.

The faculties of Captain Content were so vigorous at the age of eight years, that he was chosen an elder of the Presbyterian Church. He died Jan. 17, 1730. In the southwest corner of the ancient burial ground at Newtown a rude stone marked his grave for many years. It bore the simple inscription 'CONTENT TITUS.' Later when the church at Newtown, Long Island, celebrated its 250th anniversary in 1902, the remains of three of its former pastors were removed from the old burial place and reinterred in the same yard in what is now known as the Ministers' lot. Included among the graves in the plot is that of Content Titus, whose remains were removed at the same time as those of the pastors."

His will: "In the name of God, Amen. This 24 day of Feb., 1927/28. I Content Titus, of Newtown, in Queens Co., on Nassau Island, being old and crazy, but of sound mind. I leave to my son Robert, all my real estate in Newtown, he paying out the legacies, and allowing grass and hay for 2 cows for Hannah. And all my wearing apparel, and all my tools for building, turning and husbandry. Also 3 horses, 4 cows, and a negro man, Jack. I leave to my sons, Silas, John, and Timothy, 5 shillings each. I leave to my daughter Hannah, the use and whole command of my newest house, during her single state, and then to my son Robert. Also 2 negro girls, and all household furniture, belonging to the Great room, in the new house, and the rest of the movable estate. And she is to have 1/3 of the crop of every sort, and grass and hay for her cows, and if she dies unmarried, then to my daughters, Phebe and Abigail. I leave to my daughters, Phebe and Abigail, each a negro girl and boy and £20, having heretofore dealt out household goods to them. I make my son Robert, and my daughter Hannah, executors. Witnesses, Moore Woodard, Charles Wright, Samuel Pumroy. Proved, Jan. 31, 1729/30."

Hannah Titus resigned as executor, ""being very weak, and indisposed in body, and incapable of going abroad, without great danger to Life." Note: The term ""crazy" at that time meant general debility of body, but not mental alienation. [Abstracts, Vol. 11, p. 155]. Moved with his parents to Oyster Bay, Nassau Co., NY around 1650. Lived at Huntington, Suffolk Co., NY before moving to Newtown, NY in 1672.

He may have married at least one more time, the latest in 1711. He was a Captain in the Indian War (receiving his commission from the Crown on Dec. 30, 1687) and an elder in the Presbyterian Church. Content's wife was left his mother's skimmer in her will. He was the administrator of his mother's estate, granted on Mar. 1, 1680, and he was left her house and land.

All debts to be paid in some convenient time. I leave to my wife Martha my pacing mare, and 2 of my best cows, and two beds and furniture, and all other household goods and things she brought to me, and to be made good as they was when she brought them to me, or to the value if she chooses it. Also the use of my east room and bed room, and my citching above and below, so long as she shall remain my widow. She is also to have firewood and provender for two cows and a horse. And my executors are to allow her so much as is necessary for the family, if she will keep my children, also L5. My executors may sell lands to pay debts, and all the rest of my estate is to be sold after the death of my wife and the proceeds to be divided among my children, Jonathan, Platt, Zebulon, Joseph, John, and Abial Titus, and my grand son, John Titus. I leave to my grand son, Jonas Titus, 6 shillings. To my daughter, Elizabeth Titus, a bed and L10. To my daughter, Mary Hugens, one bed. I make my trusty friends, Abial Titus, Amos Platt, and my wife Martha, executors. Dated April 22, 1754. Witnesses, Isaac Platt, Jonas Williams, Thomas Jarvis. Proved in New York, before John Godby, Esq., thereto delegated and appointed, June 17, 1754. [Abstracts, Vol. 5, Liber 19, pp. 18-19].

The will of Henry Titus states: "I make my wife Rachel and my brother, John Titus, and my brother, John Pugsley, executors." The compiler of the abstracts of wills mentions that "The above is the only will in which no religious sentiment is expressed, and is a most remarkable exception to the general rule."

20. JOHN[3] TITUS (CONTENT[2], ROBERT[1]) was born 1676 in Newtown, Queens Co., NY, and died Feb. 1761 in Hopewell, Mercer Co., NJ. He married REBECCA JOHNSON Abt. 1719. She was born Bet. 1690 - 1698, and died 1762 in Hopewell, Mercer Co., NJ. Moved to Hopewell New Jersey from Newtown, NY before 1717. According to The Hopewell Valley Heritage, "They purchased land along Stony Brook (east of Pennington) adjoining the land of Robert Blackwell, a good friend. The first house was built of logs and plastered with clay. Long ago that disappeared, as a newer and more modern structure was built. The house survived in the Titus family at least seven generations until Elwood Titus, a bachelor, died there in 1931. It is situated east of Honey Brook which flows to Stony Brook at the southwest corner of the property."

From the Titus Trail: "... A list of Hopewell's taxpayers in 1722 shows that John Titus owned 200 acres of land. He, with forty-nine others (from places in Long Island), bought land called 'Ye Thirty Thousand Acres above Ye Falls of the Delaware, Lying, in Ye Twp. of Hopewell, Hunterdon Co., N.J....' They had bought it fair and square, but somehow with surveying and changing hands, the title did not prove valid and he with the rest of the unfortunate land holders, was ejected. However, he liked the place well enough to buy it again.

A memorandum made by Dr. HALE in 'In Memoriam Rev. George HALE, D.D.' was published in 1889: 'John Titus, ruling elder, and Rebecca, his wife, from whom fourteen ruling elders, seven deacons and two ministers of the gospel have descended.' This verified the fact that the TITUSes, were ardent workers in the Presbyterian Church of Pennington.

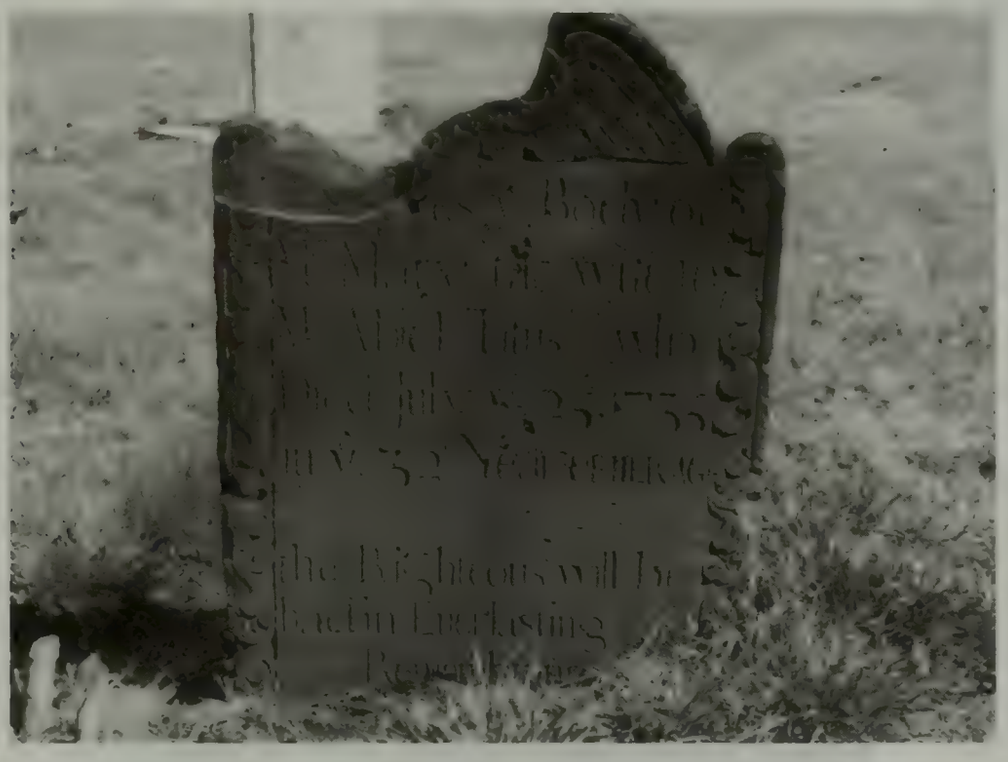
50. ABIEL[4] TITUS (ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born 1709 in Huntington, Long Island, NY, and died May 03, 1759 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. He married (1) MARY SMITH June 05, 1727 in Huntington, Long Island, NY, daughter of SAMUEL SMITH. She was born Abt. 1703, and died July 25, 1735 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. He married (2) ELIZABETH WOOD March 03, 1735/36 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. She was born Abt. 1709, and died Feb. 10, 1750/51 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. He married (3) JOANNA SLATTERLY March 15, 1753 in Huntington, Long Island, NY. He is buried in Old Huntington Cemetery, NY.

Abiel probably lived his whole life in Huntington Long Island. The following is an entry in the Town of Huntington - Earmarks and Stray Sheep 1745 - 1831. I am not sure if it refers to Abiel or Abiel since it is dated 1758, one year before Abiel's death: "one with a Swallow fork ye Near Ear a Nick under it a hapeny under ye off & a Slit ye off - one with a Latch & hapeny under ye Near Ear & a Latch & a hapeny fore Side ye off Ear – one with a Crop ye off Ear a Nick fore Side ye Same & a Latch fore Side ye Near Ear & a hapney under it - one with a Crop ye off Ear & 2 hapneys under ye Near & a hole in ye Near Ear"



The grave of Mary Titus, wife of Abiel Titus at the Old Burial Hill in Huntington, Long Island. The inscription states that she died July 25th, 1735 in the 32nd year of her age.

The following is an abstract of the will of Abiel(4) found in New York Historical Society (1896), Abstracts of Wills, Vol V.; 1754-1760: Page 310.—"Know all men by these presents that I, Abiel Titus, of hunttington, in Suffolk Co., yeoman, this Jan. 3, 1759, being sick. My executors are to be reasonbly paid for their trouble. I leave to my wife Frances one good cow, that she shall choose, and my black horse, 6 sheep, 2 shoats, and all household goods which she brought to me which I now have, and also 40 pounds, And my wife is to have the use of my homestead during the term of 4 years. i leave to my daughters, Ruth Gould and Ann Ketcham, 10 pounds, "and my executors must also pay to them 10 pounds, being for this reason,namely, for goods and clothes which I had in my hands which were given to them by their grand father, Samuel Smith." I leave to my son Silas all my homestead and buildings and 5 pounds. To my son Abiel, 10 pounds. I leave to my youngest daughters, Mary and Phebe Titus, 2 bedsteads, and the rest of household goods not disposed of, and 30 pounds. My wife shall have 6 bushels of wheat, 5 bushels of corn, and 200 pounds of beef and pork. All my wearing apparell I leave to my sons Silas and Benjamin. I make my brother in law, John Bennet, and my good friend, Jerimiah Wood, executors." Dated April 10, 1759. Proved, May 10, 1759. [Abstracts, Vol. 5, pp.310-11]. NOTE: The reference to his wife "Frances" probably refers to the "Ireney" that is described by RAT and EDT. Most likely the name was misread by the person copying the will since the hand writing of this time period is difficult to read.

He was a Lt. in Capt Phillips Company, 1st Regt., Hunterdon Co., NJ Militia. Promoted to Captain. According to "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus": "He was a brave and fearless officer and on one occasion, when surprised by a detachment of British cavalry, who were determined to capture the bold and intrepid soldier, his courage never wavered for a moment, and by resorting to a clever ruse, he not only escaped, but won a bloodless victory and sent them flying in all directions, thinking that he had a whole regiment at his command. The incident happened not far from his residence." The following is a poem about the event written Dec. 9th, 1803 by Mrs. Elizabeth Burroughs Roberts of Romulus, NY:

Those three same Hart's I knew, Daniel, John and Levi too,
But that's not all I wish to tell, I knew the Tituses as well.
Both names were Timothy, father and son, In Jersey State near Harbourtown,
The youngest was a Captain bold, I'll tell it to you as I've been told.
The British lay at Trenton Town, One day the light horse galloped down,
To take a prisoner for their own, Found Titus in the woods alone,
He saw their drift and quick as thought, His courage to his aid he brought.
He called his men with loud hurrahs, And through his arms with wild hurrahs,
So artfully did he deceive, He made these haughty foes believe,
Their only safety was in flight, They wheeled and fled with armor bright,
And hastened back to town so quick, The never knew the Yankee trick."

A considerable emigration of Queens Co., NY Quakers to Westchester Co., NY took place beginning about 1725. Among these were Matthew, Henry and Thomas Franklin, uncles of James Titus' wife who came from Flushing, and Richard Seaman from Hempstead, who was presumably an uncle of James Titus. The settlements made by these migrants were located in what are now known as Rye, Purchase, Harrison and Greenwich. A Meeting House was erected at Purchase, but before many years a large part of the group moved north into Putnam and Dutchess counties. About the time of the American Revolution, two of his brothers and three of his sons were established in Dutchess Co.. He is listed in the DAR Patriot Index as a "Pvt, NY".

115. JONAS[5] TITUS (JOHN[4], JOHN[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born 1751, and died Aug. 04, 1795 in Galway, NY. He married RHODA SAMMIS Dec. 10, 1770, daughter of JOB SAMMIS and ELIZABETH KELLAMS. She was born Feb. 01, 1750/51 in Huntington, LI, NY. Moved to Stillwater, NY. He signed the 1778 Petition to New York Governor George Clinton.(Genweb Archives) Jonas Titus listed on the 1779 Saratoga Tax District (Genweb Archives) Jonas listed on 1789 Stillwater Tax List (History of Saratoga County, New York 974.74 H2sa) 1790 New York Census, Stillwater Town, Albany County (later Saratoga County) (p 50)lists Jones Titus, 1 male over 16, two males under 16 and 3 females. This would indicate that sons Zadock and John were born after 1774 and Jonas born after 1790.

1800 Census lists widow Rhode Titus in Sempornius, Cayuga county. History of William Titus, Including Zadock (History of Cayuga County, New York 974.768 H2s) says that Zadok emigrated to the town of Sempronius, then Onondaga County with his mother and two sisters in the winter of 1795. I think it may have been later as Jonas will was probated Nov 2, 1795. The will mentions 3 sons, John Zadock and Jonas (who was young) and only one daughter Polly. Zadock probably took Rhoda, Polly and Jonas. John also went to Sempronius, possibly at a different time.

Will of Jonas Titus: Jonas Titus of Stillwater in Saratoga County having made his will by which he appointed his wife Rhoda Titus his Executrix there to which said will having been proved and the said Rhoda having taken the usual Oaths letters Testamentary were this second day of Nov. 1795 granted to her which said will with the proof thereof and the letters Testamentary there are in the words following:

He served in the French and Indian War in 1758 (Capt. Benjamin Hinman's Co.) and in 1759 (Capt. Gideon Stoddard's Co.). He served in the Revolution as a private from Woodbury in Capt. S. Hulbert's Co. in 1778. From a letter by Rev. Anson Titus dated May 10, 1909: "Dear Cousin Anna, Did I ever write you that in the recent volume published by Connecticut Historical Society, is full proof that our gr. grand father Joel Titus, served in the Revolutionary War. This proof has somewhere been found. It was in History of Ancient Woodbury Conn. that he was a soldier, but no proof was given. His service was probably short, perhaps on some Ticonderoga alarm. I do not know the date of his death, but he was very aged, and I have understood that he died at the home of a daughter - at Ferrisburg, Vermont. This was the house of Peet Treat Titus, before his settlement at Sandy Creek. There was iron ore in the north part of this town. Have often wished I could visit the place and see if there was any records on the family or any grave stones..."

He married BATHSHEBA FISHER Dec. 02, 1772 in Attleboro, MA. He served in the Revolution as a private in Capt. Nathaniel Carpenter's Co. and Capt. Isaac Burr's Co. which marched on the Alarm of April 19, 1775. He moved to Monomouth, Maine about 1791. From "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus", John Alva Titus, 1987: "William paid a tax in the town of Rehoboth in the years 1775 thru the year of 1783... William was registered for taxes in the 3rd assesors district of Rehoboth, and paid a tax of three shillings and four pence in the year of 1777; In the year of 1778 his personal property was assessed at 18 pounds. In the year 1783 William paid a poll tax of 14 shillings, pers. tax of 5 pence. The above facts prove that William was in Rehoboth until 1784. In the year 1790, William and Samuel, were included in the first census taken in the town of Wales, Maine, a town part of Monmouth. Questions arrive such as were there any children born in that six year period? Where did he live? It is very possible that some of William's children were born in those years, since the records were not that accurate, also the date of Baptism does not reflect the actual birth date..."

"...In the year 1790 William and his family were recorded as living in Wales, Maine; This being the first census taken by Mass. in the district of Maine. About the year 1790 William Titus arrived in Monomouth, Maine, with his wife Bathshba Fisher, and his brother Samuel. William was sgt. in the Revolution his DAR number being 213717. Samuel's grave is in the neck cemetery. He died Aug. 13th 1837. Samuel was a sgt. in the Revolution..."

William had seven children. He built a log cabin on the crest of a field in the town of Monomouth. Later building in E. Monomouth..."

Ezekial Titus and the Nine Partners

A group of young men of Attleborough, Massachusetts, had decided in the winter of 1789 to investigate several areas, intending to purchase farm land. The following spring the group left Attleborough, then splitting into two parties, took two different, routes to meet some days later at a designated place. They traveled the Mohawk Valley, and finding cold weather and snow, they decided to look elsewhere for land. At the outlet of Otsego Lake, now Cooperstown they met a man named Cooper, agent for Henry Drinker the holder of large grants of land in Pennsylvania, who convinced them to go down the Susquehanna River with him to Willingborough, now Great Bend, Pennsylvania, to view lands two travel days to the south.

The party arrived at the settlement of Willingborough several days later in the evening of the sixth day of the week, The next day being the Sabbath, the party started for the Drinker lands on Monday morning, arriving at their destination, the spring and beaver-meadow where the monument to their memory now stands, in the evening of the second day after traveling for several miles up the Salt Lick creek, and then by blaze marks thru the wilderness, the distance traveled being about twenty five miles. Upon their arrival at the spring they built a bark shelter. The trees were leaved out and edible plants were plentiful, in contrast to the conditions they had encountered in the Mohawk area. Someone caught what he thought to be the largest eel he had ever caught, and in the darkness of the late evening and deep virgin forest overhead they skinned and cooked it for their supper, saving the skin to dry for laces, the next morning they took a better look at their eel and discovered that they had caught and eaten a blacksnake. Everyone agreed the meat was sweet and tasty.

The next few days were filled with close examination of the land, and a plan was made to lay out a plot four miles long and one mile wide, the longer boundary lines running from north-east to south-west. This plan was agreed to by Mr. Cooper and the nine members of the party. A agreement finalizing this plan was drawn up, signed and Witnessed on a Hemlock stump, and thus the "Nine Partners Settlement" came into being. The giant trees three and four feet in diameter, and forty feet to the first limb are all gone, but the isolation and the spring and beaver-meadow are still there. Gone, also are the families of the "Nine" whose names are cut on the monument, but the pioneering instinct they showed has certainly been passed on to the number of us that were fortunate to have hat such great ancestors.

The Nine Partners were-- Hosea Tiffany, Moses Thacher, Ezekiel Titus, Josiah Carpenter, Daniel Carpenter, John Carpenter, Samuel Thacher, Robert Follet, Captain Caleb Richardson - Captian Caleb did not share in the first division of the land. The original log cabin of Ezekiel Titus was built on the east side of the road that passed the later site of the Franklin Academy and Soldier's Orphan School, and nearly opposite. This log cabin site is now the site of a nice new house, built and occupied by Neil Rhodes. The marker of the Academy and School is on the opposite side of the road. The frame house that became the Titus home was built at the intersection of the Harford-Kingsley road in 1819 by Ezekiel and Leonard.

171. JOHN[6] TITUS (STEPHEN[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Nov. 11, 1761 in Westbury, Long Island, NY, and died March 31, 1841 in Washington Hollow, NY. He married (1) SARAH THORNE in Dutchess Co., NY. He married (2) SARAH ANN HAIGHT 1787, daughter of NICHOLAS HAIGHT and MARGARET VINCENT. She was born 1766 in Washington, NY. He married (3) ELIZABETH VINCENT July 19, 1806. She was born 1760 in Beekman, Dutchess Co., NY. "... His early home on Long Island had been the possession of his direct Titus ancestors since 1671. When less than three years of age he had lost both parents. As a younger son, he inherited comparatively little from his father's large estate. About 1770 he left Long Island, where he had been cared for by relatives, and went to Dutchess Co., NY apparently with his uncle Richard. It is recorded that in 1790 John, often called 'Squire Titus' and probably shortly after his first marriage, removed to South Dover in Dutchess Co. where he purchased a dwelling later said to be the oldest residence then standing in the county. This property in 1840 came into possession of his son-in-law, Stephen Sweet. He returned to Washington Twp. before 1800, and became a pioneer in the manufacture of woolen fabrics. The establishment of this mill resulted in the establishment of other mills nearby that were operated by sons and grandsons for many years. It was also the fore-runner of the Ohio ranches for the production of superior grades of wool which were established by three of his sons and a nephew before John's death. The selection of the ranch sites appears to have been promoted by John's half-uncle, Elias Hicks, the Preacher, who in his wide travels as a Quaker Missionary, had visited Ohio early in the century and had reported its agricultural and grazing possibilities. At an early date John Titus went to Southern Ohio and near Pomeroy, Meigs Co., purchased 1600 acres of land. In 1832 two of his sons went out to operate the ranch, and two others in 1835, Three of them made permanent settlement in Ohio. This ranch was a companion enterprise to the somewhat smaller one at Bloominburg, about 25 miles west of Circleville, Pickaway Co., Ohio, purchased about 1835 by John's nephew, Obadiah Titus, and operated by his younger brother, Mott Titus; both being used to provide wool for the Dutchess Co. Mill.

The Titus Mills at Rockdale and Manchester on Wappingers Creek, near Poughkeepsie, NY were operated by skilled labor imported from the weaving districts of England and were under the direction of Robert, Richard and Henry Titus, brothers and John's grandsons. The mills prospered during the Civil War and for some twenty years thereafter. Finally, foreign competition caused them to close. Later both were destroyed by fire. The final breakdown at the manufacturing end cannot have been otherwise than to disrupt, or at least seriously affect, the work production on the Ohio ranches. This, no doubt, was a contributory cause for the subsequent dispersal of many of the family personnel to other Mid-West states.

The Compiler (Andrew Provost Jr.) recalls many pleasant days spent in his youth at the homes of the three Titus brothers neat the Manchester and Rockdale mills. At that time their attractive homes, the quaint industrial villages, and the nearby mills, whose water wheels furnished at favorable times the power for carding, spinning and weaving, isolated as it was, from other settlements, formed settings so unusual and unforgettable that the passing of all this cannot be contemplated without deep regret.

If John Titus started in life under severe handicap, he rose above it. That the record of his many descendants in Ohio, and other Mid-West states, can now be presented in such complete form is due to Miss Virginia M. Titus whose recent valuable contribution forms an important part of this new edition (1945) of the family history."

According to "The History of a Nova Scotia Village" by Mary Kate Bull, "Isaac Titus was also a prosperous farmer. As well as a house and farm on Long Island, he owned a new ship". He was compelled to join the American militia against his will, but escaped to join the British. He became a Captain, was wounded and carried to Bedford Jail in Westchester, New York, where he was imprisoned for 12 months and eventually ... he was allowed to leave and joined the other loyalists in New York. He came to Digby, (Digby Co.), N.S. and settled at Trout Cove." A claim for losses he sustained in the U.S. was presented from Annapolis, N.S. in 1784 and another in 1786.

From "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus": "Captain Isaac Titus was born on Long Island, New York, and was living at Bedford, Westchester Co., N.Y. at the outbreak of the Revolution. At Bedford he was a business partner of one Lewis McDonald. He served in the Rebel militia for six weeks in 1776 before the arrival of the British Army at New York and for several times there after. In 1778 he endeavored to join the British but was wounded and taken prisoner by the Americans and confined to jail at Bedford for 12 months and ordered to remove a distance from the British lines. In 1781 he joined the British. He owned sixty acres of land at Bedford on which he built a shop and residence in 1775.

On evacuation of New York by the British on Nov. 25, 1783, he came to Nova Scotia and settled first at Digby removing thence about the year 1786 to Trout Cove, now Centerville, on Digby Neck, 15 miles west of Digby. In 1783 he held a commission of 2nd Lt. in the Digby Militia and rose to the rank of Captain. Six dependents were included in his Digby land grant, one of whome, his dau Sarah, became the wife of Jacob Cornwell, Jr...."

He married SARAH (SALLY) STARR Dec. 15, 1794, daughter of NOAH STARR and SARAH KEELER. She was born Jan. 25, 1774 in Ridgefield, Connecticut, and died Nov. 30, 1814 in Wolcott, Wayne Co., New York. According to the History of the Town of Butler, New York, Stephen Titus and his family were the solitary settlers of the town in 1808. There were no other families living within 10 miles in 1808. From Co. of Cayuga, NY records, letter by Seymour Titus dated March 25, 1815 : "To the Surrogate of the Co. of Cayuga. Sir, I am informed that Platt Titus, administrator of the estate of Stephen Titus deceased, is about to apply for an order to sell part of the real estate whereof said Stephen seized, for payment of the debts and then living infant children of the deceased; to wit infants, I cannot become guardian and I also believe it necessary and advisable to have the south half of the 147 acres and three quarters of land on Lot 100 in the original Twp. of Sterling whereof said Stephen died, seized sold for the Purposed aforesaid."

An excerpt from "1789 History of Wayne County, New York" by Everts, Ensign & Everts, 1877: "Town of Butler. In 1808 there was in the town one road and only one. This was known as the "Old Galen Road". The Galen salt-works was established about 1804 on the west side of Seneca River at the lower end of the "Cayuga Marshes", near the westwardly end of the dyke and recently built bridge leading to Hickory (or Howland's) Island. The company then conducting business had constructed this road from their establishment to Sodus Bay. It passes up northwestwardly to the line of Butler at the present site of the village of South Butler; thence west to the residence of Mr. Wheeler; thence northerly and northwestwardly, keeping on the tops of the hills as far as practicable, via what is known as West Butler, and Stewart's Corners, through to Port Glasgow. This road was intersected at the South Butler corner by the "Musketo Point" road from the east. On this latter road, about three miles east of the corner, there lived one family, and the one and only inhabitants between Wheeler's and Musketo Point, distance of ten miles. This solitary settler was Stephen Titus."

She was born Abt. 1795, and died May 09, 1859. A.K.A. "Billy". Note from Douglas M. Flynn, May 22, 2000: "Billy was a big deal in our area and in the mid 1800's was listed as the largest manufacturer of furnace castings in this area. I have a lot of info on him from land records in Oneida Co. but have not yet organized it for general consumption. Around the turn of the century he purchased a forge through agents of the State from Asa Dick, a Brothertown Indian in a place now called Forge Hollow. In time, he became the proprieter, along with others, of an enterprise known as the Hanover Iron Works. His will is on file in Oneida Co. and he is buried with both wives in the Hanover Cemetery. This cemetery record is available on line through the Oneida Co. Gen Web site."

From his son Hosea's obituary in 1895: "... moved to the town of Marshall from Connecticut in the year 1800, and built up what for those days was a large iron forging and moulding industry. It was from these forges the name of the settlement, Forge Hollow, derived its name. He was the originator of the blast furnace producing all kinds of stoves, plows and smaller iron to order. The relics in existence speak volumes for the character of their work. Subsequently he established the forge in connection with the furnace to supply the wants of the people with wrought iron in various shapes. There are still people alive who remember using crowbars and fine-tempered tools of their make. The works were finally merged into a company known as the Hanover Iron Manufacturing Co., and under his control became an extensive establishment yielding its owners a handsome return. They secured control of the waterways by buying up a large tract of the surrounding lands."

Children of BENJAMIN TITUS and MARY PEASE are:

i. SARAH[8] TITUS, m. DWIGHT NOBLE. From a manuscript written by Grace Titus: "Sarah Titus married Dwight Noble. She had five children: Helen, Susie, George, Agnes, Mattie. When her children were almost grown, Dwight came to Nebraska and settled at Fairfield, Nebraska, taking a claim. Here he started a furniture store. Sarah stayed in Wisconsin to let the children finish school. They were living in Madison and Helen was in the University. She expected to come to him when Mattie, the youngest, finished high school. Agnes came out to him, to keep house, and she began teaching. Helen followed, teaching also, and marrying Paul Fleming a young minister. Latter Mattie came to visit, expecting to return and enter the University for at least a year. This visit was planned hurriedly, and given to Mattie as a graduation present. She liked it so well, that she wanted to stay. Gaining her mother's consent, she also took a school and began teaching. She was just seventeen, and she was Sara's pride and joy. An epidemic of diphtheria broke out and Mattie had its most virulent form. Before her mother could reach her, she passed away. Just before she died, she requested her father to take her on his lap while Agnes cut off her beautiful long dark braids. She wanted these left for mother. Sara had been exceptionally proud of Mattie's hair. Sara Titus was a dear, dear lady. She was very practical and practiced economy to the point of being stingy. She loved to make something out of practically nothing. But by doing this she was able to give all of her children a good education. She was very independent and in her old age at the extreme age of 90 years, she maintained her home and self.

He married ELECTA KNEELAND 1820, daughter of JOHN KNEELAND and POLLY JOHNSON. She was born Aug. 10, 1799 in Chesterfield Twp., New Hampshire, and died Feb. 26, 1869. He was a colonel of a militia regiment in Cheshire Co., NH. He was a selectman in 1836 and 1847. "He was a quiet, methodical man, of few words, carefully considered, apt in illustration, and of great firmness of character, as a teacher he left his impress upon a generation few of whom now remain. From rural homes in those days of large families, from seventy five to a hundred, where now perhaps scarce a tenth of that number is to be found, they gathered for a winter term in school houses far too small for their accommodation, many of them men and women grown and some married, and he taught them in a thorough-going, stern, old-fashioned way, and ruled them as with a rod of iron. Himself self-taught, he was in his locality and his sphere, the famous teacher of his time."

"Being of a studious turn of mind, and fond of mathematical studies, he is said to have applied himself so assiduously to these in his early years as to have seriously over-tasked his brain - a circumstance which caused him to change his course of life. He nevertheless followed school-teaching to a considerable extent, and acquired the reputation of being one of the best teachers of his time. After his marriage he also engaged in farming in Chesterfield, NH."

vii. HERBERT B. TITUS, b. Dec. 11, 1833, Chesterfield Twp., NH; d. 1902, Brattleboro, VT. "Herbert B. was born in the old farmhouse built by his grandfather, and long since demolished. At the age of fourteen he taught his first school of forty scholars, sixteen of whome were older than himself, and with such success that his services were again sought for the same school. Teaching and work upon the farm alternated with study at the academy at West Brattleboro, VT, Chesterfield and Meriden, until 1854, when he entered Yale college where he remained but a single term, the death of a relative who had promised pecuniary assistance, leaving his way not clear at so expensive an institution. He resumed teaching and farming, and in 1859 was appointed Co. commissioner of common schools. In this position he was an earnest worker, and his interesting and practical addresses throughout the Co. showed much force and originality of thought. In April 1861, he was holding a teachers' institute in Keene, when, at the call of President Lincoln for troops, his name was first upon the list for a volunteer company it was proposed to raise under Capt. T. A. Barker, of Westmoreland. This company became Co. A of the 2nd NH Regt., and re-enlisting for three years, he was commissioned its second lieutenant. After the battle of Bull Run, in which his bravery and perfect coolness under fire were conscious, he was promoted to 1st lieutenant and assigned to command of another company..." He was promoted to Colonel Nov. 25, 1862. He attained the rank of brigadier-general. He received a wound at the battle of Antietem where a bullet entered the right shoulder and was disabled for five months. After the war he lived in worked in Virginia and Washington D.C. and later in New York City. He served as a special agent of the United States, in which capacity he traveled extensively in this country, and, to some extent, in Europe. He was also a member of the firm of "Hovey and Titus, Attorneys and Counselors at Law" in Washington D.C. He was also involved with mining and dredging business with headquarters in New York City.

Romance came to her at 18 and from an unexpected source. Her mother's sister was the wife of Jesse Hendrickson of Oyster Bay whose sister Elizabeth had married David Provost of Greenpoint, Kings Co., NY, and was the mother of Andrew Provost, b. Apr. 2, 1834, (7th in the line of descent from David Provost, a Hollander of French ancestry, who came to New Amsterdam in 1624) who, during the 91 years of life alloted to him, was to be a prominent attorney-at-law in Kings and Queens counties, and to hold many important public offices. In 1853, he visited Dutchess Co., NY to place a young brother in the Amenia Academy, and before returning called at "Little Rest" to pay his respects to Judge Obadiah Titus at whose home he found six attractive daughters. Harriet, the third in age, was a fair maid and so attracted the young visitor that they were married June 4, 1856 at "Little Rest". Their early married life was spent at Greenpoint. In 1866, they removed to Whitestone, Queens Co. and remained there until 1884 when they returned to Brooklyn, there to terminate their lives. Harriet died May 30, 1910. Andrew survived until April 26, 1925 and, although surrounded by devoted children, found these fifteen years all to long without his beloved Harriet."

340. MELLE[7] TITUS (SAMUEL JACKSON[6], STEPHEN[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born July 18, 1798 in Dutchess Co., NY. She married NEHIMIAH SWEET.

Child of MELLE TITUS and NEHIMIAH SWEET is:

567. i. FRANCES[8] SWEET, b. July 28, 1837, Poughkeepsie, NY; d. Feb. 08, 1911.

341. MOTT[7] TITUS (SAMUEL JACKSON[6], STEPHEN[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Jan. 12, 1802 in Pleasant Valley, Dutchess Co., NY, and died Jan. 15, 1861. He married MARIA DEAN Dec. 15, 1825. She was born May 24, 1806. He lived at South Dover, Dutchess Co., New York and was appointed Post Master in 1828. In 1837 he moved with his family to Ohio to run the sheep ranch his brother Obadiah purchased near Circleville, Pickaway Co.. The following is from "Titus Family of Long Island and Dutchess Co. New York", Andrew Provst Jr., C.E., Darien CT, 1941: "An episode in the lives of two of the sons of Mott and Maria Dean Titus, Edwin and Joseph, is revealed in letters sent home at the time and still preserved. It seems that following the discovery of gold in California, these young men persuaded "Uncle Obe" (Obadiah Titus of Dutchess Co., NY) to stake them and their cousin, Herman Stone, and so sailed from New York March 6, 1852 with a party of about one thousand adventurers on a ship that had accomadations for only barely half of the party. They arrived at San Juan del Norde (Greytown), Nicaragua, on May 1st, and after a delay of a few days proceded to cross the isthmus partly in open boats and partly by foot, sleeping at night on sand bars of the river, or in the jungle. This journey took a week or more, and by the time the party reached the Pacific Ocean sixty or more of the party had died from sickness or exposure. The residue eventually reached San Francisco and the gold fields, but the Titus brothers and their cousin found no gold in paying quantities. Edwin and Herman Stone soon returned to Ohio, but Joseph remained in California for twenty years of more. When he at last made the return journey he was able to travel in comfort in a railway coach."

342. LEONARD[7] TITUS (JOHN[6], STEPHEN[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born March 24, 1791 in South Dover, Dutchess Co., NY, and died May 14, 1848 in Gallia Co. OH. He married (1) MARY RUTH MCCUMBER. She was born May 17, 1787. He married (2) MARIA V. BECKER, daughter of ABRAHAM BECKER and MARY. She was born June 03, 1805 in Lyme, Jefferson Co., NY, and died April 11, 1897 in Eno, Morgan Twp., Gallia Co., OH. In 1835, when he and his wife Mary were living at Camillus, Onondaga Co., NY, with six children, one less than a year old, the family went to join Leonard's brothers who had established a large sheep ranch near Pomeroy, Meigs Co., Ohio. They may have made the journey in much the same manner as did Leonard's brothers three years earlier, or possibly by Erie Canal to Buffalo and thence overland to their destination. Of his large family, one son and three daughters settled permanently in OH; the others made their homes in adjacent mid-west states. He was a blacksmith and farmer.

Children of RICHARD TITUS and ELIZABETH HAIGHT are:

i. ALFRED[8] TITUS, b. Lagrange, Dutchess Co., NY.

ii. ALONZO TITUS, m. BENIAH BEADLE, Sep. 14, 1854; b. Pleasant Valley, NY.

344. STEPHEN[7] TITUS (JOHN[6], STEPHEN[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born June 20, 1796 in Dutchess Co., NY, and died Sep. 13, 1871 in Rutland, Ohio. He married MARGARHETTA LOIS NYE Dec. 18, 1836 in Middleport, OH, daughter of MELZAR NYE and PHEBE SPRAGUE. She was born Sep. 01, 1815 in Perry Co., OH, and died Oct. 31, 1907 in Rutland Twp., Meigs Co., OH. In 1833 he and his brother Nicholas founded a 1600 acre sheep plantation in Meigs Co., Ohio. He represented Meigs Co. in the legislature in 1840-1841. From an article in The Athens Messenger, Dec. 16th, 1949: "... The Titus home stands on a 1600-acre sheep plantation founded by Stephen Titus in 1833, when he was 37 years old, and his brother, Nicholas. It is a fine home because the Titus families back in Dutchess Co., N.Y. lived in homes of that kind, In fact the Rutland Twp. home was a replica of one occupied by a brother of Stephen Titus at Titusville, N.Y. They were people of wealth, woolen mill operators, and needed more wool that they could get in the East - hence the plantation in the Ohio Country. They were accustomed to good living - hence the magnificence (of pioneer days) of their home near Rutland which is still owned and occupied by members of the Titus family. Stephen Titus married Margaretta Nye, daughter of Melzar Nye, of Leading Creek, when he and his brother came to Ohio to grow wool for the family's eastern mills...

... The brothers came by ox cart over the Alleghenies and floated down the Ohio to Nye's Landing. Nicholas Titus married Mary Nye, sister of the wife of his brother. Probate Judge Earl Titus of Meigs Co. is descended from the Nicholas Titus branch of the family... ... About 400 acres of the original farm have been kept in the Stephen Titus family and are now owned by his grandson, George V. Titus, and his sister, Miss Edith Titus, who live in the old home, and a sister, Mrs. George Lasher, of Rutland... "

From Pioneer History of Meigs Co.: Mrs. Stephen Titus was no ordinary woman. With a perfect physique, fine mental equipment, a thoroughly decided moral attitude for country and God, she was a 'perfect woman, nobly planned'. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church in Rutland for seventy-seven years; also a member of the Pioneer Association of Meigs Co.... ... Her home was with her son, George Titus, in the old homestead. He is quite a prominent farmer; was sheriff of the Co. one or two terms."

346. ELIAS[7] TITUS (JOHN[6], STEPHEN[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born March 03, 1805 in Washington Hollow, Dutchess Co., NY, and died July 08, 1880 in Titusville, Dutchess Co., NY. He married MARY ANETTE HOAG Oct. 24, 1832 in Pine Plains, Dutchess Co., NY, daughter of ROBERT HOAG and PHEBE PUGSLEY. She was born July 03, 1814 in Pine Plains, Dutchess Co., NY, and died Aug. 21, 1868 in Titusville, Dutchess Co., NY. From Provost, 1941: "...lived at Titusville, a suburb of Poughkeepsie. He succeeded his father, John Titus, as manufacturer of woolen fabrics and later, with his sons, operated the textile mills located at Manchester and Rockdale on Wappingers Creek, east of Poughkeepsie. Wool of a superior quality produced on the Ohio ranch, operated by his brothers, was freighted down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to the Gulf, and thence by ocean going vessels to New York. The manufactured products included broadcloth and other high grade woolens. Skilled labor for the mills was obtained from towns in England which furnished the names for the settlements where the Titus mills were located. Including the original woolen mill at Washington Hollow, established by John Titus at an early date, these factories were operated successfully by grandfather, son and grandsons over a period of more than seventy years. Their ultimate decadence and final suspension is referred to on page 16 (see John Titus b. Nov. 11, 1761) Elias Titus lived in the stately home at Titusville that is now, 1945, occupied by one of his descendants. The compiler (Andrew Provost Jr) remembers Elias Titus as a tall man of fine commanding presence."

From Herrick, 1994: Elias Titus started a "new and modern" wool factory on the former Phelps grist mill property. The mill was successful and the town of Titusville sprouted. Elias lived in a "two pillared Greek revival house on the south side of Titusville road. The mill supplied blankets for Union soldiers during the Civil War.

He married CYNTHIA HUBBARD Oct. 18, 1810, daughter of AARON HUBBARD and ESTHER TIBBALS. She was born July 30, 1793, and died July 12, 1875. From "Titus Family of Long Island and Dutchess Co. New York", Andrew Provst Jr., C.E., Darien CT, 1941: "In 1820, Aaron Hubbard, his wife Esther and their daughter Cynthia, wife of Stephen Titus, went to Ohio to settle at Newburg, near Cleveland, where Hubbard had taken up land. It is stated: 'they traveled with an ox-team, a span of horses and two covered wagons. At Buffalo, NY, the heavy freight was shipped on a small steamer named 'Walk-in-the-Water' for Cleveland. Mrs. Hubbard drove the horses all the way to the destination. In those days, when the Western Reserve was mostly uncleared land and the public highways not much more than beaten paths; the wild animals howling at night; it took some courage on the part of a woman to set out on such a journey.' [abstract from 'Women on the Western Reserve' by Gertrude Van Rensallaer Wickman] It is also recorded that in the same year Stephen Titus, his brother, James, his sister, Phebe, and presumably his four small children, went out to settle at Deerfield, Portage Co., OH. Stephen Titus and his family remained at Deerfield until 1849-50, when he, his wife Cynthia and their son Giles, with his new wife Mary are recorded as living at Alto, Brandon Twp., Fond Du Lac Co., Wisconsin. The approximate time of this record is fixed by the fact that their names appear in both the Ohio and Wisconsin census records of 1850..."

He married MARY JANE RHODES March 18, 1847, daughter of JAMES RHODES and WEALTHY BENNET. She was born March 29, 1821 in Cayuga Co., New York, and died Jan. 22, 1916 in Grant, MI. He was a farmer according to the 1850 and 1870 New York Census. From an article written by Nora LaVon Milano, granddaughter of Dorthy Ione Titus: "... Allen Greene Titus was born Aug. 8, 1826 in Cato Twp., Cayuga Co., New York State. In that same Twp. four years later, Aug. 29, 1830, Mary Jane Rhodes was born. On March 18, 1847, these two were wed at the home of the bride. In 1865 they followed the westward trend, stopping first in Corunna neas Owosso. By the time they moved on, they had lost their only daughter, Julia, aged twelve, who died in an epidemic. The couple lived in Iowa from 1871 to 1909 when they came to Grant.

... Allen G. had grown up on a homestead farm in New York which was part of the "Underground Railroad" that developed in the 1840's and which carried on a secretive method of helping runaway slaves escape to the north, usually during the darkness of night. His diary recorded that one of his grandmothers was Polly Green Titus of Delaware Co., NY, who was called "Polly the Bread Lady" for her custom of meeting soldiers with fresh baked bread to hand out as they trudged by. The kindness of homemakers along the way was a valued source of food in a country suffering from a short supply and long battles.

Allen G. rode on the first railroad train between Auburn and Albany, NY. Later he gave free right of way across his farm to NY Central Railway. He delighted in the experience of riding on the first car to pass over that line -- a car drawn by mules.

Mary Jane died of pneumonia on Jan. 22, 1916, at the age of 86. Both the family and the townspeople were greatly awed when her life's partner resolutely took to his bed after returning from the funeral, and quietly, eight days later, departed from this world having fulfilled his oft-repeated wish to remain here only "as long as Mary needs me."

417. EBENEZER[7] TITUS (JOSEPH[6], EBENEZER[5], TIMOTHY[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born April 28, 1782 in Augusta, VA, and died June 08, 1878 in Clay, MO. He married DOROTHY LEE Sep. 09, 1802 in Madison, KY, daughter of RICHARD LEE and ELIZABETH SCOTT. She was born Aug. 11, 1783 in Virginia, and died Jan. 24, 1869 in Ray, MO. Bio: I was born in Augusta Co., VA on the 11th April 1782. My forefathers were a stiff necked, and rebellious people when their rights and liberties were invaded. They fought against Great Britain 7 years for their independence, in which my uncle George Mathews, was conspicuous. He was an officer during the war, taken prisinor, but in what battle I know not. After the war was over, he emigrated to the State of Georgia, where there elected Governor, and held that office when State ratified the Constitution of the United States and signed his name to it. My father emigrated to Kentucky in 1782. He built the first water mill that was ever built in Madison Co. About this time he joined the Separate Baptists - continued with them until 1800, when the union took place between the regular and separate Baptists, which took place at the big meeting house in Madison Co., KY. I was present and heard the terms of union agreed upon. Shortly after the union took place, about 700 of the Separate Baptists withdrew from the union. A great many of them embraced the doctrine of Arius and Sebcineous. My father continued in the union and from the time he first embraced religion, his time was partly spent in beseeching and praying the people where God in his providence cast his lot, to be reconciled to God, and to seek the Lord while he might be found, and to call upon him while he was near. He died in Howard Co., MO on the 23rd of April, 1838.

I joined the United Baptist in 1818; have been both clerk and Deacon until the infirmity of old age forbid. In 1824 I emigrated to MO, lived in Howard Co., 18 years; then moved to Ray Co., in 1842 - lived there until 1869, when I lost my beloved and ever affectionately remembered companion. I then divided my household and kitchen furniture and part of my land between my children. I now live with my son-in-law, John McCorkle, and my daughter Elizabeth. If the illustrious dead participate with the concerns of this world, I invoke the shade of my venerable departed father and uncle to look down with scrutiny on the conduct of their disfranchised son and nephew, and see if he ever has departed from rectitude which was their good pleasure to instill into his youthful mind, or if he ever hesitated to support, defend and protect the Government which they fought seven years to establish. I was an old line Whig, but shal henceforth vote with the Democrats if permitted.

Relatives, friends and former associates, Company H. 7th Regiment, are invited to attend Funeral services at St. Andrew's Church, 127th St. and 5th Ave., today (Saturday) Sep. 28 at 11 A. M." "Death of Harold C. Titus - Many friends will regret to learn of the death of Harold C. Titus, which occured early Thursday morning Sep. 26, 1918, at Rome. Mr. Titus was born in New York City n Dec. 24, 1851, and was the oldest son of Orrin and Cora Cossart Titus of New York City. For many years he was a traveling salesman, until ill health caused his retirement from business. Mr. Titus had spent part of his summers in this vicinity since boyhood. He has always been a favorite with the children because of his employment of the beauties of nature and his love for dumb animals. Mr. Titus is the last of his immediate family. Mrs. T. J. Mowry, Mr. Eugene Titus of Rome, Mrs. Seward A. Miller of Utica, Mrs. G. H. Allen, Jr. and Mr. Walter J. Day of Deansboro are among the relatives. The funeral services were held in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church of New York City, of which Mr. Titus has been for many years a faithful member. The interment was in the family lot in Woodlawn Cemetery, Woodlawn, N. Y.

She was born Dec. 15, 1827, and died Oct. 29, 1893. Obituary - Waterville Times, July 1895: "The death by paralysis of Hosea B. Titus, which occured at the home of his son, at Forge Hollow, Sunday July 7th, removes a life-long honored resident of that vicinity. His family are among the oldest and most respected of Oneida Co.. His father Billy Titus, moved to the town of Marshall from Connecticut in the year 1800, and built up what for those days was a large iron forging and moulding industry. It was from these forges the name of the settlement, Forge Hollow, derived its name. He was the originator of the blast furnace producing all kinds of stoves, plows and smaller iron to order. The relics in existence speak volumes for the character of their work. Subsequently he established the forge in connection with the furnace to supply the wants of the people with wrought iron in various shapes. There are still people alive who remember using crowbars and fine-tempered tools of their make. The works were finally merged into a company known as the Hanover Iron Manufacturing Co., and under his control became an extensive establishment yielding its owners a handsome return. They secured control of the waterways by buying up a large tract of the surrounding lands.

Mr. H.B. Titus inherited the business and conducted it until such as to drive the manufacture of these goods into the coal and iron districts. Since that time he has been a farmer and hop grower, until eighteen years ago, he moved to Waterville, where he resided until the death of his wife in Oct. 1893, after this he went to live with his only son, E. H. Titus, on the old homestead. He also leaves one daughter, Mrs. T. J. Mowry of Rome and three sisters, Mrs. A. Day of Deansboro, Mrs. P. J. McAdam of New York and Mrs. Mark Hanchett of Chicago."

IRA BEARDSLEY[8] TITUS (CHARLES D.[7], NOAH[6], JONAH[5], JOHN[4], JOHN[3], JOHN[2], ROBERT[1]) was born April 19, 1833 in Rush, Monroe Co., NY, and died Jan. 28, 1914 in Rochester, Monroe Co., NY. He married MARTHA PALMER Feb. 14, 1866 in Perinton, Monroe Co., NY, daughter of ORIN PALMER and SARAH MARKS. She was born Dec. 08, 1840 in Monroe Co., NY, and died Feb. 22, 1911 in Perinton, Monroe Co., NY. Also known as Ai B. He was a civil engineer, surveyor, teacher and historian. He also farmed with his father 138 acres near the village of Fairport, New York. As a child he and his family lived in Rush, about 1853 the family moved to a farm in Fairport.

From his obituary: "Ai Beardsley Titus, believed to be the oldest practicing civil engineer and surveyor in New York State, died at the family residence, 15 Beechwood street, at 6 o'clock this morning, aged 81 years. He is survived by one son, one daughter and a grandson. Mr. Titus who had an office in the Exchange Place Building, was active almost to the day of his death. On Saturday he made a survey of the Penfield dugway and apparently was in the best of health. On Sunday he attended services at Second Baptist Church and later in the day was stricken with apoplexy. He continued to sink till this morning, when he passed away. Mr. Beardsley was born in Monroe Co. on April 19, 1833. On Feb. 14, 1866, he married miss Martha Palmer, of Perinton, who died three years ago. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Titus lived in Perinton, most of the time on a farm. His father Charles D. Titus, was a surveyor in Fairport. For some years Mr. Titus was a school teacher. For the past twenty years or more [the] deceased had been a resident of Rochester, conducting a prosperous business. His skill as an engineer and surveyor was well known and he was never in need of work. He had one contract in Penfield which took a year to complete. In recent years he had laid out a number of tracts in and about Rochester, including Lyellhurst, which was for years the farm of the late General Elwell S. Otis..."

From "The Republican", Coldwater, Michigan, May 17, 1881: "In writing of "A Family of School Teachers" the White Pigeon Journal says: 'A son and four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Titus, of White Pigeon, are and have been school teachers. Willard H. Titus taught several years, notably in Florence, Lockport, Colon and Middlebury, Indiana. Misses Cora and Flora have been engaged several years as teachers in the Union School in the city of Coldwater. Miss Mary Titus occupies a position as teacher in the Union School of White Pigeon, and Miss Edith Titus is teaching in District #2 in Florence in the school house where all of them commenced going to school and obtained the first rudiments of education. Early and thorough training has done its work in this family and done it well. The Misses Titus possess the elements of education in an eminent degree. Their thorough discipline, and order, coupled with their amiable dispositions, qualify them for a place high in the profession...."

She was born Sep. 12, 1825 in Brooklyn, PA, and died Nov. 10, 1894 in Lenox, Susquehanna Co., PA. Sylvanus C. Titus was buried in the Loomis-Titus-Carpenter cemetery near Loomis Lake , alongside the graves of Lucy , Charles, and George. A monument to the four of them was set. The markers were getting badly eroded in 1978 and are probably in worse condition today.

Sylvanus C. Titus took up land about three miles south of the Nine Partners Spring, starting married life in a log cabin and later moving into a new frame house. His land was obtained from the holdings of Griswald Oliver Loomas, who was married to Alzina Titus, a sister of Sylvanus. Schools and churches were erected in the early years of this new community which was known as West Lenox, and the area near Loomis Lake was also locally called "Loomis Lake". This community that was originated Griswald Loomis had what was called a mechanic shop, hotel, store, several homes ,and a church and school on land set aside by Mr. Loomis. This school was the source of education for the Sylvanus Titus children and other pupils from the surrounding area in walking distance. The school was still in use in the 1920's

Wounded and contracted TB at the battle of Chickamagua. "He was sent home from the hospital a physical wreck. Died after two years of misery at his sister's home, Mary Weston, in Iowa C., Wis."

An excerpt from a writing reprinted in "Titus Mug Podge" page 78, originally written by one of his children: "... He worked around Clayton Ill. till 1855 when he married Priscilla Ann Ausemus, and soon after moved north to Henderson Co., Ill, where he took up government land... ...On Dec. 8, 1862 mother died. Father came home on furlough and was with mother in her last hours on earth. She was buried beside her babes on a plot of ground set aside by father for a graveyard. I was at school that day so did not see mother die. Father had to go back to the army leaving Woodman, David and myself to shift for ourselves. However, aunt Martha Shull, mothers oldest sister who lived near by, took me in. Father was wounded in battle of Chicamauga and was taken to hospital, where from some cause he ran down in health from which he never recovered..."

Major Samuel Nye Titus, b. Nov. 17, 1837

The following is a transcript of letter written by Samuel Nye Titus to his father after the fall of Richmond. Samuel had lost an arm in the war. A copy of this letter was provided to me for this book by Mark Titus of Jackson, MN: "Washington DC, April 5, 1865 Dear Father, I have at last finished all my business here got through last night. Would have finished sooner, but for the taking of Richmond and the consequent excitement and confusion here. The whole city was perfectly wild. Last night there was a splendid illumination. All the public buildings and most of the private ones were one blaze of light. Rockets bursting, cannons booming, bands of music playing, people shouting, all combined to make the scene one of unusual splendor and magnificence.

I shall start for NY this evening. I have not heard from Maggie for some time but hope that she has fully recovered. When down to the regiment, several of the boys gave me money to take home for them. Among the others Cable $50 and Jacob Ward $80. It may be that you have money on hand that you will not want to use before I get home. If so and wish to do so you might pay to Mrs. Cable and Ward the sums mentioned above, and I will give it to you again when I get home.

My health is very good. The arm about the same. I will write again soon after reaching Poughkeepsie which will be the day after tomorrow as I intend to spend one day in the city. Would like to hear from you as soon as may be as I have not heard since leaving Annapolis. Your Son, S N Titus"

The present occupants of the home are the children of George Titus, who married Electa Van Zant of Meigs Co.. There were five children in this family, the three already named, James Titus, who operates a modern dairy near Harrisonville, and Robert of Dayton. Three sons of Robert and James will carry on the family name. George Titus once owned a daisy herd and made and cooled butter in a large cave near the family home - and the butter all went to the Athens State Hospital for the families of the officers of the institution. He also served as Meigs Co. sheriff for several terms.

Promoted Captain Nov 3, 1863, Brevet Major Oct 17, 1865 for gallant and meritorious conduct during the Atlanta campaign. From a 1897 Biographical record published in 1897: "Richard Titus (deceased) was born in the town of Lagrange, Dutchess Co., Feb. 4, , and was a well known citizen of that locality. His boyhood days were spent in Titusville, where he attended the district school, and he later became a student at the private school of E. R. Roe in Cornwall. Mr. Titus learned the business of paper manufacturing in Columbia Co., NY but for many years was a member of the firm E. Titus & Sons, manufacturers of woolen goods. When the Civil War broke out he responded to the call for volunteers, and in Oct. 1862, enlisted in the 150th Regiment N.Y.V.I., which was assigned to the Army of the Potomac. He served until the close of the war, and his record as a brave soldier is a truly precious legacy to his family. He entered the army as a first lieutenant, was promoted to captain, and for gallant conduct was brevetted major. The war ended he returned to Lagrange, and resumed his business, which he carried out until his death, March 19, 1882. He was a quiet, unostentatious man, fond of his home and family, and universally liked and respected by his associates. He was married in the town of Lagrange Sep. 5, 1865, to Miss Harriet Hopkins, whose birth took place in that Twp. May 18, 1841, and of this union six children were born, namely Elias, Elizabeth, Florence, Alida, Marion and Richard William.

FULLER Jan. 15, 1855, daughter of NOBLE FULLER. HENRY C. TITUS, farmer and miller, P. O. Lake Pleasant, was born July 21, 1832, in Venango Twp., Erie Co., son of Jesse Titus. He grew up on his father's farm, and attended the home schools. He was united in marriage, Jan. 15, 1855, with Adelaide E., daughter of Noble Fuller of Venango Twp.. They settled in the region of Lake Pleasant, where, with the exception of about six months in 1862, spent in Iowa, they have since resided. They have a farm of 100 acres, besides a grist mill and saw mill, situated at the outlet of Lake Pleasant. This is one of the oldest mill sites in the county, and is the only grist mill in Amity Twp.. Mr. and Mrs. Titus are the parents of five children -- Mabel, now Mrs. Estes; Williway N., married to Emma Applebee; Lewis O., married to Ella Williams; Hugh and Lenole E. Mr. Titus has been very industrious, and has accumulated his property entirely by good management. He has been nine successive years Twp. Commissioner; is a staunch Democrat; takes great interest in everything conducive to the benefit or improvement of humanity, and is respected by the whole community.

598. DAVID SANDS[8] TITUS (DAVID E.[7], RICHARD[6], RICHARD[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born 1835 in Newfield, NY, and died April 02, 1925 in Watkins Glen, NY. He married ELIZABETH NORRIS, daughter of JOHN NORRIS and JULIA DICKERSON. She was born July 09, 1838 in Van Etten, NY, and died Feb. 23, 1922 in Spencer, NY. The following is a letter written by David Sands Titus to his father in 1863: "Aurora, Sep. 19th/64 (1864) Dear Father, I received your letter this noon and was glad to hear from home. You spoke about the sieve of James Bedell. I do not remember of ever getting but one, that was a grass screen but I don't know whether I took it back or not, it was a new copper screen so you can tell it from ours if it is around. You spoke about my taking studies that would be of use to me. I have taken the same as I did last term with Geometry extra, I am a collegiate course away and can finish by next fall if nothing happens, but if I do not go after I finish, there is no use studying Latin and Greek for they will be of very little misfortune without a finish. If you think I had better drop them, and finish up schooling in a term or so write soon, and I will stop where I am and take something that will be of more business importance.

I think myself the tuition and board here is rather high but let them run it in the ground as soon as they can. The quicker the better probably. I don't know as I am under any obligations to them, they won't let us smoke anywhere unless we lay ourselves liable to be turned out for the first offense. You know I have to indulge once and a while.

Sunday I had to go to Sunday school. The school is well enough if they would let the Democrats alone while they are there. Yesterday (Sunday) the minister was talking to the scholars about what he saw while coming from New York. Among the rest he told about a soldier who was on the boat with him. He wound up by telling the scholars "that the miserable contemptible sheet the Herald and numerous other sheets of the same stamp, were circulating about the country that two thirds of the money raised for the "Christian commission" was put in the pockets of the superintendents. Now I think that is pretty black. What do you say about my stopping or going to some other as they want me to go to Sunday school. The Episcopal church does not run all the time, there is a party going up to Tughanic Falls from the school week from next Saturday. The faculty went up last Saturday.

Give my love to ma and remember me to all, Your son D. S. Titus Jr.
P.S. Tell ma to send my base ball player. She will find it on the bureau in my room, a small dime book. D. Sands"

German Titus was born in Canada in 1822 and came to Monroe Co. with his parents when he was two years old. Ten years later the family moved to Irondequoit where German followed a variety of occupations before turning to market gardening in 1870. About 1895 when the trolley line was extended down St. Paul Boulevard to the lake, it became necessary to label the intersecting streets, and at this time "Little Ridge" became Titus Avenue. The name honored German Titus, the only living pioneer who had "helped to cut the road out of the wilderness" when he came to town at the age of twelve..."

Children of EDWIN TITUS and ELIZABETH JEWETT are:
i. MARY HARRIET[9] TITUS, b. Nov. 07, 1866, Buffalo Grove, Iowa; d. Feb. 07, 1923, Porterville, CA; m. ADELBERT DELMER SMITH, 1883, Buffalo Twp., Iowa; b. Jan. 03, 1860, Kankakee, IL; d. Feb. 05, 1942, Aurora, Iowa. "Mary was born in the Abaither Richardson home in Buffalo Grove. This house is still standing and has a long and interesting history. Not only was it the first frame house built, it was at one time painted red, a very romantic color for a house, according to the 1881 county history. It was a stage coach stop, housed the post office and was a community center. It has been lived in, as a private dwelling, until 1967 but it was kept much the way it was so long ago. The buildings and surrounding land was bought by the Buchanan Co. conservation commission for a museum and park. It has been on the National Register since the 1980s and has been restored and furnished as a museum."

"The town referred to as Buffalo Grove, and locally known as Mudville because of the condition of its streets much of the time, no longer exists. When the railroad came through to the north of it the town moved to the railroad and was named Aurora. This was about 1886."

"Mrs Hattie Smith lived to see all of her children married and in homes of their own but she had diabetes the last several years of her life and was in poor health. Insulin was discovered about that time but it was too late to do her any good. She and her husband were on an extended visit to California, in hopes that the warm weather would improve her health, when death came on Feb. 7, 1923 at the home of her daughter May Dunbar, at Porterville. She was returned to Iowa for burial in Spangler Cemetery. All her children except Hilton and Laura, contracted diabetes, as did many of her grandchildren."

Whenever the circus came to town when he was young, the family would watch it come down 4th ave. Robert loved to watch the animals. Years later the circus came back to town and the family saw Robert in the circus parade and were all yelling and waiving to him. He later joined the USO during WWII and toured the military bases. He had two children: Mary and Robert. He abandoned his children and his wife Carrie when they were babies. Carrie supported them by working all night as they slept to make beaded purses for elegant shops in New York, but she was paid very She was ostracized by the Titus family because she was a non-Catholic and A-religious. Helen Timms Titus kept contact with her and supported her as best she could through the years. Carrie later became a court stenographer and did well. She bought a "Huptmobile" auto in 1930 and studied mechanics so she could oversee the repairs. It ran well into the 60's. She was an early active member of the "League of Women Voters". She was an early "Libber" and an original. Robert never contacted her or his children.

669. ROBERT AUSTIN[8] TITUS (SILAS[7], STEPHEN[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born April 17, 1852 in Syracuse, NY, and died Sep. 17, 1892 in Tully, New York. He married ERMA J. KEARNEY 1880, daughter of M. J. KEARNY. His Obituary from the Syracuse Standard: "Robert A. Titus of this City died Saturday at the Dowding Farm in Tully. The remains were brought to Syracuse yesterday. Robert A. Titus was the son of Colonel Silas Titus and was born in Syracuse April 17, 1862 [error - should be 1852 according to gravestone]. He attended the Public Schools in this City until 1878 when, at the opening of Cornell University , he joined the party of young Syracusans who entered the freshman class of that University. [Cornell opened in 1868, not 1878. Seems the dates of this article are 10 years off] After a year of college life and study, Mr. Titus began his business career at eighteen [about 1870] as a traveling salesman for C.C. Loomis and Company, Tea and Coffee Merchants, and traveled for a number of years for that firm and for Ostrander, Loomis and Company, through the state of New York. In that capacity, Mr. Titus built up a large business. In 1876 Mr. Titus, with his brother Silas W. Titus, and Charles Filkins, formerly of this City, went to Texas and started business in Houston. [the 1876 date appears correct] After a year he returned to the employ of Ostrander, Loomis and Company for a short period and in 1878 he entered the employ of Roswell, Skeel and Company, Tea Importers of New York, with which firm he remained until he went out of business in 1885. Mr. Titus then associated himself with Dudley, Hall and Company, Tea Importers of Boston and lately has been a member of the firm of George B. Kester and Company of Philadelphia.

Mr. Titus was very successful and by his tireless energy and strict integrity built up a large and prosperous business with the wholesale houses of the State. He was recognized as one of the most expert tea men in the United States. In 1880 Mr. Titus married Miss Emma Z. [Erma J.] daughter of M. J. Kearney of Brooklyn. The necessary absence of Mr. Titus from the City, in pursuit of his business was so little interrupted by sojourns at home for any considerable length of time, that his acquaintanceship here was not general despite the fact that he was a Loyal Son of Syracuse. He had perfect faith in the future of the City and contributed his share to its progress. All his investments were here and his heart as well. He was essentially a man of domestic tastes, and in those relations was known to his intimate friends as an exceedingly loveable man. In his dealings with the world, of which he was an active part, he was the very soul of honor.

Child of ROBERT TITUS and ERMA KEARNEY is:

Child of EMMA TITUS and JOHN TITUS is:

i. PAUL[9] TITUS, b. May 06, 1885, Batavia, NY; d. June 28, 1951, Pittsburgh, PA; m. MARY CUSHING. M.D. Yale, 1908. He was an obstetrician and gynecologist. He was adopted by his maternal grandparents Rev. and Mrs. Wicks Smith Titus. Excerpts from his obituary from a Syracuse area Newspaper: "A world-famed obstetrician and gynecologist who grew up in Syracuse has died at his home in Pittsburgh, his friends reported last night. Dr. Paul Titus, 66, internationally renowned for his work and books on women's diseases and pregnancy, died last Thursday of a heart attack. He was chief of obstetrics and gynecology at St. Margaret's Memorial Hospital in Pittsburgh... ...The family moved to Syracuse in 1890 and lived at 204 Hawley ave. Dr. Titus attended Prescott School and the old Syracuse High School, where he was a member of Gamma Sigma fraternity. He graduated from Yale University Medical School and did graduate work at Heidelberg, Germany and Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore... ...In World War I he was in the Army Intelligence Corps and in World War II he was a commander in the Naval Medical Corps and a consultant to the Surgeon General..."

673. RAYMOND JAMES[8] TITUS (ALLEN GREEN[7], JARED[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born June 20, 1848 in Cato, New York, and died Oct. 29, 1925 in Grant, MI. He married SARAH ELIZABETH COBBLEDICK, daughter of JOHN COBBLEDICK and MARY DEARBORN. She was born April 1852 in Canada, and died April 30, 1934 in Grant, MI. From an article written by Mrs. Nancy LaVon Milano, granddaughter of Dorthy Ione Titus: "... R. J. followed his father's footsteps in politics and was joined by F.W. in remaining active in local government as long as they were in Grant. To R. J. the game of politics was an exciting one. He was Justice of the Peace in Ashland Twp. for many of his years in Grant and enjoyed serving on election boards and being wherever the people were. Like the Alvin Cashes across the way, their home became a boarding house for teachers and sometimes others. Little R. J. tried to keep it a lively one, while Mrs. R. J. was referee... ... R. J. Titus died in 1925 at the age of 72, with just enough warning to tell his wife he was going. He had had a busy morning splitting wood for the cook stove and doing other small chores. Sarah lived in the home until three years before her death, which came in Allen and Dora's home when she was 82 years old."

674. WICKS RHODES[8] TITUS (ALLEN GREEN[7], JARED[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born July 16, 1851 in Cayuga Co., NY, and died Jan. 14, 1938 in Eureka, CA. He married BLANCHE SNODGRASS Feb. 17, 1872 in Monett, MO. He is described as a "brakeman" in the 1880 Muscatine Co., Iowa census.

Information from a family bible once owned by George Marion Titus, given to Wickes Rhodes daughter Beatrice: "W.R. Titus moved to Monett MO where he met and married Blanche Snodgrass on Feb. 17, 1892. The minister was C. H. Bente. They owned a fruit farm but lived in Monett. Here a large home was built and burned two weeks before they were to move in... ...In 1900 they moved to Joplin. The day their household goods arrived, W.R. came home to lunch, left and was never seen again by his family. Witnesses stated they last saw him entering a hardware store. A clerk there, we have his name, turned up with the deed to the fruit farm. What transpired in the store has never been uncovered. The clerk, with funds from the sale of the farm, became a man of considerable means in Joplin. Blanche never remarried. In 1935, W.R.'s brother in Muscatine received a letter from him in California."

Well I remember her accounts of being burned out by Quantrill in Humbolt, Kansas. I have papers dating back to 1855 relating to her life. Uncle Roy Confer, now 83, lights up like a Christmas tree when her name is mentioned and has added greatly to my history of her. I saw her last in California when I was 10. A rash was setting me on fire. (The elders did not know how many apricots I had consumed.) Great Grandma prepared one of her noxious home remedies. When I drank it, it promptly returned. She set about preparing another dose. Sass was not tolerated, nor did one refuse to cooperate, but I was desperate. She was 5'5". I was very small. It was a matter of balance to place my hands on hips as I threw my head back to look up at her. 'Grandma, I won't be able to keep it down. I know my own stomach.' She looked at me in surprise, then poured the dose down the sink. 'That makes sense, Patty.' Then her blue eyes twinkled at me. 'You're going to be on the short side, honey, so keep your back straight and head up. The inches don't matter so much, but a person needs a lot of steel in their backbone to make this trip.' HOW I LOVED HER!" -- Author unknown - written after 1972.

Thomas CFFELT and Julia Ann MARGRAVES, b. Nov. 22, 1849 in Preston, MO; d. 1880, Jasper, MO. After his wife's death, Erza remarried a woman named Josephine HAWLEY and had six more children. Information was provided by Kathleen Winchester after the register format numbering had been set. Information on Thomas Gilbert Titus' descendants is below.

He and Amanda sold property in Missouri on Nov. 20, 1869 for $500. In 1873 Erza and Amanda went to Golden Colorado where Erza worked as a night watchman. In 1876 they returned to Jasper County, Missouri. They had four little children by this time and it is uncertain why they returned to Missouri. He sold another parcel (7 acres) on Dec. 10, 1877 for $100.00. In 1880, Amanda (was) pregnant again. She lost Albert in 1878, Thomas Gilbert in 1879 and her newborn, James Arthur, in 1880 as well as losing her own life that same year leaving Erza with Alice, Hattie and Cora (not sure of Cora's death). So Erza remarried...

B. Alice Madeline TITUS, b. 1871; d. 1970; m. William Franklin WINCHESTER on May 21, 1898 in Web City, Jasper, MO. Written by her great granddaughter, Kathleen Winchester: "She had been married once before and her first husband was killed in a mining accident. He left her with two boys. She cleaned house for the Winchester's. She married the son that was 5 years senior. She didn't want to lose another husband to a mining accident. She was a very willful woman and had him change his profession to that of a driver. He had his own teams of mules and wagons... He moved to San Diego to help with his father who was wounded in the Civil War and needed an arid climate for health reasons. While he was here he leveled many plots of land for building Sand Diego was preparing for the Pan American Exposition (1915) and the Worlds Fair (1935-6). They also lived in Colorado for the different discoveries of Gold and Silver. They had a store, Great-Grandma cooked and Great Grandpa transported materials. They were a busy little family. Two children from her first marriage and 2 more from her present marriage (Arleigh A. Winchester and Vera Alice Winchester). Alice died in her 100th year in San Diego in the house that she built. The house is still standing today (2003)"

683. NELSON JAMES[8] TITUS (JAMES[7], JAMES[6], SAMUEL[5], PHILLIP[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Nov. 29, 1835 in Ashtabula Co., OH. He died Sep. 10, 1898 in Union Mills, IN. He married (1) LAURILLA DUNHAM Aug. 16, 1856 in La Porte Co., IN. Laurilla was born in 1834 and died March 3, 1862 in Union Mills, IN. He married (2) CHARLOTTE BROWN March 21, 1866 in La Porte Co., IN. She was born Jan. 25, 1841; died Jan. 30, 1913.

Nelson James Titus was three years old in 1837 when his parents moved the family from Ashtabula Co., Ohio to LaPorte Co., Indiana. He was the only one of the younger children to survive a disease that ravaged the area in 1838, shortly after the family arrived there. Records show that he attended subscription schools, sometimes walking as far as two miles each way. After his marriage he and his wife moved at some time during 1857/58 to Holt Co., MO where the settled in Forest City. He set up a carpenter shop and seems to have had every intention to stay. He had family nearby as his brother Gilbert and his sisters Emoline and Phebe and their families had settled there also. Laurilla's father Ira Dunham was also living there as were various Titus cousins. However, early 1862 found him back in Union Mills where in March of that year his wife Laurilla died.

On July 28, 1862 Nelson enlisted in the 87th Regiment, Indiana Volunteers, Co. H. The 87th was formally organized at South Bend on August 28, 1862. On his pay book, Nelson is described as being five feet nine inches tall, having blue eyes and light hair. Nelson was at the Battle of Atlanta and also on Sherman's March to the Sea. He suffered from severe dysentery from most of the war. Rather than go home he chose to become an ambulance driver in order to remain with his friends and neighbors. The war left him with permanent intestinal problems and he received a small pension after the war.

Nelson Titus was a member of the Masonic order and of the Grand Army of the Republic. He was also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and of course was a member of the Republican Party.

Although his health had been failing for sometime before his death, he had kept busy at his trade and his many other interests. On the day of his death he had gone over to the neighboring town of Kingsbury to pick up his daughter Nellie and her husband, both whom taught school there. On the journey home he became violently ill and died at about midnight. He is buried in the Titus plot in the cemetery in Union Mills with his mother, his two wives, his daughter Cora and his grandson Arthur.

Children of NELSON TITUS and LAURILLA DUNHAM are:

i. CORA E.[9] TITUS, b. Sep. 18, 1854, Mound City, MO; d. Jul 27, 1887, Union Mills, IN; m. ALLEN CRAFT, Oct. 05, 1876, La Porte Co., IN.

ii. CHARLES WILLIAM TITUS, b. May 29, 1857, Union Mills Indiana; d. Mar. 16, 1916 in Joplin, MO; m. (1) AMANDA E. BEAL, Sep. 19, 1874, La Porte Co., IN.; Amanda was born Feb 3, 1856 or 1854 in La Porte Co., IN; died Feb 12, 1922 in Chicago, IL. Charles m. (2) Rosa T. Charles William Titus was a carpenter. Sometime after 1880 he left Union Mills and went to Chicago. There he built houses for the railroad workers in the area that later became River Grove, IL and Franklin Park, IL. As late as 1891 he still had an advertisement in the local paper there. Around 1886/87 he left his first wife for a younger girl whom he had met. The details were never made clear to anyone and in the way of that time were very hush-hush. By 1888 he was in Kansas and seems to have tried a number of businesses Letters show him to have traveled much and lived all over the plains states. In 1900 he was in Blackwell, OK, then still Indian territory. It is probable that his two daughters from his second marriage know nothing of the existence of his first family. When he died in 1916 his daughter Ethel went to Joplin for his funeral. Rosa Titus met her at the train Station and asked her not to identify herself as his daughter as she did not want her daughters to know who she was. Charles and Amanda had three children:

   a. Arthur N. Titus
   b. Charles Herman Titus
   c. Ethel Lorilla Titus

   Charles and Rosa had two children:

   a. Anna M. Titus
   b. May (Mary) Titus

She was the daughter of Abraham Titus. She was married to Harrison Clevenger in the year 1865. To this union there were given five children-Mrs. Joe Bowers, Mrs. Mary Bryzantine, Mrs. Ed Hartman, and John and William Clevenger. She was a member of the Christian Union Church for more than fifty years and lived a consistent Christian life. She departed this life at the home of her son William in Oklahoma, on Jan. 4, death resulting from heart failure. She was one of the pioneers of Ray Co. and nearly all her life had lived in our community. Eighteen years ago she had a stroke of paralysis and from then until her death she was almost helpless. Her husband, Harrison Clevenger, and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Bryzantine, preceded her in death several years. She is survived by four children--Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Hartman, William and John. Besides the children she is survived by one sister, Mrs. William Moseley, and one brother, Mr. Joseph Titus. The remains were shipped to Lawson and funeral services, conducted by Rev. John Clevenger and the writer, were held at Union Church last Saturday. The funeral was attended by a large gathering of relatives, friends and neighbors. Burial was in the Union cemetery. May the Lord bless the relatives"

Feb. 2, 1883 - Standard Newspaper, Clarksville, TX

"Died at his residence at Savannah, on the morning of the 31st, of Pneumonia, Capt. E.B. Titus, aged 42 years. Capt. Titus was brought an infant to Savannah, and was the prominent male representative of a prominent family, whose first representative in Red River, was our old friend Col. James Titus, for whom Titus Co. was named, who was a senator from Red River, and had been previously a member of the Alabama legislature for several terms. His son, A.J. Titus, for whom Jack Titus lodge is named, was one of the best and purest men we ever knew. He left two sons and a daughter, of whom the deceased was the senior representative. Capt. E.B. Titus was an intelligent man, but aimed at filling no important positions; satisfied with the quiet but honorable performance of his duties as a citizen, and the head of a family. He leaves an estimable wife and five children. Capt. Titus, during the late war, commanded company K. of Caudle's regiment and at Yellow Bayou went into the fight with 34 men, and was borne out badly wounded, with four men of his company to answer roll call. He was shot in several places and fell in a ravine, and the Federals charged over him twice without disturbing him.

Mr. and Mrs. N.W. Titus Observe Golden Wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Woodhull Titus celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Monday afternoon at their home, 17 Alexander Street, which adjoins the property formerly the home of Mrs. Titus' parents, Judge and Mrs. Josiah W. Wright, where they were married fifty years ago. The entire lower floor of the house was profusely decorated with bouquets and baskets of flowers, largely the gifts of friends, Gold-colored candles illuminated the living room where the bride and groom of a half century ago received over a hundred of their friends calling to extend felicitations. Assisting in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. Titus' three daughters, Mrs. Charles Frederick Sargent, of New York; Mrs. Grace Titus Fleming, of Princeton, and Mrs. Hastings Eells, of Delaware, Ohio. Also with them were their two small granddaughters, Georgine Fleming, who wore a Kate Greenaway frock, and Mary Louise Sargent, wearing an Empire frock of French blue taffeta. Both little girls carried baskets of flowers which they distributed among the guests. A grandson, William Eells was unable to be present. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Howard E. Wright, Mrs. John Spence, Miss Anna Murray and Mrs. L.N. Yepsen. A unique gift among the many received was a genealogical chart, the work of Mrs. Irving W. Mershon and presented to the couple by Mr. and Mrs. Mershon. Mr. and Mrs. Titus were married on June 6, 1888, with the Reverend Horace Hinsdale, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating. Mrs. Titus was the former Miss Elizabeth Worth Wright, sister of Dr. Howard E. Wright of Princeton. On Wednesday, Mrs. Titus, who was born in Princeton celebrated her eighty-first birthday. Her father, Judge Wright, was a former mayor of Princeton in 1885, serving two terms."

"Neilson W. Titus. Princeton, Oct. 7. - Neilson Woodhull Titus, husband of Elizabeth Wright Titus and a retired cabinetmaker, died this morning at his home, 17 Alexander Street, after a lengthy illness. He was 87 years old. Born in Pennington, he was a resident of Princeton for the past 60 years. Son of the late Theodore and Eleanor Lee Titus, he is survived, besides his wife, by three daughters, Mrs. Charles F. Sargent of New York City, Mrs. George T. Fleming of Princeton, and Mrs. Hastings Eells of Delaware, Ohio, and three grandchildren, Georgine T. Fleming, Mary Louise Sargent and William H. Eells. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the First Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member, with services by the Rev. Frank S. Niles, pastor. Burial will be in Princeton Cemetery under direction of S. S. Mather. Friends may call tomorrow night at the late residence."

He married FRANCES MARIAN UPHAM Feb. 14, 1866, daughter of ELIJAH UPHAM. She died Aft. 1918. Excerpt reprinted from "Good Ole Bob" apparently written after 1903 but before his death : "Oliver Sabin, second son of Anson and Almira (Sabin) Titus, was born in Phelps, New York, May 13, 1843. He was educated in the public schools of Phelps and the Clinton Liberal Institute, Clinton, Oneida Co., New York. In Aug. 1862, when nineteen years old, he enlisted in Company C, One hundred and forty eight regiment, New York Volunteer Infantry, and remained in the army until the close of the rebellion.

Soon after his enlistment he was detailed for clerical work in the office of Judge Advocate of the Department of Virginia and North Carolina, under General Benjamin F. Butler, with headquarters at Fortress Monroe, Old Point Comfort, Virginia and was finally mustered out at Richmond, Virginia, June 5, 1865, with an honorable record for efficiency and conscientious service.

In 1869 he went to Kirksville, Adair Co., Missouri, where he engaged in farming, but subsequently returned to Phelps and in Dec. 1874, moved to Shortsvile, New York, as a bookkeeper in a General Store; he later accepted the position of bookkeeper for Messrs. Hiram L. and Calvin P. Brown, manufacturers of the Empire Grain Drill and having been admitted to partnership in 1877 he was thence forward in charge of the sales and advertising departments. Through his untiring energy and superior ability the business of the concern was rapidly developed, the working force being increased from twenty to two hundred men and their annual product amounted to more that six thousand drills. When the Empire Drill Company was incorporated in 1884, Mr. Titus became its Secretary and Treasurer and he continued to serve as such until 1903, when the enterprise was purchased by The American Seeding Machine Company.

Although practically retired from business pursuits he is nevertheless, interested in certain local enterprises of a profitable nature; he is a member of the banking firm of E. D. Mather & Company and Treasurer of the Red Jacket Telephone Company.

Mr. Titus was formerly active in civic affairs, having been chosen the first president of the village of Shortsville, which was incorporated in 1889, and he retained that office for two years. For the past eighteen years he has served as president of the Board of Education..."

From a newspaper clipping provided by Ms. Ann L. McAlister, Harrisonburg, VA:
"The 52nd wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Sabin Titus was celebrated by a dinner in honor of the event at their home in Shortsville last Thursday. Mr. Titus is a native of Phelps, where he was born nearly 75 years ago, and where is hearty life was spent, the son of Anson and Almira Sabin Titus and brother of the Rev. Anson Titus. Mr. Titus is one of the most substantial and esteemed citizens of his adopted town."

From Dar Webb: "... physician at St. Vincents in the village... I met him once. A somewhat larger than life Edwarian sort of a guy who was famous in medical circles for his early work with x-rays, which he believed would cure whatever ailed you. When I met him he read "The Little Train that Could" to me while I sat on his lap, utterly horrified because he only had one finger with which to follow the words, having burned the rest of them off in his x-ray experiments."

He once held a wagon upon his back while it was being repaired. On another occasion he had collected some firewood and was about to pack it in his house. Two young men cam along and taking pity on the old man offered to carry the load for him. After several attempts they gave up and G.M.G. hoisted the whole bundle and trudged toward home..." The following was printed in "Good Ole Bob", by Ben Humbolt Titus: "... G.M.G. was a brick and stone mason, and in his time, constructed more fireplaces and chimneys than any other man in the valley. He was regarded as a splendid workman. Titus was also a pronounced religious worker. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in a revival or prayer meeting could shout, 'Amen' with a great fervor..."

795. JOHN HENRY[9] TITUS (MALACHI W.[8], SAMUEL[7], JOSEPH[6], JOSEPH[5], JOSEPH[4], JOSEPH[3], JOHN[2], ROBERT[1]) was born April 08, 1856 in Henderson Co., Illinois, and died Aug. 20, 1932 in Lake City, Calhoun Co., Iowa. He married MINERVA DEWEY Dec. 05, 1880 in Gage Co., NE. Excerpts from an autobiographical article written by John Henry Titus: "...I remember the house where I was born and the one we lived in afterward. It was a frame house about four miles north of Oquak and on the main road to Keithsburg, Co. seat of Mercer Co. about eight miles farther north. I remember also the many sandburs that grew there which I used to get into my feet and in my clothes especially when I would sit down, then it would be a cry for help. I have faint recollection of how my mother looked, although she died when I was but six years old. I remember her kindly look and soft words. How I wish that I might of had her with me longer...

...Father was discharged and came home so we three lived at the old house again, but mother was not there, and father was a physical wreck, so it was not a very real home. Father sold the place to Mr. Shortridge and rented another about a mile away, here we farmed in the year 1865... ...we spent the winter of '65 and 6 in Iowa. Woodman worked in Anamosa for uncle Isaac Titus who ran a livery barn, father, brother Dave and I stayed at Uncle Sams some 12 miles east of Anamosa on his big farm. Dave and I went to school and had lots of fun...

... In the Sping of [18]74 I hired to James Douglass for $15 per month till harvest. That fall brother David came to see me and I went with him to Polk Co., Iowa, and began working for $20 per month, for Jake Parkhurst. The winter of '74-5 I did not go to school, first I had missed since I began at 5. Spring of '75 I began work for Mr Tooley 5 miles N.E. of DesMoines and worked and went to school in that community for four seasons. The season of 1879 I farmed with brother Woodman near Altoona. In the fall we sold out and went to Gage Co., Nebr. where we both bought land and settled down, Oct 1, '79, near Wolf Creek about 20 miles S.E. of Beatrice, that being our nearest railroad. In the spring of '80, brother Woodman became dissatisfied, sold his place and went back to Iowa. I stayed in Gage Co., went to school and farmed improving my land until fall when I got a certificate and began teaching school...

... In spring of 1895 moved to Sac Co. where we lived 3 years. Made a sale in Nov 1897 and moved to Lake City Iowa... We began living in Lake City Dec. 1, 1897. I worked at whatever I could find to do - on farm, buying poultry, clerking in store, etc, living in different parts of the city until fall of 1902 I bought milk route from Mr. L.H. Clow and moved to Olmstead property in north part of town, ran the milk route two years. Sold out and soon afterwards bought the city oil wagon which I ran for over four years then sold out..."

The following is a poem written by Mott Titus printed in "Titus Family of Long Island and Dutchess Co. New York", Andrew Provst Jr., C.E., Darien CT, 1941:

"The Titus Clan can trace its kin - Clear back to sixteen hundred, in A line of forebears who have been - Possessed of rugged health;

But you may search the tribal strain - From Robert first to Sarah Jane
And all your labor will be in vain - If you are seeking wealth;
Great riches they could never flaunt - But none has ever been in want.

Upon their roster you will find - No one possessed of brilliant mind;
But neither do they fall behind - The normal intellect.
Not one of them has made a claim - To anything approaching fame,
Yet through these years, the name - Has always won respect.

The saints may not have been their vogue, - They have never produced a rogue;
Each scion knew, - has always known - The title was not his alone
To use or misuse as his own, - With none to be his judge.
Although his day of death must dawn, - The name will live when he is gone;
So he must try to pass it on - Without a stain or smudge.

And fairly good has been the score - For full three hundred years, or more.
Composed of good but common clay - Each generation has its day
Has gone its unassuming way - A law-abiding breed.

So thru the years as yet unborn, - The name we hope will still adorn True men and maids who will not scorn - The tenets of our creed -
The Titus honor to defend - And keep untarnished to the end.

The following story is from a record compiled by Maud Louisa Ann Titus of Erie, PA and is presented in "A History of the Titus-Capron and Related Families": Item dated Jan. 15, 1915: "One night when Ora had be "sparking" (Annie Wood) on arriving home he found the usual candle setting on the kitchen table, but pushed back to the far side was a second candle. Father, Ora suspected, and upon examination he found the near one was a potato candle, which he was not supposed to see, and would start for bed in the dark. But he lighted the real candle and as he went across the parlor to his bedroom in the back of it, there was a rope tied just a foot or so above the floor. Richard did it. Another time a plank was set up inside the kitchen door that fell with a crash of thunder to let everyone in the house know that Ora had "got in". Going to the same church, Ora and Annie Wood had often seen each other. But one night at a "Donation Party" for the preacher, Ora came with an injured foot, on crutches. When it came supper time, Annie with generous impulse offered to help him to supper. In two years they were married."

Another entry from Titus-Capron and Related Families: "Ora was a Master Carpenter. A musician with the Phillipsville Band. Music was his delight. And the joy of his life was over when he moved his family to Union City, 1890, to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad - - They retired to the 'Hatch Hollow' area where the early pioneers - the hatches, Baldwins, Stowes, Donaldsons, Tituses had settled around 1830."

From 'A History of the Titus-Capron and Related Families', by Elroy Wilson Titus, 1984
"...the article is found on page 306 of Vol 1 and is titled 'A Visit to the Phillipsville/Union Cemetery, Venango Twp., Erie Co., Pennsylvania, with Miss Maud L. A. Titus, of Erie, Pennsylvania' A grave marked 'Kitty Titus' was seen, with graves nearby of her children Ellen and Alice, who died young. Katherine (Kitty) Sackett was the first wife of Edwin Titus, a son of Casper R. and Miriam C. (Sackett) Titus. She was a niece of Miriam (Sackett) Titus and a cousin of her husband, Edwin Titus. Edwin's grave was not seen, probably he is buried with his second wife, Elizabeth (Carr) Holmes, widow of Jim Holmes."

Obituary for Elizabeth Titus, died Jan. 6, 1964:
"Mrs. Elizabeth (Lizzie) Titus, ninety, of Phillipsville, a small community between Wattsburg and Erie, died Monday at her home. Mrs. Titus was born in Crawford Co., June 23, 1873, the daughter of Edwin and Mary Carr. She was the eldest of nine children. She was a resident of Erie Co. most of her life. She was married to James Holmes, who preceded her in death. She then was married to Edwin Titus in 1907. He also preceded her in death.

835. CASSIUS NAYLOR[9] TITUS (FRANKLIN WELLINGTON[8], JESSE[7], RICHARD[6], RICHARD[5], SAMUEL[4], SAMUEL[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born April 18, 1873. He married (1) REATHA JONES. He married (2) LYDA TAUBER. Cassius Titus was born in Amity Twp, Erie Co., PA. His first wife, Retha (Reatha, one census listed her as Dorothea,) died from peritonitis at childbirth. She is buried in Evergreen Cemetery, Union City, PA. There is no headstone. She is on the same plot as her parents, Myron and Clara Jones. Her brother Harvey, who was killed by a falling tree limb at the age of 21, is on the left side of his parents and Retha is on the right. When Retha died, her son Emory, about nine years old, went to live with grandmother Nancy Titus and her son Alton, (also known as Pete). The oldest daughter, Leida, about 6 years old, went to live with grandmother Clara Jones and her daughter Flossie. The youngest daughter, Ila, went to live with her uncle Charles Titus and his wife Mary, who had no children. There was no legal adoption, but marriage records list Ila's parents as Charles and Mary Titus.

When Emory was about 15 years old he lied about his age and joined the army in W.W.I. He was sent to France where he served as an ambulance driver. After his Grandmother Nancy Titus died he continued to live with his Uncle Alton (Pete) and his Aunt Edna. He never married. Leida lived with Grandmother and Aunt Flossie (Retha's sister, who was born when her parents were quite old and very near to Leida's age) until she was about 12 years old. We do not know where she lived later. She met her husband through a friend, Lillian March, of Centerville, Pa. Carl Bayse (Basey) was from Findlay, Ohio. They married in Dec 1921, and had two children. Leida died of tuberculosis at the age of 26.

After Retha died Cassius married Lyda Tauber of Spartansburg, PA. On Dec 17, 1941 she walked around the gates in front of an approaching train at the crossing in Spartansburg and was killed. Lyda had two sisters, Miss Freda Tauber of Youngstown, Ohio, Mrs John Conover of the Spartansburg area, and a brother, Harry Tauber of Bartlesville. Okla.

840. JOHN HENRY[9] TITUS (WILLIAM KNAPP[8], JOHN HUNGERFORD[7], JOHN[6], HENRY[5], JOHN[4], JOHN[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born 1860 in Jefferson, OH, and died Oct. 19, 1947 in Belleview Hospital, New York, NY. He married AGNES L. TRACY. Articles from The New York Times:

May 22, 1929: "John Henry Titus faces eviction from his home at 329 W 41st St. for non-payment of rent. In court he recites part of his poem, a collection is taken up, the judge donates $5 and $37.78 is collected."

May 24, 1929: "Bella Zilberman starts a fund for the maintenance of John. H. Titus, 83, who says that he is the author of 'The Face on the Barroom Floor.'"

Apr. 4, 1934: "John Henry Titus, 88, 503 W 45th St., sues Frank Harding, music publisher."

Oct. 20, 1947: "John Henry Titus, who for many years claimed authorship of the original version of the poem "The Face on the Bar Room Floor," died last night in Bellevue Hospital. His age was 94, according to his wife, who said the venerable poet's death resulted directly from shock and injuries suffered in a recent Florida hurricane. Mrs. Titus declared her husband, who was descended from an old New York family, had been living in Florida for the last three years after having passed many previous winters there. He entered Bellevue Hospital last Thursday. Mr. Titus never established clear title to authorship of the famous poem. Most of the glory has gone to Hugh Antoine D'Arcy, an actor of the Eighties and Nineties, who had told a convincing story of its origin before his death in 1925 at the age of 82.

Unbiased observers have held that both claimants appeared to be in the right to some extent -- that both had written different sets of verses on the same theme in widely different styles. Mr. Titus' version was published in the Ashtabula (Ohio) Sentinel in1872, while the poet was working as a tanner in Jefferson, O. The D'Arcy version appeared in the New York Dispatch in 1887. The Titus claim first was made public here in 1929 when the aged writer was a defendant in a rent case in the Municipal Court. After he had recited one or two verses, a collection was taken up in court that brought in $37.24. In the spring of 1934, Mr. Titus began a legal action against Frank Harding, a song publisher, for including the D'Arcy poem in an anthology with the title "The Face on the Barroom Floor." That title had been credited to Mr. Titus. Mr. D'Arcy's title had been "The Face Upon the Floor." (The two versions of parts of the poem follow in the obit.).

Mr. Titus was born in Ohio, but interviewers never learned just where. His father, he maintained, had been secretary to William Dean Howells when Mr. Howells ran the Ashtabula Sentinel. While working in a tannery by day, Mr. Titus wrote poetry at night. He was said to have written 1800 poems, the first one, "The Awkward Boy," having been composed when he was 12 years old. This was published in the McGuffey Readers. In his later years in this city Mr. Titus, who wore his white hair to his shoulders, would recite his ancient verses to anyone who visited his home. His gaunt frame usually was wrapped in a tattered purple bath-robe. It was said his best listener was Mrs. Titus, who never appeared to tire of his poetry."

He married SOPHIA LESLIE April 17, 1872. She was born Bet. 1830 - 1850. "... He was much interested in mathematics and philosophy, and gave particular attention to those branches of study. After his mother's death he went to High Falls, and lived one year with his uncle, James H. Van Demark; then was apprenticed for four years to L. B. Van Wagoner, of Kingston, to learn the carpenter's trade. For Mr. Van Wagoner he worked a few months after serving his apprenticeship, and in the spring of 1866 went to Newburg, where he remained a while, then returning to Mr. van Wagoner, continued with him until July, 1867, at which time he went to Red Hook and built a house and barn for William H. Teator. In Red Hook he remained about a year, and Aug. 3, 1868, came to Poughkeepsie, where he was engaged in journey man work until 1875, in which year he commenced his present business of contractor and builder. He is one of the oldest contractors in the city, and has built up a large and lucrative business, employing not less than fifteen men in the winter and as many as fifty men in the summer.

... our subject built the Vassar Hospital. He has also built the library and rectory at Wappingers Falls (for $25,000); Archibald Rogers' stables (for $43,000); State Hospital, section E, and Doctor's residence and attendance house; the dormitory at Vassar College, and four cottages at the same place; Mrs. Jackman's residence (for $23,000); the Thorn memorial school at Millbrook (for $80,000); and the private residences of I. R. Adriance and William Adriance. Mr., Titus has built many of the largest buildings in the city and Co.. He also had the contracts for the building of Recitation hall at Vassar College, and the Adriance Library.

... In politics Mr. Titus is a Democrat, but in local matters votes independently; in religious faith he is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church; socially he is affiliated with Triune Lodge No. 92, and belongs to all the branch lodges, chapters and commanderies, being a past officer in the order. He has always been a public-spirited man, is extensive reader, well informed on all current topics, is a typical self-made man, and in business one of the most successful.

848. WILLET[9] TITUS (OLIVER[8], JOSHUA[7], JOSHUA[6], JAMES[5], JOHN[4], JOHN[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born 1870, and died 1924. He married HARRIET BURT HEGEMAN, daughter of SAMUEL HEGEMAN and AMELIA WIGGINS. She was born 1872, and died 1950. From a biography of Burt H. Titus written by his son, Peter Hegeman Titus: "... Willet and Harriet bought what is now the Titus homestead in Jericho in ____. In 1908 they built the farmhouse on the hill. While it was being built, they lived in an older but serviceable house near the Bauer house. The new house was a modern home for it's day. Two stories with an attic, 7 rooms, 4 bedrooms, living room, dining room, kitchen and pantry. There was indoor plumbing, a bathroom upstairs - tub, toilet, etc. The downspouts fed a cistern which fed a tank in the basement that was hand pressurized with air to provide running water. There was a furnace in the basement with steam throughout the house. It had a slate roof, natural siding, and trim painted white. The house was built wired for electricity, but electricity had not come to that part of Jericho in 1908. They used kerosene lamps for light. In 1914 telephone service came through. They were on a party line, and had to listen to the rings to determine if the call was for them - two long, two short, etc...

... Granddad Willet raised pigs for slaughter, kept chickens, and raised potatoes and vegetables. Dad remembers his father and Mr. Hines cutting seed potatoes in the back of the barn in March in preparation for spring planting. Originally they had a cow for milk. Granddad Willet had a helper, Mike Kildaney, who milked the cow. He lived in a small room in the barn. Later they bought their milk from a dairy on the Hudson estate. In the winter he used his team of horses to do excavation and grading in the estates being built on the North shore of Long Island. Willet Sr. had a farm sled that he used in the winter to do heavy hauling. He also used it to bring the kids along Oyster Bay Road to school. Main roads were paved with macadam..."

From a letter by Willet's daughter Elizabeth:
"My dear Aunt Sarah, You can't guess what we have. Sat. Morning Irma Van-Nostrand was down to see me and in the afternoon Willet and I went down their When I was coming home just as I was coming in the yard I seen papa just coming out He asked us if we wanted to go with him for a ride of course we did. So he took us down and then went up to Bayless. Then home I looked up the eggs and then went to the house. I stayed in the kitchen until Miss Ferris came down and told be to go up stairs When I got half way up stairs When she asked me if I new what was up there I said no, when I got to mammas room I saw a cradle and so now you know what we've got, a Dear little baby brother I think his name is Burt Born Aug 8 Wieged 10 pounds when born Willet looked at him and said Baby that night when Baby cried Willet Woke me and said Baby cry He has a lot of hair and black papa told me to copy it and send it to you I had just written one to Nellie I will close now Your Loving Niece Elizabeth W Titus."

890. EPENETUS[9] TITUS (DAVID[8], EPENETUS[7], HENRY W.[6], TIMOTHY[5], JACOB[4], JOHN[3], EDMOND[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Oct. 17, 1862 in Long Island, NY, and died June 04, 1925 in Newburgh, NY. He married PHOEBE MARIA SUYDAM May 03, 1888 in Queens Village, NY, daughter of ISAAC SUYDAM and PHEBE RYDER. She was born May 03, 1862 in Queens Village, NY, and died Oct. 01, 1940. He purchased a 60 acre farm in Town of Newburgh on Union Ave. near Washington Lake in 1907. He was Secretary of the Newburgh Vegetable Growers in 1917-19. They moved with their three children from Long Island to Orange Co., NY in 1907. Their home was known as the Hermitage and was located in the town of Newburgh on Union Ave. about 3/4 to 1 mile north of Little Britain Road on the west side of Union Ave. (Near where a Wal-mart stands today).

A newspaper article written about 1917 says: "EP TITUS CELEBRATES TENTH ANNIVERSARY
Ep. Titus, the secretary of the Newburgh Vegetable Growers came to Orange county ten years ago today. He drove here with his wife and family of three children from Floral Park, Long Island, between Jamaica and Mineola, where his people have lived for some time, and established himself on one of Orange county's farms. Since then he has taken a prominent part in the deliberations and experiments and daily routine of the progressive farmers of the county. Mr. Titus' summing up of the results of the change is succinctly shown in his remark, this morning, that, although he was very fond and very proud of the place of his birth, he would not give up his home in Orange County. to go back there. In the ten years he has been in Orange County, Mr. Titus has made more friends than most men make in a life time."

Another newspaper article on Jan. 19, 1921: "LEAGUE GRANGE EXCHANGE INTERESTS FARMERS HERE
Ep Titus has become the Orange Co. representative of the Co-operative Grange League Federated Exchange, Inc., and already has sold stock valued at $37,000 in Orange Co.. The stock holders are privileged to purchase feed for their farm and dairy stock at wholesale and in a few months he has placed 60 carloads in Orange Co., 17 car loads being disposed of on the switch at West Newburgh. He left here last evening for Chester with a view to opening another agency and distributing center at that place. Mr. Titus has a 60 acre farm, is Newburgh town chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Farm Bureau, director in the Orange Co. Agricultural Society, district manager for Grange Life Insurance Company, secretary of the Newburgh Vegetable Grower's Association, director of the Orange Co. Farm Bureau, and of the Newburgh Town Farmers Association, so that altogether he is a busy man."

Prominent in the management of the Orange Co. Fair and in the Orange Co. Farm Bureau and of the Newburgh Town Farmers Association. Master of Brookside Grange for several terms. Enumerator for the 1920 census for the 6th District of the Town of Newburgh. Walked with a severe limp caused by an injury to his foot in a mowing accident when he was young and wore a special support boot.

896. GEORGE BENJAMIN[9] TITUS (GERMOND[8], STEPHEN BENJAMIN[7], BENJAMIN[6], AUGUSTIN[5], RICHARD[4], JAMES[3], PETER[2], EDMOND[1]) was born Jan. 28, 1856 in Monroe, NY, and died Nov. 23, 1936 in Monroe, NY. He married EMMALINE SHERRY March 01, 1881 in Monroe, NY, daughter of JAMES SHERRY. She was born Oct. 23, 1852 in Irondequoit, Monroe, NY, and died July 25, 1945. His obituary from 1936: "Another member of the Titus family, pioneers in Irondequoit, died this week after a life spent in the town. He was G. Benjamin Titus, 80, who died Monday in his home, 411 Titus Avenue. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday from his home and burial was in Riverside Cemetery. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma Titus; two daughters, Mrs. Caroline T. Simmons and Miss L. Leone Titus; one brother, Seymour Titus and four grandchildren.

For many years Mr. Titus was one of the more prominent gardeners in Irondequoit. His father, German Titus, was one of the first market gardeners in the town and enjoyed having a highway, Titus Avenue, named after him. When Mr. Titus retired from active farming about 15 years ago his property was divided into building lots. He had spent his entire life in the town."

Excerpts from an article in the Irondequoit Press, Nov. 19, 1970:

"Bright Flowers bloomed early and late this summer in the tiny yard at 411 Titus Avenue. It is fitting that one of the original homes of Irondequoit's gardening Tituses should carry on as a miniature nursery - even though the last member of the Titus family to live there, Miss L. Leone Titus died in July in her 87th year. About a decade has passed since Miss Leone last tended her flower beds and her vegetable patch at the homestead where she spent nearly her whole lifetime.

G. Benjamin Titus, Miss Leone's father built the house and, some twenty years later, journeyed to Buffalo at the close of the Pan-American Exposition to purchase glass from the dismantled exhibition halls for use in his green houses. Having some panes left over, he used them to enclose his side porch. These panes are still in place after nearly seventy years.

In 1928 "Ben" Titus sold 6-1/2 acres of his land at the end of Rogers Parkway as a site for St. Margaret Mary's Church and School... Ben's wife, Ammaline Sherry, was born in 1852 on a farm where Durand Eastman Park now lies, and when she died at the age of 93, she was the oldest native-born Irondequoiter. Her father, James Sherry, served three times as Supervisor of Irondequoit, in 1854, 1855 and 1863.

There were really three Titus "sections" of Irondequoit a hundred years ago. In the first, along "Little Ridge", now Titus Avenue, G. Benjamin's brothers Seymour and Adelbert, lived on either side of him, and their father, German (originally Germond) lived across from them on the north side of the road. All held many acres of land and all engaged in gardening..."

He married HELEN ADELAIDE TIMMS 1914 in Brooklyn, NY, daughter of JOHN TIMMS and ELIZABETH MURPHY. She was born Aug. 23, 1894 in Brooklyn, NY, and died May 20, 1969. His obituary from the New York Times, Dec. 22, 1959: "Austin E. Titus, a secretary of the Police Department during the Administration of the late Mayor James J. Walker, died Sunday while being taken to Long Island College Hospital in Brooklyn. His age was 72. He had suffered a heart attack on the street near his home at 147 Clinton Street, Brooklyn. Since 1948 Mr. Titus had been confidential assistant to John R. Crews, Kings Co. Republican chairman. A close friend of Mayor Walker and other public officials, Mr. Titus was appointed secretary of the Police Department, a civilian post, by Commissioner Grover A. Whalen to succeed the late James P. Sinnott in June, 1929, when Mr. Sinnott was named Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner. He also served under Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, retiring in 1933.

A native of San Angelo, TX, Mr. Titus was brought to Brooklyn at the age of 7. In 1905 he played end on the Erasmus Hall High School football team. He became an investigator for the Aetna Life Insurance Company and in 1925 joined Titus, Guilfoyle and Connor, said to have been the first marine insurance brokerage firm to be established in New York. Later Mr. Titus became associated as publicity director with Jack Fugazy in the promotion of prize fights. These included the Paul Berlenbach-Jack Delaney, the Harry Greb-Mickey Walker and the Jack Sharkey-Harry Wills bouts.

When named to the police post, Mr. Titus was vice president of the Titus Water Engineering Corp. In 1937 he was appointed as the first chief investigator of the new Rackets Bureau of the Brooklyn District Attorney's office. Two years later he became publicity director of the Will Hays Office in Hollywood, CA, a post he held until his association with Mr. Crews.

Surviving are his widow, Helen; three sons, Austin, Jr., a lawyer, and Silas and George, both former college and professional football players; two daughters, Mrs. Virginia Meyer and Mrs. Elizabeth O'Brien; two sisters, Mrs. Genevieve Murnane and Mrs. Helen Stanley, and 19 grandchildren."

She married MANUEL BALAGUER, son of Jose BALAGUER and Sofia RABASSA. Manuel was born in 1899 and died in 1959. Excerpts from "A Family History" by Melchor Balaguer and Marcella Roccatagliata Balaguer, 1995: "In Barcelona in the early 1920's, Manuel graduated from the university as a mechanical and electrical engineer. Perhaps because engineering jobs were difficult to find in Spain then, or because going to American in the import/export business seemed exiting, Manuel went to America with his brother Joaquim and his uncle Juan. There was another circumstance, seemingly unrelated, that might conceivably have influence Manuel's state of mind, and thus his decision to go abroad. He had been drafted into the Army, probably shortly after graduating from college... Over the years, Manuel held many different engineering jobs. He spent years at the Brooklyn Navy Yard as a civilian engineer. In 1953, he had an assignment to work all summer in Alaska on the "DEW Line": the Distant Early Warning shield of mammoth interlocking radar installations, the world's first ICBM detection-and-warning system...

... Emma was probably a fairly typical young woman of her time, with perhaps a extra helping of neuroses. She defined success in terms of marriage, and so was always scanning the environment for her future husband. Certain restrictions were fairly obvious: for instance a doctor or policeman would be clearly unsuitable because she would certainly be unable to cope with the hours they would keep. And given the common knowledge of the time that insanity was hereditary, one should surely exercise appropriate cautions in that delicate area. Yet dreaming and planning are one thing, but a real proposal another, so Emma found herself engaged to the brother of a genuine certified nut job...

... Manuel and Joaquim went to New York from Spain in the early 1920's to make their fortune in their Uncle Juan Rabassa's import-export business. In 1924, Juan and Manuel returned to Spain for business dealings, leaving Joaquim ('Kim') in charge of the New York operation. One night he took a girl named Emma Titus to the opera. Emma had met Kim through her brother-in-law Edward Raftery. Maurice Grady, a business associate of Edward's knew Kim through business, and introduced this 'foreigner-by-himself' to Edward, who invited him to dinner one night while Ema was living with Edward and her sister Marie.

Very soon thereafter, Kim had some sort of psychiatric crisis, which turned him into St. Francis Xavier. He marched up and down in front of the Plaza Hotel in New York, naked and carrying a large cross. Back in Spain, Manuel was quickly dispatched back to New York to spring his brother from Bellevue Hospital's rubber room. In attempting to recreate the circumstance surrounding Kim's breakdown, he contacted the last person to have seen Kim socially: Manuel called the Raftery house looking for Emma. Marie answered the phone and invited him to dinner. Emma always compulsively scanning the environment for Mr. Right, was on this particular evening very tired after work, and in no mood for company. Declining to dress for dinner, she settled for brushing her hair before going downstairs to meet her sister's guest. That weekend, on Palm Sunday 1924, Manuel took Emma for a carriage-ride through Central Park, and then to tea at the Plaza Hotel. They were engaged a week later, on Easter Sunday..."

915. GENEVIEVE[9] TITUS (SILAS WRIGHT[8], SILAS[7], STEPHEN[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born April 07, 1895 in New York. She married WALTER DENNIS MURNANE. They lived at 6th Avenue and Carol Street in Brooklyn, NY at the M. L. Murnane & Son Funeral Home. The family later moved to Sayville, Long Island. According to "A Family History" by Melchor Balaguer and Marcella Roccatagliata Balaguer, 1995: "Genevieve and Walter wanted to elope. They had a close personal friend who was a priest, and they persuaded him to agree to marry them. Genevieve told Alice Hill, a family friend, of their plan. Alice agonized for hours about what to do with the information. Finally she decided that she was duty-bound to inform Genevieve's father, Silas Wright Titus. As an influential layman, he called the Chancellor of the diocese to have the elopement stopped. The Chancellor immediately contacted the priest and ordered him not to perform the marriage, but it was too late. Genevieve and Walter went on to have nine children. Walter joined his mother in running the family funeral parlor.

According to Mary Elizabeth Titus, "Genevieve was a charming, jovial lady who bore many losses. She buried 6 sons in her lifetime, but never ceased to be grateful for was she received."

916. MARIE ANTIONETTE[9] TITUS (SILAS WRIGHT[8], SILAS[7], STEPHEN[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born June 1900, and died Sep. 29, 1944 in New York. She married EDWARD CHARLES RAFTERY. He was born Oct. 04, 1897 in North Brookfield, MA, and died May 15, 1967 in New York City. From a letter by Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien, Oct., 2000: "I got in touch with Ellen (Raftery) Koehne when Paul (O'Brien) started writing the Col's history as I recalled the group pictures hanging in the Raftery's living room when I was a child. She and I kept in touch after that and met once for lunch, after 54 years of not seeing one another. She's now 68. Her dad Ed Raftery was a college friend of my mother's brother Joe Timms at Holy Cross. Ed was from Massachusetts but came to New York City to go to Fordham Law. He met Marie at my granmom's (Timms) house (on 6th Ave.), they were neighbors of the Titus family on Park Slope Brooklyn (a very fashionable place to live at the time - all brownstones). Ed Raftery went on to become a partner in a prestigious New York Law firm and an Anti-Trust expert. He ultimately became the lawyer for a group called "United Artists", a partnership between Douglas Fairbanks Sr, Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin. He was made first President of United Artists, Inc."

She was a sweet, kind, loving, unassuming lady who was loved in return by all who knew her. Her first child died as an infant. She then had three more wonderful children. She had met her husband Ed at the Timms home on 6th Ave, Brooklyn. He was a fellow law student at Fordham U. of Joe Timms, they had been together at Holy Cross also. After years of suffering with heart disease Marie died at age forty four. Her funeral was held at "Our Lady Queen of Martyrs", Forest Hills, NY. Because of her husbands connections the flowers from famous people filled a huge room from floor to ceiling.

From a conversation with Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien, she remembers Edward C. Raftery Sr. being a very generous person. Apparently several of his wife's family members found themselves down on their luck in life and business and Edward Sr. supported several families including his own.

New York Times Obituary, May 15, 1967:
"Edward C. Raftery, a trial lawyer, long active in motion picture and theater litigation, died Monday in Doctors Hospital. He was 69 years old and lived at 80-15 41st Avenue, Jackson Heights, Queens. Mr. Raftery was a partner in the law firm of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery of 152 West 42nd Street. He was president of United Artists Corporation, motion picture distributors, from 1941 to 1947. Mr. Raftery was described yesterday by an associate as 'a very jovial, kindly man, who never had a harsh word to say about anyone, and a man of exceptionally good memory, who prepared cases in his mind and, unlike other lawyers, rarely referred to papers in the course of a trial.' Mr. Raftery was a specialist in antitrust law, and represented the motion picture industry in cases throughout the country.

He was born in North Brookfield, Mass., spent his early youth in Milford, Mass., and was graduated from Holy Cross College in 1918. After serving in the Army overseas in World War I, he became associated with O'Brien, Malevinsky & Driscoll in 1919. He was graduated from Fordham Law School in 1921 and was admitted to the New York bar. He became a member of the firm in 1933, and the name was changed to O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery.

RKO THEATERS DIRECTOR
His firm was general counsel for United Artists from 1919 to about 1955. He was a director and counsel for R.K.O Theaters, United Artists Theater Circuit, Inc., and Shea Theater Enterprises. He was a member of the advisory board of the Chemical Bank New York Trust Company, Times Square branch. His firm had acted for Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Fred Waring, Arthur Godfrey, Sam H. Harris, George M. Cohan, Irving Berlin, Jack Dempsey, Charles Coburn, Richard Barthelmess, Richard Dix and Walter Winchell, and handled the incorporation of the Pepsi-Cola Company.

Mr. Raftery had been active in many important copyright litigations, involving such properties as "White Cargo", "Abie's Irish Rose", "Letty Lynton", "Rebecca", and "The Spider". He was a member of the Guild of Catholic Lawyers..."

(2) HOWELL COBB SMITH, March 04, 1893, Bonham, Fannin Co., Texas; b. May 1851, Cobb Co., Georgia; d. Aug. 1905, Lamasco, Fannin Co., Texas. From

"Descendants of John Calvin Titus" by Leonard Smith, June 2001: "When Susanna married Howell Cobb, she had already been married once to William A. Cagle, having married him on the 28th day of April 1889. It seems that after a couple of years, Mr. Cagle decided to go to Paris and seek work. He left by horse back, and was never heard from again. When Howell Cobb died suddenly in 1905, Susanna (nicknamed Sudie) found herself with six children, five of them below the age of twelve. Sudie's father had died in 1900, and her mother had moved to Boswell, in Choctaw Co., Oklahoma, to be near most of her children. So, Sudie took her youngsters, and moved to Bennington, Byron Co., Oklahoma, to be near her mother and siblings. In the 1910 census, she is actually listed as Sudie Smith. The family lived in that area until about 1917, when they moved back to the Honey Grove area. She remained in that area and watched her children grow up and marry. Sudie never remarried, and was a widow for 52 years before passing away in 1957, in a rest home in Savoy, a small town west of Bonham."

She was born Aug. 03, 1887 in Red River Co., TX, and died Feb. 02, 1930 in Paris, Lamar Co., TX. From a letter by O. Lynne Titus, Nov. 29, 2000, Grand Prairie, Texas: "... My grandfather, Charles Jackson "Charlie" Titus, continued to work what was left (about 200 acres) of the old James Titus Headright Survey near Savannah, Texas. On Feb. 21, 1904, he married Georgia Mae Mace. They had ten children. My father, Ollie Pirtle Titus, was the 4th born on Jan. 9, 1910 on the old plantation. My grandfather worked very hard his entire life as a farmer. He never learned to drive a vehicle, but preferred the wagon or horseback. My father said that once he and some of his brothers got "Pa Pa" in a car in the pasture and tried to show him how to drive. He made a meager attempt, but was not interested in this new venture in the least. He had lived too long in another generation. Pa Pa became ill and died on March 23, 1935 in the Paris Sanitarium in Paris, Lamar Co., Texas. It is a hospital that no longer exists. My grandmother, Georgia Mae Titus, died in the same facility on Jan. 2, 1930."

"Delia Rose Titus was born to Elsie Jane Barr and Ralph Herbert Titus on Nov. 18, 1917. She was named after her Grandmother, Delia Elliot, from Indiana. Delia (Dee) graduated from Pilger HS in 1934 at 16 years old. This same year, the Class of 1934 won the Nebraska State Basketball Championship before there were class distinctions between schools. (such as double A and Triple A) In other words, their class of 33 students beat schools the size of Omaha Central!! She started teaching country school that fall and had approx. 12 kids from grades 1 - 8. She turned 17 in Nov. A couple of the boys were bigger than she was and would come in and start the wood stove for her in the morning. She taught there for 3 years. Dee managed to get some college done by attending classes in the summers; 2 years at Wayne State and one year at the Univ. of Nebr. She met Samuel Richard McCleneghan in 1938 while teaching in Valley, Nebr. and married him in 1940. Sam subsequently dropped his middle name, and became known as Sam McCleneghan Jr. Dee has two sons: Sam McCleneghan III and Kim McCleneghan"
ii. JANELLE TITUS, m. JOSEPH LINDAHL, b. Oct 2, 1919. "Janelle (Jan) Marion Titus was born on Oct. 2, 1919. She was Delia's younger sister and was born on the same day as her mother , Elsie. She attended Wayne State for 2 years and than finished her degree at Greeley Colo. (Now Univ. of No. Colo.) She met her husband, Virgil Y (Joe) Lindahl, a football player, who later became the Athletic Director, there and married him in 1943. They had one daughter, Jane Ellen Lindahl. Jan died of pancreatic cancer. Dee, as her older sister, said that as she and Jan had to share the same bed, Dee would make her sleep on top of the sheets so they didn't have to make the bed each morning! As I write this, I have tears in my eyes thinking about my Aunt Jan and all the things our families did. She was a beautiful person."

978. LAFAYETTE[10] TITUS (GEORGE MOORE GARY[9], WILLIAM M.[8], JOHN[7], JOHN[6], EBENEZER[5], JOHN[4], JOHN[3], JOHN[2], ROBERT[1]) was born May 1846, and died Jan. 04, 1914 in Rohnerville, California. He married LUCY BOWMAN July 13, 1879 in Petrolia, CA. After getting married they moved to Sacramento. Later moved back to northern California. He gained a reputation as a bear hunter in the Mattole Valley. The Humbolt Times reported in 1903 that he had killed four bears weighing 400 pounds each. "He also had a team of horses that he used to do plowing for other ranchers in the valley. He sometimes cut, sawed and hauled wood, selling some to provide extra money for family needs. His youngest daughter Bea, remembers that she never got a spanking from him. He wore a long beard and moustache, as was customary at that time. One day he shaved them off and frightened all the children. They thought he was a stranger in the house. He was a very handsome man and I suppose the Titus good looks are handed down from Lafayette..."

He married EVA BERYL ANDREWS Oct. 11, 1911. She was born Dec. 18, 1890, and died June 19, 1968. Excerpts from an autobiographical story written by Leroy W. Titus in 1976, printed in "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus", John Alva Titus, 1987: "I was born in Winthrop Center, ME April 29th, 1884, in a small house that my daughter-in-law painted a picture of and I now have hanging in my living room. My father worked in the paint shop at that time for C.M. Bailey, painting linoleum carpets. My uncle Charles was a small man, Father was about 200 lbs.. The carpets ran through a big paint tub 20 or 30 gallons of paint, one man on one side and one on the other with long handle ladles that held about a gallon. There were 5 or 6 carpets high. I've heard Father tell that when they got dry they would take them all down. Uncle would get upset because he couldn't keep up. I remember Father said once Uncle Charles said that if he was 10 feet tall and weighed 500 he would snap the hell out of them. Father was the boss painter, he got 20 dollars for a ten hour day. My mother belonged to the Quaker Church and I can remember hearing Irvin and Elwood Bailey and their wives singing in the choir. That's why I named my oldest son Elwood...

... I remember when I was five years old, at Christmas the folks bought my brother and me two sharp shooter sleds and hid them under the bed upstairs. They went away for a while one afternoon before Christmas and when they came home we had them out and was sliding on them. Mert was four. We were living in another house then. Father had a horse, there was some small windows in back of the horse stall where we shoveled out the dressing. One day I can remember it now, Mert and I were playing in back of the stable. I wanted to cut out some sods, Mert was inside, and I told him to throw out the hatchet. He threw it out the window and it struck me in the back of the head. I have the scar now...

... I remember Father telling about one time he used to trade horses. So one day he took the day from the factory and went out to trade. He traded three or four times and finally traded back and got the same one that he started with. My grandfather Thomas was living with us so when Father got home at night with the same horse Grandfather said, you have done a big thing today, lost your days work of 2.00 and come back with the same old horse. Father said that he took out his wallet and counted out $50.00, that he had more than he started with..."

The entire story printed in "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus", by John Alva Titus, 1987 is about 10 pages long. It is an interesting account of life in the late 1800's and early 1900's. I recommend it as further reading for anyone researching the Titus family in New England. (LJT)

He married JENNIE MAY GUSSMAN 1896 in Point Arena, Mendocino Co., CA, daughter of BELINDA JACQUES. She was born March 27, 1880 in Sonoma Co., CA, and died July 02, 1953 in Point Arena, Mendocino Co., CA. When Ernest was about five years old, the family moved to the Sacramento Valley in CA by way of the transcontinental railroad lines. "While living in San Francisco, Ernest worked as a brakeman for the famous San Francisco cable cars. His other work included working as an (architect). In 1895 Ernest traveled up north up the coast to visit a cousin. He traveled by ship, as there were no roads from San Francisco that traversed the roughed coastal region. His destination was Point Arena, as that was the only place where a person could safely disembark from a ship...

When Ernest had finished his visit he returned to Point Arena to wait for transportation back to San Francisco. Weather was bad and the ship couldn't tie up to the pier. After waiting some time outside of the break waters for a change in weather the ship finally continued its journey south. Ernest was stranded in Point Arena. While waiting for the weather to change and for a ship to return and dock, he went to a church dance. He met Jennie Gussman at the dance. She was playing the piano... Ernest returned to San Francisco. He couldn't get Jennie off his mind, so he returned to Point Arena. They were married and both returned to San Francisco and Stockton..."

The following is a hand written obituary for Cynthia (King) Titus written by her husband, Anson O. Titus: presented in Elroy Wilson Titus' "A History of the Titus-Capron and related families": "1898. Union City, Pa. Today, Dec 2, 1898, I have lain to rest my sweet Cynthia at the age of twenty-three years nine months and 24 days. She was born on the seventh of Feby. 1875 and died on the 1st day of Dec. 1898 at 2 a.m. Hers was one of the sweetest lives that ever cast sunshine on the earth and I fully realize what I have lost. We were married on the seventeenth day of Oct. 1894. Our union broken by death at the expiration of four years one month and fourteen days, has been blessed by one child Pauline Electa, born March 14th, 1897, at six o'clock in the morning. We were married at Erie, Pa. At the residence of Rev. Howard McCreary, a Universalist minister. Rev. H. H. Barber officiated at her funeral. She died of Typhoid fever and heart complications at the expiration of twenty days."

He married MARGURITE E. MONFORT May 11, 1935, daughter of BURTIS MONFORT and MAUDE HYDE. She was born 1914. From a biography of Burt H. Titus written by his son, Peter Hegeman Titus: "... Burt first attended the Jericho school, which was a two story four room school. Two grades in each room. Dad (Burt) Titus went to school with black kids from a neighborhood down Cedar Swamp Road. When Dad was small they had six Norway Maples planted as saplings along Oyster Bay Road. Dad still has the invoice for the trees and their planting. At this time there weren't many trees. It was open country with trees were cut to clear for farms, and for firewood. The Maples were huge by the time I (P. Titus) was a kid. I would wait for the school bus under one of them at the end of the drive. Dad went to Quaker First Day School when he was a young boy in Jericho. He was too young to go to meeting. Willet and Harriet were married in an Episcopal service.

Dad said that they were pretty excited when Teddy Roosevelt rode down Oyster Bay Road on horseback to the Mineola courthouse. This would have been after most of Roosevelt's accomplishments, and he would have been one of the most famous men in the world... ... When Dad was young, Elizabeth had a pony cart and would use it to shop, visit friends and relatives, cousin Eugene Williams in Syosset near the railway station. In 1917 Grandfather Willet, Burt and he and his mother, brother Willet and sister Elizabeth moved to Westbury. The farm was sold to Maude Barger-Wallach for $30,000...

... Elizabeth, Burt and his brother Willet attended Friends Academy, a Quaker School on Long Island. Burt went off to Swarthmore College to study engineering, but did not find it to his liking, and began a career in banking. He attended Packard Business school in New York City... ... On May 11, 1935 he and Marguerite E. Monfort were married in a civil ceremony, owing to the difficult times. In 1943 his first son was born and Burt was shortly thereafter drafted into the army... ... He served in Hawaii in the medical supply branch. He spent 180 months at Hickman Field. He worked at a share house handling inventory and shipping medical supplies around the Pacific.

"... in the late 20's and early 30's Arthur's sons Earl and Kenneth worked as bellhops at the Somerset Hotel in Rockland, ME., during the spring and summer months. In the fall, they went with the staff to the Breakers Hotel in Florida. One cold wet spring, they were returning to Rockland, with a few days stop over with their Father in New York City, (he owned a cigar store at 659 Ninth Ave and 27 Duane St.) Arriving in the wee hours, they decided not to disturb the family. Using their key they let themselves into the back room of the cigar store. Upon entering, Earl spied the wood burning cook stove and well stocked wood box. Knowing a fire would make them more comfortable, Earl proceeded to start a good hot fire going. He not knowing the oven was well stocked with boot-legged whiskey. As the oven temperature rose, so did the stoppers in the bottles. The oven door departed from the stove following an explosion. Needless to say, the store was "Closed for Repairs" and was deodorized for several days..."

He married MARGARET WELLER in Telluride, Colorado, daughter of JAMES CRAIG WELLER. He was educated in Boston, MA and became an agent for the U.S. Vanadium Co. in Colorado. He was lost in Death Valley under mysterious circumstances in June 1906. Titus Canyon in Death Valley is named after him.

From "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus":
"Edgar Titus who was personally acquainted with many of the executives of several mining companies, and Earl Weller (Edgar's brother-in-law) signed a Tram Way contract with a mining concern at Rhyolite, Nevada and moved their Tramway company to Rhyolite. Earl continued managing the business and Edgar formed a prospecting group. He found a nice gold bearing lode in the Panamint Range on the west side of Death Valley. In June of 1906 Edgar, Earl and an employee lost their way in Death Valley. the employee returned alone to Rhyolite, Nevada and told several varying stories concerning the disappearance of Edgar and Earl. James C. Weller conducted three separate search parties into Death Valley. All to no avail. It was his opinion that some radical pro-labor faction ambushed Edgar and Earl. At this point we should note that Titus Canyon in Death Valley is named after Edgar Maurice Titus. Hollywood made a feature film on Edgar Titus' disappearance many years ago. It is believed that it was included in the Death Valley Days episodes. At that time there was a celebration of this film, where the family was invited."

1334. iv. EILEEN ANN TITUS, b. Oct. 19, 1955, Brooklyn, Kings Co., New York.

1125. SILAS JOHN[10] TITUS (AUSTIN EDWARD[9], SILAS WRIGHT[8], SILAS[7], STEPHEN[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Sep. 23, 1918 in Brooklyn, NY, and died Feb. 17, 1989. He married JEANETTE DONAHUE July 15, 1950 in Pittsburgh, PA. She was born June 24, 1925 in Pittsburgh, PA. From The New York Times, March 13, 1945: "Worcester, MA. Mar. 12. Marine Lieut. Si Titus of Brooklyn, former star center on the Holy Cross football team, was wounded at Iwo Jima. He was a veteran of two amphibious invasions [actually five invasions] and was one of the first marines to land on Saipan. His brother, George, who captained the 1943 Holy Cross team, was commissioned a naval ensign last week."

His obituary: "Silas J. Titus, a broker with Corporate Investment International and former owner and president of Titus Vending Corp., died of a heart attack Friday in St. Clair Memorial Hospital. Mr. Titus, 70, was a native of Brooklyn, NY, but had lived in Mt. Lebanon for the past 28 years. He was a 1940 [actually 1939] graduate of Holy Cross College and had played center and linebacker for the Steelers in 1940. Mr. Titus was a Marine Corps veteran of World War II and received the Silver Star and the Purple Heart while serving as a first lieutenant in the South Pacific. He was a member of the Pittsburg Steelers Alumni Association, the Pittsburg Field Club and of St. Bernard Church in Mt. Lebanon..."

From his sister, Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien-Fritz, written August, 2003: "He captained the '39 N.Y. Herald Tribune (a top NY newspaper) All Star Team vs. the NY Giants football team. A benefit game for a children's charity – "The Fresh Air Fund" – held at the Polo Grounds. He played with the '39 Bklyn Dodger football team and the '40, '41 Pgh Steelers before enlisting in WWII.

Si was a legend to those who knew him. After the war he became an astute business man. He established a vending company that served the steel factories in the Ohio River Valley outside Pittsburgh and built it up to serve plants in Ohio and West VA. He was always active in the Steelers organization and had many friends among the managers and players. He ws also active in his church St. Bernards, Mt. Lebanon. He loved to golf and ski and did both regularly. Si and Jeanette had seven children and cared for them dearly. He had great faith and attended daily mass. His death at 70 was unexpected and stunned everyone deeply. Si was a larger than life person – well loved and sorely missed."

1126. VIRGINIA MARIE[10] TITUS (AUSTIN EDWARD[9], SILAS WRIGHT[8], SILAS[7], STEPHEN[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born March 09, 1920 in Brooklyn, NY, and died Aug. 21, 1988. She married EDWARD GERALD MEYER April 18, 1947 in Brooklyn, NY, son of EDWARD MEYER and LILLIAN RODGERS. He was born Dec. 09, 1911 in Manhattan, NY, and died Feb. 11, 1986.

Written by her sister, Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien-Fritz August, 2003: "Virginia Marie Titus was a loyal, loving, generous and kind person. She had a very strong sense of right, courage and character. She loved her children, her faith and her church. She was unselfishly charitable and cared about the underprivileged and the underdog. Like her brothers she was a good athlete; swimmer, diver and a basketball player in high school. She loved school and was never able to fulfill her dream of being a teacher. College was not an option for her because of the depression. She went to work after high school at the Federal Reserve Bank in lower Manhattan for $5 per week. She shared that with her brothers who were on scholarships at college and had no other resources. She went on to business school at night and became a top flight executive secretary. She and Ed raised six great children, whose dedication to each other and their own children is a tribute to their parents memory.

Children of VIRGINIA TITUS and EDWARD MEYER are:

1341. i. CATHERINE LABOURNE[11] MEYER, b. Dec. 31, 1947, Brooklyn, NY.
ii. EDWARD ALBERT MEYER, b. Dec. 15, 1948; m. ROSINA COMMUNALE.
1342. iii. MARY ANN MEYER, b. Feb. 02, 1951, Brooklyn, NY.
1343. iv. VIRGINIA T. MEYER, b. May 28, 1952.
v. JOHN TIMMS MEYER, b. Aug. 23, 1955; m. LYNN DOWLING.
vi. HELEN TIMMS MEYER, b. Dec. 31, 1957; m. JOSEPH MURRAY.

1127. GEORGE TIMMS[10] TITUS (AUSTIN EDWARD[9], SILAS WRIGHT[8], SILAS[7], STEPHEN[6], SILAS[5], ABIEL[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Jan. 07, 1922 in Brooklyn, NY, and died Sep. 2001. He married AGNES VIRGINIA CALLAHAN, daughter of ARTHUR CALLAHAN and AGNES KERRIGAN. She was born May 25, 1926 in Brooklyn, NY.

Written by his sister, Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien-Fritz August, 2003: "George was a classic. He will always be remembered for his smile and his laugh. He was close to his siblings and stayed in contact often. Over the middle years of his life he had 3 open heart surgeries. He and Agnes very wisely decided to retire early rather than risk disability. They moved to Florida and made all the adjustments needed to live a simple life. They had much sadness over the years. Their first born Michael lived a short three weeks and their second son Timmy died as a young man. Their children Mimi and Steve are a credit to them. George was the most outgoing in the family, well liked and lots of fun. It was a thrill to see him on the football field and his speed on the track team. He served in World War II, received his Ensign Lt. commission after graduating a program called "Thirty Day Wonders". Before that he captained the Holy Cross College football team in his senior year, which defeated their arch rival Boston College. It was the last game of the season, the weekend before Thanksgiving. The two teams had agreed to a pact that the winners would host the losers to a party at the "Coconut Grove" night club afterward. As it happened someone neglected to make reservations and they were unable to get in. That night the club burned to the ground with many lives lost. It remains Boston's worst fire. In later years George loved sailing. He and Agnes remained faithful Steelers fans, in fact never missed watching and NFL game on T.V. He prized his Jesuit education and valued the Jesuit philosophy. At family parties he enjoyed entertaining with a moving rendition of "Casey at the Bat", always a crown pleaser. George's and Agnes's marriage of over 50 years was a model to all of what a loving relationship should be."

ii. GEORGE TIMMS TITUS, b. Nov. 19, 1952; d. April 03, 1973.
iii. STEPHEN TITUS, b. Nov. 17, 1960. The following is an e-mail letter sent by Stephen Titus to family members in June of 2000: Hello Everyone, As you read this, I'll be sitting in my little house by the river nursing a nasty case of writers cramp. Since I won't be there in person to share stories of the last decade, here's the short version. After two-and-a-half years in San Diego, I moved to Washington, D.C., all for the good of Performance Bicycle where I was a store manager. Since retail stinks and I missed Colorado, I turned in my training wheels, moved home to Vail, and played ski instructor and shop rat for a season. I then moved to Denver, finished my degree in Journalism, learnt to spel and rite real good, and went to work at a daily newspaper in Loveland, Colorado. Two years of that was plenty, and I left in Oct. to pursue a lifelong dream: I joined a guy I was writing about and sailed from Cape Town, South Africa to Barbados. The trip was beautiful and painful and I'd go again tomorrow if my situation allowed it. Since returning in March, my situation has been free-lance writing. Most of the publications are regional magazines, the only mags I write for that you might recognize are Women's Sports and Fitness and Outside Magazine. (I'll have a story out in the Sep. issue of 'Outside' about the fires in Los Alamos, New Mexico). So there it is, the world according to Steve. I now live in a little house near Estes Park and in my free time I play tennis with my dog, Donner, ride my bike, ski, and occasionally go sailing. I wish I could be there in person to share all the fun of the last decade. For those inclined, PLEASE send me the scoop on what's up in your lives. See ya, Steve. P.S. The biggest news is Mimi's. As of 10 a.m. Thursday, she is the proud mother of a baby boy."

Autobiographical paragraph written by Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien-Fritz, August 2003: "nicknamed 'Charlie' by her older brother, Austin. Married Paul O'Brien. Paul worked in the family business O'Brien Bros. Marine Contracting Corp. maintaining the dredging of New York City's Hudson River piers and the docking of the large ocean liners. Mary and Paul moved with their family to Pittsburgh in 1963 to join her brother Si's vending company. She later worked for Union National Bank in Mt. Lebanon. In 1979 she moved the family to Harrisburg to work in Social Services and then became the Outreach Director at St. Catherine Laboure Parish until her retirement in 1989. After her husband's death in 1989 she moved to Hershey, met and married David M. Fritz, a long time Hersheyite, widower and father of Amidia and Irene. Mary has been a volunteer consultant at Caron Foundation Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation, Family Services Division and the Hershey Museum Children's Discovery Room and Hershey Medical Center. She and David volunteered with St. Joan of Arc CCD program. Mary is a member of St. Joan's Rosary Group and an Associate of the Sisters of St. Cyril and Methidius.

She was born Feb. 02, 1880 in Lone Oak, Hunt Co., TX, and died May 30, 1948 in Plainview, Motley Co., Texas. Obituary for Lee Titus, Sep., 1948: "Last rites were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Methodist church at Flomot for Lee Titus, pioneer Motley Co. resident. Rev. Bob Jameson officiated at the services, assisted by Rev. Bain. Burial was in Flomot Cemetery. Lee Titus was born in May 1874 in St. Jo, Missouri, and moved with his parents to Lone Oak, Texas when a few months old. He married Miss Ollie Payne at Lone Oak on Jan. 16, 1897, and they moved to Motley Co. in 1913, making their home at Flomot until 1942, when they moved to Plainview. Mrs. Titus preceded her husband in death by only a few months, passing away May 30, 1948. Mr. Titus passed away at the Plainview sanitarium following a weeks illness, at the age of 70. Ten children survive, five sons and five daughters. They are L.B., and Melvin Titus, Flomot; Joe and Troy Titus of Plainview; Roy Titus of Levelland; Mrs. H.M Stanley of San Jon, NM., Mrs. W.F. Slover, Mrs. W.W. Slover and Mrs. W.O. Taylor of Whiteflat, and Mrs. A.J. Noble of Seminole.

There are 33 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren; two brothers, T.J. Titus of Lone Oak and E.R. Titus of Dallas.

Obituary of Ollie Payne Titus, June, 1948:
"Last rites were spoken Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Flomot Methodist church for Mrs. Lee Titus who passed away Sunday morning at the Plainview sanitarium. The service was conducted by Rev. R. H. Knight, assisted by Rev. Bob Jameson and the resident Baptist pastor, Rev. J. E. Lee. At the graveside. A friend of the family, Rev. Carl Lamb of Plainview also spoke a few words. Interment was in the Flomot cemetery, with grandsons serving as pall-bearers. Survivors are the husband Lee Titus of Plainview; five sons, Lee and Melvin Titus of Flomot, Joe and Troy Titus of Plainview; Roy Titus of Levelland; five daughters, Mrs. H.M. Stanley of San Jon, NM., Mrs. Bill Slover, Mrs. W. 0. Taylor and Mrs. W. W. Slover of Whiteflat, and Mrs. J. A. Noble of Seminole. Thirty-three grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren also survive; and 5 brothers, Nathan, Lester and Joe Payne of Lone Oak and Cecil and Lockett Payne of Quitaque; two sisters, Mrs Claude Fowler of Lone Oak and Mrs. Lena Mayhall of Stratford. Ollie Payne was born near Lone Oak, Texas on Feb. 2, 1880. She was married to Lee Titus at Lone Oak on Jan. 16, 1897. Twelve children were born to them, two dying in infancy. Converted when she was a young girl, Mrs. Titus joined the Methodist church and remained a devoted Christian until her death at the age of 68 years, 3 months and 28 days. She moved with her husband to this area in 1912, becoming pioneer settlers of the Flomot community. They had lived in that community until 1942 when they moved to Plainview."

Article in possession of Anita Duncan of Lawson, Mo.---No Date--Titus Home Wrecked By Fire Saturday--
"An early morning fire Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Titus on Wells St. wrought havoc and destruction to both building and contents. The fire was discovered about 6:30 a.m. by Mrs. Titus, who arose to investigate a crackling noise she heard. Apparently the fire had been burning for a time within the walls and overhead, between the first and second stories. Defective wiring is believed to have been the cause of the blaze. Everything on the second floor, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Titus, was either completely destroyed or ruined by smoke and water. Most of the furniture was carried from the first floor, but few pieces escaped damage by smoke and water, as firemen battled for two hours to save the structure from being a total loss. Mr. and Mrs. Titus are staying with relatives until their home can be repaired and a portion of it made livable. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Titus are at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Titus in Independence."

OLLIE PIRTLE[10] TITUS (CHARLES JACKSON[9], JAMES FEARIN[8], ANDREW JACKSON[7], JAMES[6], EBENEZER[5], TIMOTHY[4], ABIEL[3], ABIEL[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Jan. 09, 1910 in Red River Co., TX, and died May 18, 1996 in New Boston, Bowie Co., TX. He married LESSIE VELMA JACKSON in New Boston, Bowie Co., TX, daughter of JAMES JACKSON and BESSIE LIPE. She was born July 28, 1910 in Red River Co., TX. From a letter by O. Lynne Titus, Nov. 29, 2000, Grand Prairie, Texas: "... My father, Ollie Pirtle Titus, married Lessie Velma Jackson on Sep. 29, 1933 in Red River Co., near Boxelder, Texas. Five children were born to this couple. The first born was Georgia Ann Titus on Oct. 1, 1934. She died of pneumonia on March 1, 1935 at five months. My brother, Cloyce Dean Titus, was born on Dec. 20, 1935 on the old plantation. The next born was Clara Beth Titus on Nov. 26, 1939 in Red River Co., Texas, although she was not born on the old Titus land. The next born was Kay Jean Titus on May 2, 1943 in Clarksville, Red River Co., Texas. She was the first to be born in a hospital. I was born in Texarkana, Miller Co., Arkansas on July 20, 1947, after another family move.

My dad farmed for years to support his family. In the early 1940's, a huge government facility was being built just west of Texarkana, Texas to facilitate the war effort. Dad, who was multi-talented, worked as a carpenter during the construction of the facility. He was hired by Red River Arsenal in the spring of 1943 and continued to work there until bad feet and knees forced him into early retirement in 1970. In Dec. of 1944, my Dad and Mom and three children were again living on the Titus land. Coming from town one day, they were shocked to see their house going up in flames. Dad found a place to live in East Hooks Courts in Hooks, Bowie Co., Texas, which was very near his employer. I was born when we lived there. For mother and dad, it was quite a cultural shock. They no longer lived in a rural area and had indoor plumbing and electricity for the first time in their life. In Oct. of 1948, we moved to a house in New Boston, Bowie Co., Texas. The four surviving children all graduated from New Boston High School. I was only 15 months old when we moved to New Boston, so it is still home for me. My father died on May 18, 1996, in New Boston, Bowie Co., Texas. He is buried in the Savannah Cemetery along with all my Titus Male ancestors beginning with James Titus. My 3rd great grandfather, James Titus had picked out a secluded place on his grounds to be buried. He was the first to be buried there. It is now a well kept 2-acre community cemetery. Savannah community is no more then a few scattered homes today. The cemetery includes graves of not only my ancestors, but aunts and uncles and many cousins, both close and distant. It is a favorite place for me to visit. My wife and I plan to be buried there. My mother still lives in the same home in New Boston. She just turned 90 last July and lives alone. She is very self sufficient and not your usual 90 year old."

He married MURIEL PAULINE PETERSON Oct. 28, 1945 in South Paris, Maine. She was born Aug. 21, 1919. Served in WWII. Author of "Saga of Two North American Families - ANDREWS - TITUS" 1987. An excellent source for New England Titus information. Excerpts taken from "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus" pages 28 - 35 regarding the life of John Alva Titus in South Paris, Maine:

"... Our first school house was very near to the family home, it being located where Sam's Italian is now. Grades up to the third were all located in one room, with a large wood burning furnace which furnished the heat. There were two out houses, (toilets) next to the wood piles. the older children helped the teacher bring in wood.

About the year 1926 the Titus family was hit hard with sickness. There being one winter when everyone in the family became sick, with the chicken pox, measles, whooping cough, and scarlet fever, this being by far the worse. I can still remember the sign placed on the front door, (QUARANTINED). There was a time that our Father, Roy could not come home. He would bring home the groceries and leave them on the porch, say "HI" through the window and return to operate his grocery store. At one time my sister, Muriel and I each had our own bed in the dining room, another time I had a bed in the living room, with all the shades drawn, this was the bout with scarlet fever, they were afraid of what the bright light would do to the eyes. My sister Gertrude did have a partial hearing loss in one ear as a result of scarlet fever..."

"... After sister Gertrude left home Mother was not very well so it was up to me to do the weekly washings. That meant getting up about five A.M., starting fires in the two wood stoves and boil water for the washings. Then the white aprons and coats from Titus market had to be boiled along with white shirts, before they could be washed. Once the clothes were washed, then we had the task of hanging all the washing out doors. In the winter this was rough duty, most of the clothes would be frozen almost before they could be hung out. Many times we would have to wait until the next day before taking them in.

Once the fires were all started, it was then time to make breakfast. Later, sister Muriel would get up and do the weekly baking. That usually included several pies, a cake or two, rolls for Saturday night and home made bread for the week..."

"... In the early days at 139 Main Street, Father kept a horse, cow, a few pigs and chickens. As I grew old enough to do some of the chores, I'd go out and feed chickens. In the winter that meant taking out hot water to the chicken house, the bird dish was always frozen. Elwood learned how to milk the cow and guess he was the only one of the children that ever had that chore..."

"... All through the years the Titus house was a busy one, Mother was very much involved with the Baptist church, helping raise money for its renovation, going to church every Sunday and to Sunday School, Dad singing in the choir, and a men's quartet when ever he could get one together. Mother was involved with the building of the South Paris library. The girls were excellent students and had class parts at graduation time, the top yet..."

LILBURN DURELL[11] TITUS (ERNEST LILBURN[10], LEWIS ERNEST[9], WILLIAM CARR[8], BEVERLY[7], MICHAEL[6], MICHAEL[5], JOSEPH[4], JOSEPH[3], JOHN[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Feb. 20, 1897 in Stockton, CA, and died May 21, 1983 in Healdsburg, CA. He married LEANA ELMA WITHERELL Nov. 25, 1921 in Ukiah, Mendocino Co., CA. She was born March 05, 1903 in Heppner, Morrow Oregon. From J. Bentley's book: "Uncle Lilburn grew up among the coastal redwoods, next to the high cliffs along the Northern California Pacific coast... During World War I Uncle Lilburn served in the Navy. He was the first of four brothers who served in the World Wars... Uncle Lilburn worked for a while with Grandpa Titus in the construction along the northern coast...

Uncle Lilburn was working for Grandpa on bridge construction near Laytonville, California, shortly after World War I when he met Lena Witherell. Aunt Lena was teaching school near Laytonville when they were married. During their life together they had eight children, five daughters and three sons. Uncle Lilburn, after marrying Aunt Lena moved to Camp Eleven and went to work in the woods. Aunt Lena got a job, through grandpa's help, at Brush Creek School, near the family ranch on the hill...

From "Qhawalali": " In 1914 the Titus family moved to Gualala where Ernest went to work as company superintendent and, along with Chet Craig, built most of the wooden bridges in this part of the country. Two of Ernest's sons, Arthur and Lilburn worked with their dad building railroad bridges, all along the Gualala line."

ARTHUR MAJOR[11] TITUS (ERNEST LILBURN[10], LEWIS ERNEST[9], WILLIAM CARR[8], BEVERLY[7], MICHAEL[6], MICHAEL[5], JOSEPH[4], JOSEPH[3], JOHN[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Nov. 03, 1898 in Stockton, CA, and died April 1989 in Fort Bragg, CA. He married HELME ROSS Sep. 20, 1920 in Ukiah, CA. From J. H. Bentley's book: "Uncle Artie grew up and began working for Grandpa Titus in the construction of bridges along the Mendocino coast. At the age of nineteen Uncle Artie and Uncle Lilburn worked on the mill at Thompson's Pier...

In 1918 Art Titus went to work as Carl St. Ore's fireman, learning also how to throw throttle and handle locomotives in general. What was known as the 'section gang of Gualala' kept the tracks clean and performed railroad maintenance.

In 1920 Art Titus was drafted and got all the way to Ukiah before the news came that the war was over and he was sent back. 'How we celebrated' Helme Titus, sighed at remembering. 'We went to the dance hall in Gualala and danced all night long - everybody in the county turned out.'

When Helme Ross and Arthur Titus were married in 1920, they braved the long road to Ukiah to take out the license and go through the ceremony; but then Helme said, 'we went right back to Gualala and stayed at Flora's hotel. The town gave us a chivaree and everybody came, bringing presents. I got a washtub and washboard and carried all my presents upstairs in the tub.'...

... Uncle Artie and his family returned to Point Arena. There he joined Grandpa Titus in construction. Uncle Artie spent the rest of his working career working with Grandpa. Their construction projects included the houses on Mill Street in Point Arena. north of Point Arena they built an exclusive boys school and refurbished the Point Arena lighthouse.

Uncle Artie and Aunt Helme retired in Manchester, California. Uncle Artie died in a rest home at Fort Bragg in 1989. He is buried in Point Arena, California.

ERNEST EDWARDS[11] TITUS (ERNEST LILBURN[10], LEWIS ERNEST[9], WILLIAM CARR[8], BEVERLY[7], MICHAEL[6], MICHAEL[5], JOSEPH[4], JOSEPH[3], JOHN[2], ROBERT[1]) was born Jan. 31, 1906 in Point Arena, CA, and died March 22, 1994 in Point Arena, CA. He married CLAIRE IVERSON July 02, 1927 in Oakland, CA. She was born Nov. 05, 1908 in Point Arena, CA, and died June 1994 in Point Arena, CA. From James H. Bentley's book: "An interesting story about Ernie was when Ernie was a child he helped his mother with the wash. And when he did it, if there was some clothes in the pile belonging to Edythe or Cora, he would throw them out on the ground. (They should have been doing the wash, he believed.)

Ernie E. helped his mother a lot. He would work in the woods, Old Camp 11 (eleven) to make enough money for his clothes and schooling. He would walk home from Camp 11 to help out, get a good meal and hiked back in the morning to work. (It wasn't easy.)

Ernie and Claire met while both were attending Point Arena High School. Aunt Claire's family were from Danish descent. She was the second generation of Iversens born in the Point Arena area. In Aunt Claire's final year in High School, her brother died. Her mother moved to Oakland. Aunt Claire stayed in the Point Arena area until she graduated from High School. She then moved to Oakland. Uncle Ernie promised to come for her. He went to work with others in the building of a new mill at Rockford. As soon as he had enough money saved, he headed for Oakland and proposed to Aunt Claire.

When settling in Oakland, Uncle Ernie went to work at Woolworth in Oakland for 16 dollars a week. When he quit his pay had risen to 18 dollars per week..."

Later "he ran a cream truck route from Point Arena to Petaluma for the Western Dairy. In 1938, Uncle Ernie and Aunt Claire bout the St. Anthony Hotel in Point Arena." The renamed the hotel the Hotel Garcia. "Uncle Ernie and Aunt Claire rented hotel rooms primarily to their fisherman customers. Fishing was excellent during the 1930's through 1960's. Aunt Claire washed and ironed all of the sheets, cleaned rooms and ran the fountain. Uncle Ernie would attend bar and take the fisherman customers fishing. They sold the business in 1967."

He married BARBARA ANN BENTLEY Aug. 05, 1937 in Carson City, Nevada. She was born Aug. 21, 1917 in Napa, CA. From James Bentley's book: "... Uncle Stanley was born in Point Arena at the Ranch. He grew up in Gualala and Point Arena. He went to high school in Point Arena, graduated in 1931. While still a youth, Uncle Stanley rebuilt the family's old Cleveland automobile. He used the vehicle to get around the area.

After high school Uncle Stanley began driving a truck for Uncle Ernie. He was then transferred to Petaluma for two years. Uncle Ernie then reversed the route and Uncle Stanley moved back to Point Arena. They were working for Western Refrigerator at the time. Uncle Stanley started working with a small creamery with two people. Uncle Stanley was known as the kid. The older person didn't do to well and Uncle Stanley took over. The truck line delivered cream to Petaluma. Grain, farm supplies and other needed commodities were delivered up the coast...

When World War II was declared, they (Stanley and Arbara Ann, a.k.a. "Bo") were living on the ranch on the hill. Uncle Stanley was working for the creamery. During the war, jobs and positions were frozen.

In 1948 Aunt Bo caught the Polio virus. She went to a special hospital in Santa Rosa. From there she moved in with Grandma and Grandpa Bentley to recover. Later she returned to the ranch with Uncle Stanley... ... In 1975 both Aunt Bo and Uncle Stanley had retired and they moved to Redway."

CA. He married BETTY ELLEN BENTLEY April 09, 1938 in Carson City, Nevada. She was born Jan. 28, 1920 in Napa, CA. From James Bentley's book: "Uncle Lawrence was born at Gualala California. He went to school at Point Arena California. During his school years, he worked for Aunt Edythe and Henry Mitchel at their ranch. The ranch was just off the Manchester road, halfway to the family ranch... ... When World War II started, Uncle Laurence and Aunt Betty moved to Napa. Uncle Laurence went to work for Mare Island. In 1943 he received a letter from Uncle Sam. After six weeks of basic training in Texas and a short leave home, he went overseas for two years and fought in Europe. He actively participated in the operation which liberated two concentration death camps."

From his wife Betty Titus: "... March 1945, Laurence came home and we moved to a dairy ranch in Manchester, six miles north of Point Arena, just south of Alder Creek where it flows into the Pacific Ocean. We stayed ten years on the ranch and had two more girls. The dairy business for small farms in 1955, declined. We sold the ranch and moved into the original Titus home, six miles up the Mountain View Road. Laurence went to work for a saw mill. Three more years went by and we had another little girl in 1958. In 1964, the lumber business slowed and Laurence looked for new work. We sold the Titus home and bought a distributorship with Shell Oil Company in Garberville, California..."

He married ROSEMARY VINCELL Feb. 17, 1973 in Duncanville, Dallas, Co., Texas, daughter of CLINT VINCELL and GEORGIA PICKARD. She was born Sep. 27, 1946 in Dallas Co., Texas. From a letter by O. Lynne Titus, Nov. 29, 2000, Grand Prairie, Texas: "Growing up in New Boston was growing up in small town America. We lived east of town and had fields and woods to hunt and walk in. It was a good place to spend my childhood and teen years. After high school, I entered Texarkana Jr. College. It wasn't for me at that stage of my live, so I joined the United States Army. After basic in Ft. Polk, Louisiana, I was sent to the United States Army Engineer School in Ft. Belvoir, Virginia for further training. After school, I was made an instructor in the same facility. On Sep. 1, 1968, I arrived in South Vietnam. I was assigned to the 8th Engineer Battalion of the 1st Air Cavalry Division. I left Vietnam on Nov. 4, 1969 and was discharged from the army. I moved to the Dallas, Texas area in Jan. of 1970. On Aug. 17, 1972, I met a very special lady. Her name was Rosemary Vincell and she was to become my wife. We were married on Feb. 17, 1973 in Duncanville, Dallas, Co., Texas. (her home town) We have two children. Our son, James Andrew Titus, was born on March 17, 1975 and our daughter, Rebecca Elizabeth Titus was born on June 17, 1977. Both were born in Dallas, Dallas Co., Texas. James is single and is a pilot. Rebecca married David Thomas Bell on Jan. 2, 1999 in Arlington. Tarrant Co., Texas. She works for Capital One as an investigator in the fraud department. I am a retired purchasing manager. My wife has worked for the Army-Air Force Exchange for over 33 years. She is less than two years from retiring. We enjoy traveling with our travel trailer in tow. We are active with the Grand Prairie Genealogical Society. We also enjoy all family activities. We are looking forward to full retirement. With respect, Lynn Titus… …PS-Leo, all of the above has been documented if you need that sort of thing. I have it on file here at home. Also, could you send me your mailing address so I can send you my Family Tree Maker lineage from Robert Titus to my family. Thanks again for the book you are working on."

The officer's wife, the former Anna Jane Bateson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Park Bateson, Tontogany, and the couple's three sons have been living in Tontognay since Dec.. Capt. Titus became the first Wood Countian killed in Viet Nam. His mother said her son was a pilot in a C-123 plane. A source at the Pentagon in Washington said Capt. Titus was flying the plane at the time of the crash. Eight other American military men were killed in the crash. Capt. Titus had been in Viet Nam since Jan.. He recently had been training newly assigned men from the United States. He was stationed at Nha Trang, on the east coast of South Viet Nam.

Terrence Richard Titus was born May 29, 1933, in Bowling Green to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Titus. His father died several years ago. After graduation with honors from Bowling Green High School in 1950, he attended Ohio State University, where he became a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and a Naval ROTC cadet. After leaving college he transferred to the Air Force in 1953. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Bowling Green. Capt. Titus had not been home since Jan.. Survivors include the wife; three sons, Stephen, 8; Ron Emery, 4 and Alan, 9 months; the mother; two brothers, Travis (Ted), 822 N. Main St., and David, Route 2, Delta, and three grandparents, Mrs. O. J. Titus, 310 E. Wooster St., and Mr. and Mrs. George Bowen, 627 Wallace Avenue."

He married HEIDI FREY April 27, 1996 in Saratoga Springs, NY, daughter of STEPHEN ROMAN FREY and NATALIE CECILIA PACELLO. She was born April 23, 1971 in Southfield, MI. Frank graduated from Ithaca College in 1994. Received a Master in Healthcare Admin. from the University of Michigan in 2002. Moved to Gaithersburg, MD in May of 2003, working for Kaiser Permanente. Heidi graduated from Ithaca College in 1993. She earned a Masters in Student Affairs from Michigan State University in 1995. An autobiography of Frank Titus is presented in Section III.

Autobiography of Heidi Frey Titus:
"1971…I think that was the year that the Superbowl was interrupted by an airing of the movie "Heidi" but I know that I was born that year in Southfield, Michigan; the first-born daughter to Stephen and Natalie (Lee) Frey. We lived in an apartment a short time before moving to our house at 306 Claremont in Dearborn, Michigan. I grew up in that house…put my hand through the window in the back door, got my head stuck between the banister spindles on the stairs, put on shows for my parents in the living room, honestly, a wonderful childhood. I attended Henry Haigh Kindergarten and then moved on to Divine Child Elementary School and Divine Child High School. In elementary school, I was a Girl Scout (Brownies through Junior Scouting) and played soccer, although athletic prowess eluded me. I LOVED school! I think that I was probably more of a headache for my teachers than I would like to admit. I made pretty good grades but on occasion I would receive a "talks too much" comment on my report card….go figure! I did win third place in my 8th grade Science Fair. I survived Junior High, mostly due to my friendships and my love for everything "Pop Culture" (which continues to grow). A true child of the 80's, I wore black rubber bracelets, florescent clothing, and had a somewhat unhealthy love for the pop group Duran Duran."

Frank S. Titus and Heidi (Frey) with daughters Abigail Marie (Abbey) and Margaret Ann (Maggie)

Every summer while I was growing up, I remember vacationing with my mom's side of the family on the Atlantic Shore. When I was younger, we would rent a home in Brant Beach, New Jersey and spend almost the entire summer there. Sitting on the beach and baking in the sun, playing with my cousins in the ocean, and playing putt-putt in the evenings every summer. In the morning, I would walk to the local bakery and buy sticky buns for the house, I felt so grown-up. By the time I was in High School, the summer vacation spot moved to Bethany Beach, Delaware. Although the locale changed, we still have a ton of fun!

In High School, although I enjoyed my English, History, and Religion classes, I was drawn to the extra-curricular activities, specifically Student Council. I was also a member of the National Honor Society and the French Club. One of my fondest memories in High School was "acting" in our school productions: "The Dead Sister's Secret", "The Sound of Music", and "Camelot" (by far my favorite, I played Morgan le Fey). Fall of 1989, I began my freshman year at Ithaca College in Ithaca, New York. I chose Ithaca after I visited and just fell in love with the campus and the people. What an amazing four years! Again, drawn to the co-curricular activities I became involved in the Student Activities Board and was Senior Class President. Junior year I met my future husband, Frank Titus; he and I were in a few classes together but we were actually "set up" by our respective bosses. After Ithaca, I went to Michigan State University where I received my Masters Degree in Student Affairs Administration.

Frank and I became engaged while I was at MSU. He came to visit one weekend and decided to take a cab to the dorm where I was a Graduate Advisor. He knocked on the door and when I answered, I was greeted by a 3 foot tall stuffed animal of Dopey from Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (my favorite Disney character and sometimes nickname for Frank). There was a sign hanging around Dopey's neck that said: "Dopey says 'Will you marry me?'" My response was "really"? And Frank's response was "Look in the box". I asked "What box?" And so the story goes...we were married on April 27, 1996 in Saratoga Springs, NY surrounded by our family and friends. We lived in Northwest Massachusetts for a few years while I worked as a Residence Hall Director at a college there. We moved to Albany for a few months in the summer of 1998 and in Jan. of 1999, we relocated to Michigan for Frank's job. With the move came much excitement and joy as we began our family with Abbey's birth. Maggie joined just over three years later. The girls are such a gift. Abbey likes to talk just as much as her parents did when they were little and is quite the curly top! Maggie is sure to follow suit and we couldn't be happier! We left Dexter in May of 2003 and relocated to Maryland. We are so excited to be living so close to Frank's brothers and closer to both of our families. Having the cousins grow up together is so exciting. I feel so very blessed to be living my life. I feel like I'm living a dream...everyone should be so lucky.

BIOGRAPHIES

During the course of compiling the descendants of Robert Titus, I found several interesting stories. A lot of the information came from obituaries, letters or autobiographical articles. Whenever possible, I tried to add biographical information to the individual's record in Section II of this book. There were a handful of individuals with biographical information that I found quite interesting and I decided to put them in this separate section. These biographies tell stories that trace American history from the early 1700's through the year 2003.

EBENEZER TITUS (#113) b. 1728

From a letter by O. Lynne Titus, Nov. 29, 2000, Grand Prairie, Texas: "I will begin with my 4th great grandfather, Ebenezer Titus, son of Timothy Titus and Elizabeth Blatchey and great grandson of Robert Titus, who entered the Massachusetts Colony in the late spring of 1635 upon sailing from England with his family. He is also the grandson of Abiel Titus. Ebenezer Titus was born in Suffolk Co., New York in 1728. Most accounts show his birth date to be 1727. My records show that his parents married on Oct. 14, 1727 in Sufflok Co., New York. At his death, it was said that he was 80. During many research projects, I have noticed that years ago, when someone died, they said they were 80 or in their 80th year. My 3rd great grandfather, James Titus, has on his tombstone.....aged 68 years, yet he was about three weeks shy of his 68th birthday. When his third wife died, the newspaper said she was in "the 59th year of her life", although she would not have her 59th birthday for nearly 9 more months. Therefore, I contend that Ebenezer Titus was born in 1728, not 1727. Ebenezer Titus spent his youth and young adulthood in Suffolk Co., New York, which is the easternmost Co. of Long Island...

...Their first child [Ebenezer and Rachel] was James Titus, who was born in Botetourt Co., Virginia on Dec. 10, 1775. He is my 3rd great grandfather. Their second child was George Titus, who was born on Feb. 10, 1777 in Botetourt Co.. The third child was also born in Botetourt Co.. Her name was Phoebe Titus and she was born on Aug. 2, 1779. A fourth child, Rachel, was born after the family's move to the Franklin Settlement (current day Tennessee). Her birth date was Aug. 19, 1782. In 1775, a large parcel of land was acquired from the Cherokee Nation by a group of associates known as the Transylvania Company. It was along and south of the Cumberland River. This was the edge of the western frontier at this time. The chance for land and opportunity always prompted the move of settlers into a new area. The Ebenezer Titus family was no exception, as they made the decision to enter this new land. Some of the settlers came overland from the Watauga Settlement with James Robertson, while others opted for a 1000 mile river journey led by Colonel John Donelson. Either way, the route was treacherous. I have never been able to document which way Ebenezer Titus journeyed to this frontier, but to be certain, he was there in May of 1780.

All the land in the frontier at that time was claimed by the states along the eastern seaboard. North Carolina was the state that claimed the area of the new settlements surrounding Fort Nashborough. The pioneers, like people of today, needed a form of self government. In this case, it had to be in the proximity of the settlements, not on the Atlantic coast in North Carolina. Richard Henderson, leader of the Transylvania Company, drew up the Cumberland Compact. It was signed in May of 1780 by all the adult males, which consisted of about 250. Ebenezer Titus was one of these signers. Twelve judges were to be chosen by human suffrage to represent the several stations that encircled the vicinity of Fort Nashborough. Ebenezer Titus was one of these chosen.

The area just written about was to become Nashville, Tennessee. Ebenezer Titus became a prominent citizen in his community. He owned a plantation just north of Nashville. It is located near the present day town of Goodletsville, Tennessee, a suburb to the north of Nashville. He built a large brick home in 1790, replacing the original log structure. The home unfortunately burned in the spring of 1996. Ebenezer Titus died on Sep. 14, 1807 and was buried on his plantation next to his wife, Rachel, who had passed away on Oct. 1, 1795."

Following is the land deed as it appears in "Huntington-Babylon Land Deeds 1663-1797"

"Know all men by These presents that I abiel Titus Sener of ye Town of huntington in ye Co. of Suffolk on ye Island of nasaw in ye province of new York yeoman for and In Consideration of a Certain Sum of money to me paid or Secured at ye Ensealing and Delivery Hereof by Ebenezer Titus Son of Timothy Titus Deceased for which I Do for me my heirs Executors & adm.. forever remise Release and forever Quitclaim unto ye Said Ebenezer Titus and to his heirs & assigns forever all my right Tytle Intrest or Claime To all ye Land Lying at or near the Long Swamp that is to Say that Tract of Land or that plantation on which ye Said Timothy Titus Deceased formerly Lived and To all ye Buildings Erected thereon or previledges to ye Same Belonging or In any wise appertaining I Say I Do hereby fore my heirs Ex.. and adm.. forever absolutly Quitclaim unto ye Said Ebenezer Titus and to his heirs and asigns forever to all ye Land and premises above Said Lying In ye Twp. of huntington Both Cleared & uncleared But from all and Every part of ye above Said premises and previledges Thereunto Belonging I Do hereby acknowledge my Self to Be forever Excluded & Debared In witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seal this twenty third Day of march In ye Year of our Lord one Thousand

From typed notes, unknown source, citing Tennessee Historical Magazine, Vol. 3, p.129, 1917: "Ebenezer Titus was granted 640 acres in 1783 laid off and allotted to settlers on the Cumberland River, on the south side. Also 640 acres, for same reason on branch of Little Harpeth River. In 1787 he was granted 320 acres on a branch of Dry Creek. These grants were for guard service for the surveyors. All of this land was in Davidson Co. (N.C. Land Grants in TN)"

Newspaper article from The Impartial Review:
"Died on Monday last (Sep. 10) Mr. Ebenezer Titus. He was a man of the most virtuous deportment, and was beloved by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance."

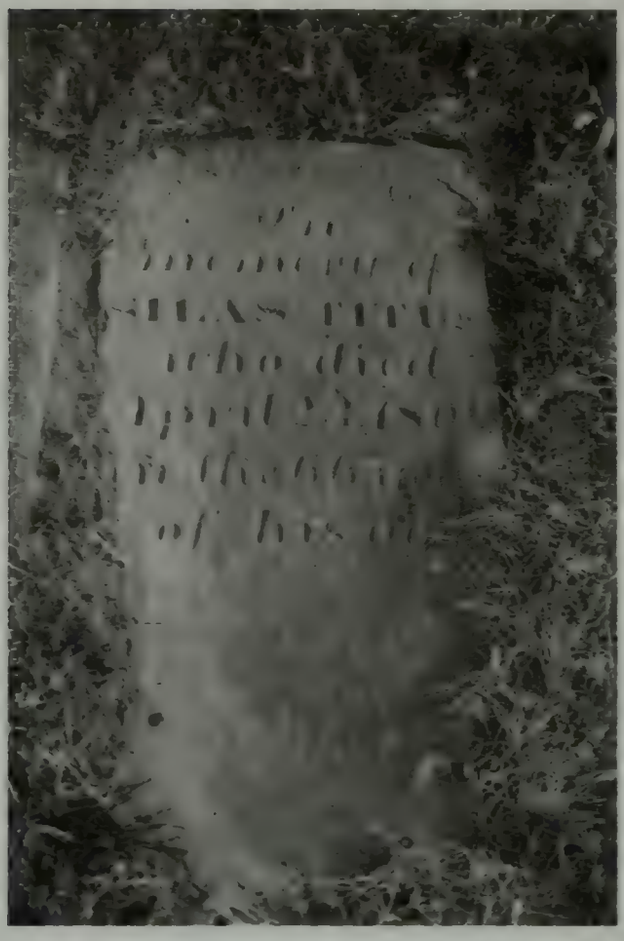
SILAS TITUS (#110) b. Sep. 1741

According to the "Records of the First Church in Huntington, Long Island, 1723-1779", Silas was baptized Sep. 24, 1741 by Rev. Ebenezer Prime of the First Church in Huntington, Long Island. According to Rev. Anson Titus and Edmond D. Titus, Silas "moved upstate" circa 1765. Land records show a Silas Titus buying property in Amenia, Dutchess Co., New York in 1765. The "Dutchess County New York Tax Lists (1718-1787)" show that Silas lived in Amenia, Dutchess County, New York between 1765 and 1773. According to "18th Century Documents of the Nine Partners Patent" (1979), in 1770, Silas sold lot 33 in the town of Amenia to James Reynolds Jr. The property included a house, barn and orchard on 116 acres. Sometime between 1773 and 1776 Silas and his family moved to Albany Co. where he appears on Revolutionary militia muster rolls. In the 1770's Albany Co. extended roughly from present day Kingston, NY to the south to Warrensburg, NY to the north. No records have been found to confirm his residence between 1776 and 1789 other than the muster rolls that indicate he lived somewhere in Albany Co..

Land records show that Silas bought lot 18 (314 acres) in the southern part of Charlton, NY in Saratoga Co. on Aug. 21, 1789. In the First Census of the United States - 1790 he is recorded as living in Ballstown, New York. According to Edmond D. Titus, from pages 599 and 600 of Fredrick Mather's Refugees of 1776 from Long Island to Connecticut: "He served in the 9th Albany. ("N.Y. in the Rev'n.," p.117) It is claimed that he was a Lt., also an Ens., in Col. White's Saratoga Co. Inf. His descendants have been active in all the Wars since the Revolution. (E.D.T.) Strictly speaking, he was not a Refugee; as he removed, about 1765, to Albany Co., N.Y.; and in 1790, he is recorded as a resident of Ballstown, Saratoga Co. The whole family removed later, to Cayuga Co., settling in that portion which is now Onondaga Co. He was b. in Huntington in 1734; bapt. in 1741; d. in 1809."

Muster rolls reviewed at the National Archives show Silas serving as a private in Van Ness's ninth regiment of Albany Militia in Oct. of 1776. Silas is also recorded as serving during the war in Minutes of the Council of Appointment of the State of New York 1783- 1821 on pages 294 and 403. On page 294 Silas is described as serving in 1794 as "ensign of light infantry" in Brigadier General James Gordon's brigade of Saratoga Co.. On page 403 is the following: In 1798 "... In said regiment-Henry Corl, junior, captain, vice Jabez Davis, moved away; William Bostwick, lieutenant, vice Corl, promoted; Alexander Ferguson, ensign, vice (Silas) Titus, moved away."

After the revolution Silas took his family to Western New York. A book titled Saratoga Co. New York Grantors 1792 - 1831 had the following entry regarding a Silas Titas and a transfer of land in 1794: "(Titas) Silas, of Charlton, to Jonah Hawkins of Litchfield Co. Connt. 1794". After Silas left Saratoga County in about 1798 he took his family to Franklin, Delaware Co. New York where the 1800 Census shows him residing with his family. They moved to Cato in Cayuga Co., New York before 1809.



The grave of Silas Titus at the Cato – Meridian cemetery in Cayuga County, NY. The inscription states that he died April 23rd, 1809 in the 66th year of his age.

According to Graves of Revolutionary Patriots, Vol. 4 by Patricia Law Hitcher (1988), Silas Titus is buried in Cato-Meridian Cemetery in Ira, New York. The following entry is on page 2949 of Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) Patriot Index - Centennial Edition: "Titus: Silas: b 1734 NY d 4-23-1809 NY m Sarah Reynolds Pvt NY" (Silas was actually born in 1743.)

From Cato-Meridian Cemetery, Cayuga Co. - Town of Ira: "... The earliest inscription found is that of Silas Titus, Rev. soldier, who died Apr. 23, 1809. This stone, although flat on the ground, is as clear and legible as the day is was set up..." I (LJT) personally visited the grave site in August of 2002. The inscription reads: "Silas Titus who died April 23, 1809 in the 66th year of his age."

BENJAMIN TITUS (# 138) b. Aug. 02, 1759

At the age of 74, Benjamin was living in Dunkard Twp., Greene Co., Pennsylvania and wanted to draw a Revolutionary War pension for his services. He had never been given anything in writing that would prove he had served in the war. So, on the 19th day of Nov., 1833, he appeared in open court before a judge to testify and try to prove that he was eligible for pension under the act of Congress, June 7, 1832.

The following is transcription of Benjamin's Testimony done by Ms. Evelyn Fersch in 1997:
State of Pennsylvania, Greene Co.: On this 19th day of Nov. A.D. 1833 personally appeared in open Court, before the Honorable Thomas H. Baird and his associates, Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in and for said Co., now sitting, Benjamin Titus, a resident of Dunkard Twp. in the Co. of Greene and State of Pennsylvania, aged 74 years, who being first duly sworn according to Law, doth on his oath, make the following declaration in order to obtain the benefit of the Act of Congress passed June 7, 1832.

That he entered the service of the United States under the following named officers, & served as herein stated. When I entered the service I resided in Trenton Twp., Hunterdon Co., New Jersey, - was an apprentice then to James Burrows, to the tanning & shoemaking business & while such, entered the service as a volunteer and a private about the first of June 1776 - day not recollected.

I first volunteered for five months at Penny town or Pennington [Pennington] in said Hunterdon Co., New Jersey. The Captain of the company which I joined was Benjamin Van Cleef [Van Cleve], the 1st Lieut. Nathaniel Hunt, 2nd lieut. Drake. The Company belonged to a Regt. commanded by Colonel Joseph Phillips of Maidenhead which mustered or rendezvoused at Penny town and out of which two Companies one commanded by Captain Houton the other by Captain Van Cleef were taken to go to New York City to join Colonel Johnson's regiment to complete it. I volunteered and joined the company of Captain Vancleef at Pennington on a Saturday and we marched on the next Monday directly for New York. Our troops were called flying camp men. We marched on through New Jersey. Our company staying at Prince town [Princeton] the first night and crossed the north river at Paulus Hook in a sloop [a one-masted vessel with a fore-and-aft rig]. After we got to New York, Col. Johnson paraded his man out on a common & there our Company and Capt. Houton's Company joined the Regt. Col. Phillips and Major Hooper of our regiment at Pennington met us at New York and joined Col. Johnson's Regt. Col. Phillips was made Lieut. Col. in Col. Johnson's Regt. Major Hooper resigned while we lay in New York and Major Gordon took his place.

We lay in New York in houses on Queen Street for six weeks. We were there when the news of the Declaration of Independence arrived. Upon which we were paraded in Broad street and Col. Johnson there read to us a long speech encouraging us to fight and give up our blood rather than our liberties, which we all declared we would and huzzaed for Independence.

There was in Broad Street an image of the King, full size, on a horse, all gilded and enclosed in iron railings. At night that was taken down, the head cut off and stuck on a pole in the Commons, which I afterwards saw, and the body of man and horse was taken to make bullets of. When we got to New York the British had possession of Governor's and Staten Island - many troops there and much shipping. During the six weeks we lay in New York, ships were continually arriving, every day almost with men and provisions for the British at the islands. When it was thought the British would soon cross over from Staten Island to Long Island, our regiment was taken over, with other troops across the East River. Gen. Washington also went over. When we got over we made a fort called Cobble Hill. The whole army on Long Island was engaged in making this fort & throwing up lines or entrenchments. Fatigue & guard parties were taken out of each regiment. After the British had landed at the narrows on Long Island, I was detached with others from our Regt. to go on guard down to Flat Bush. We were relieved every twenty-four hours. When word came that the British were going to attack us, half our Regt. was sent down to Flatbush. I was along. We went down in the evening & the next morning, the British attacked us.

We had a considerable battle for about six hours, between squadrons of our men and the British near the yellow mill pond. Our Col. Johnson was killed there and our 2nd Lieut. Drake was drowned in the pond. I was on the left wing which rested near the pond. We fought awhile - the British were at least 5 to 1 of us. They were likely to cut off our retreat. The part I was in got round the mill pond before the British had cut off the passage round. Many had to force through the pond and several were drowned. This was about the last of Aug. - dates not recollected. After we got away from the British we made for our fort, where it being very wet weather we remained 2 or 3 days. We were in Gen. Herd's division on Long Island. I do not recollect any of the regular officers except him, Gen. Washington, and Lord Stirling [in Interrogations] who, we were told after the fight was over, was taken prisoner.

On the second or third night after the battle, while in our fort, we were ordered to parade. We were told to have all things in readiness and supposed we were going to battle again, and did not know any better till we got to the water. We then learned that Gen. Washington was going to take us over to N. York again. We were taken over in the night. Some of the troops did not get over until the next morning. The morning was very foggy and that prevented us being seen by the British. We lay in New York a few days and then the Regt. was marched to Fort Washington up the North River where we encamped with other troops. Genl. Washington there himself. We were still in Gen. Herds division. We lay there till the British crossed East River at the E. end of Long Island. Then we were marched to the White Plains where we were about two weeks engaged in preparing for fight.

We cut down an orchard and made a picket of the trees - with the butts in and tops on. We made platforms inside and mounted our cannon on them. The Americans were divided and stationed on two heights with a hollow between. I was on the height at which Gen. Washington was present and commanded. The British sent a troop of Horse to reconnoiter our lines. When they had driven in our guard and got up pretty near [An insert here reads "Their whole army being invisible."] on a ridge or height, we let loose a 30 pounder at the horse, loaded with about a peck of grape shot, and drove them back.

One of our men who had got behind a stone fence to take a shot at them catched a horse about the time his rider was falling off. The man took his cutlass [a broad cutting sword] and the horse to Gen. Washington, who took down his name and said he would reward him when the affray was over.

After we had driven the Horse away, the British army went round and attacked the other height - nearer the river than ours, and they took that height. They then ranked the cannon to fire at us, cleaned them and cooled them. They then fired at us awhile during the evening and at night they went away. Our regiment, next morning, I think was marched off, and we crossed the river at Kings Ferry - came down the other side to the ferry - crossing over to Fort Washington, with a design to reinforce the fort. About 200 of our men were in the ferry boat when word came that the Fort was taken. We then put in to Fort Lee where we remained till the British had crossed the river above and were coming down on us. We then evacuated Fort Lee in a hurry and went to Newark. The British followed us and we went on to Brunswick. Here I was discharged verbally by Col. Phillips, who had taken command on the death of Col. Johnson. I was discharged about the 1st of Nov. - day not recollected, having served out the five months for which I volunteered.

I then went home to my grandfather's who lived on the road from N. York to Philadelphia. I moved my Mother and younger brothers out of the way of the British, as I thought, to Stony brook. The British were spreading over the country and as soon as I got my clothes and myself cleaned I shouldered my knapsack, and repaired to Yarley's Ferry in Buck's Co., Pennsylvania in Capt. John Mott's Company, to which I belonged prior to joining Capt. Van Cleef's Company, which belonged to Col. Phillips Regt. I volunteered till we could get the British checked. We were stationed at Yarley's ferry to guard the passage and prevent the British crossing over. The boats were all on our side, and the British could get none to cross in. We were quartered in a cooper's shop. It was about the 1st of Dec. 1776 when I joined Capt. Mott's Company at the Yarley's.

We remained there about three weeks. Our company then went up to Slack's or McConkey's ferry [on the Delaware River] where several companies rendesvoused. Don't recollect any of the field officers, except Gen. Washington. When we got to the ferry we found plenty of boats ready to take us over the river. There was ice running. On Christmas night [1776] we were all taken over, and Gen. Washington marched us right on towards Trenton. We went down the river road till we got near the town. We were taken across the plantations to the Scotch road leading from Penningtown to Trenton, and which intersected the main road from Trenton to Princeton a little above the town.

We were halted about day break, and fired a few shots down at the town with artillery and surprized the Hessians [pertaining to Hesse in Germany or its inhabitants] who were in Trenton. Gen. Washington before we left the river road had sent some men down along the river to get round behind the town. They fired at the same time we did. Gen. Washington after we fired sent off some troops to route out the Hessians which they did in quick order. The Hessians tried to cross a bridge over Sand pink Creek to get to Bordentown, but the [men sent?] down the river had got into a large stone Mill near the bridge and prevented the Hessians from landing and turned them upon the Common above the dam, where they pretty soon surrendered to Gen. Washington, who took them prisoners and marched them and us off the same day, back to Slack's ferry. He crossed them over at night. We did not get over till next day. A few days afterward the Hessians were put under charge of some militia who took them off to Lancaster in Pennsylvania. I then left the service, about the 1st Jan. 1777 - precise day not recollected, and went home to my master, having served one month in this engagement. I was discharged verbally by Captain Mott.

About one month after the capture of the Hessians - perhaps two or three weeks only - about the last of Jan. 1777 - precise day not recollected - I again went into active service as a private volunteer in a Company commanded by Capt. Phillip Phillips belonging to Col. Phillips regiment, and went out in the Company to guard against the encroachments of the British along the Millstone and a Rariton Rivers in New Jersey. Col. Phillips was out and also Col. Houton. We were under the command of Gen. Dickerson, and went out in obedience to a call from Gen. Washington. This engagement lasted one month, at the expiration of which we were relieved by other companies of our Regt. and of Col. Houton's Regiment. I went home and remained during their service of one month being discharged verbally by our Capt.

When their month was out I volunteered again for one month and served as a private for one month on same duty in Capt. Mott's Company, belonging to the same Regt. - Col. Phillips. I was again discharged verbally by my Capt. about the 1st of May 1777 - day not recollected, and went home and got inoculated for the Small Pox, which was then prevailing.

After the British army left Brunswick, our whole regiment, called "minute men," was called into service. I entered the service as a volunteer and private in Captain Mott's Company, belonging to Col. Phillips Regt - about the middle of June 1777 - day not recollected. We were marched along the foot of the mountain called Blue Ridge in the north part of New Jersey by Schuyler's mines - and encamped in the woods. Gen. Washington had came from the other side of the Ridge near Morristown to within about a mile of where we lay. Before we had encamped, word came a troop of British Horse were plundering the country. Our Colonel asked Capt. Clum if he couldn't catch them at it. He said he would try if he would give him some good men. He picked out of the Regt. about 70 man of whom I was one, and after dark we started off, and went about 3 miles when we came to a place on the road near the British Horse's camp where there was a post and rail fence and cleared ground on one side and woods on the side of the hill on the other side. Here we stopped and got among some trees, two and two to a tree, to wait the approach of the Horse as they would go out from their camp. Capt. Clum went on in advance towards their camp to give us the signal of their approach. About 11 o'clock at night, after waiting about two hours we heard the Captain's signal. The Horse came - we fired - but shot too high and killed none, but scared them back, taking prisoners a horse and rider. We sold the horse next day for a good price and got about 5$ continental money each man for the horse.

We were kept at the place of our encampment, near Gen. Washington's part of the army till after the engagements at Short hills and Ash swamp. The British soon left New Jersey and went to New York City. I was discharged verbally by Col. Phillip's, together with all the Regt. sometime in July 1777 - day not recollected having served one month this engagement.

In the fall of 1777 - month and day not recollected, I again entered the active service as a volunteer and private in Capt. Tucker's Company belonging to Col. Phillip's & went to Elizabeth Town New Jersey to keep guard, to prevent the Hessians and refugees on Staten Island from plundering the people. I served one month on this duty and then was discharged verbally by our Capt. and relieved for one month by others on same duty. When their month was out, I entered active service as a private and volunteer under Capt. Philip Phillips and served one month on same duty in his Company, which belonged to same Regt.

During this last month, while about 200 of us were at Elizabeth Town point, about 1000 of the enemy crossed over to plunder. We concealed ourselves in small squads along the road. As they passed along we shot at them and then run. We killed about 90 and lost 1. I served this month out and then was verbally discharged by our captain - month and day of discharge not recollected. Gen. Washington always allowed us to be discharged when present danger was over - requiring us to be ready again at a minutes warning.

While the British were at Philadelphia, in May 1778 - day not recollected, I volunteered as a private in Captain Clum's Company of Artillery, belonging to Col. Phillips Regt. in New Jersey, to go to Trenton to prevent the British coming up in their boats. They got up to the island below Trenton, and were coming up on the Jersey side in row gallies and boats with guns mounted on the row gallies. We got down on the bank with our two four pounders. We fired at them as they came up with good success. They shot at us but couldn't bring their guns to bear and fired over our heads. We drove them to the Pennsylvania side, and they soon went back. We were then discharged verbally by our Capt. - day not recollected - and went home. I served at least three weeks in the engagement.

Before the battle of Monmouth, N. Jersey, in June 1778 - day not recollected, our Regt. was again called out. Our Regt. was commanded by Col. Phillips and Major Gordon belonged to it. I joined active service this time as a volunteer and private in Capt. Mott's Company. We were marched on to join Washington's army near Monmouth Court House. When we got there, we were put to guard the baggage and bullocks [an ox or castrated bull or a full grown steer] - that his men might be prepared for action. About the last of June 1778 there was a pretty hot battle between Gen. Washington and the British near Monmouth Court House. The day was very hot and many perished for want of water and strength. It was on Sunday. I was not engaged in the battle but saw it - having to keep guard. Gen. Washington kept the ground and the British retreated. I remained there a few days till it was believed the British had gone out of New Jersey. Our Col. then discharged us verbally and I went home, having served this time three weeks - day of discharge not recollected. This engagement was the last of my active service.

I never had a written discharge nor a commission. I have no documentary evidence to prove my services, but William Lattimer, who resides in Whitely Twp., Greene Co., Pennsylvania, can prove my services - during my five months engagement and service at New York, Long Island, White Plains and vicinities and Isaac Reed a resident of Monongalia Co., Virginia can prove all my other terms of service, except perhaps, my term of service in the north part of New Jersey along the Blue Ridge. Besides these persons I know of no others who can prove any of my services.

JAMES TITUS (# 223) b. Dec. 10, 1775

From a letter by O. Lynne Titus, Nov. 29, 2000, Grand Prairie, Texas: "James Titus, son of Ebenezer Titus, spent his youth and early adulthood in the area just described. He was an admirer of Andrew Jackson, as were many of that time. Jackson had arrived in this area in 1788 as a prosecuting attorney. He became rich and successful and later, would marry the daughter of Colonel John Donelson, the man who led the flotilla of boats along the Holston, Tennessee, Ohio and Cumberland Rivers to the settlements around Fort Nashborough.....the 1000 mile journey I spoke of earlier. Her name was Rachel Donelson and she would have become the first lady, had she not died in late 1828 after her husband had been elected the 7th President of the United States, but before he was sworn into office.

James Titus first marriage was to Rebecca Sawyers Buchanan on June 10, 1795 in Davidson Co., Tennessee. This is the Co. where current day Nashville, Tennessee is located. This bond produced four children, of which only two reached adulthood. On Jan. 23, 1808, Rebecca Sawyers Titus died. Shortly there after on May 17, 1808, James Titus was to wed Nancy Holmes Edmondson. The couple was married in Davidson Co., Tennessee, but did not remain there very long. Another acquisition of land from Indians prompted another move for the Titus family. This time the move was to the Mississippi Territory.

The Mississippi Territory covered the current states of Mississippi and Alabama except for a strip along the Gulf of Mexico that was an extension of the Florida panhandle and belonged to Spain. The United States got possession of this from Spain by 1812. The area the Titus family settled in is current day Alabama. The year was 1809. James Titus was joined in the Mississippi Territory by his younger brother, George. On May 9, 1810, James Titus was appointed a Captain in the 7th Mississippi Territory Regiment. In 1814, James Titus served in the Mississippi Territorial Senate. In 1817, Mississippi became the 20th state to be admitted to the union. Their constitution was adopted on Aug. 15, 1817, at which time Alabama became a separate territory. St. Stephens, an old Spanish fort, became the first capital of the new territory. President James Monroe appointed William Wyatt Bibb as Governor of the Alabama Territory.

The Alabama Territory consisted of a Governor, William Wyatt Bibb, a House of Representatives and a Legislative Council. The first Speaker of the House was Gabriel Moore, but he was replaced before expiration of his term by John W. Walker. Three men were selected as "Council Members" (Senators). They were Robert Beatty, Joseph Carson and James Titus. Carson died and Beatty resigned his office, so when the first Alabama Territory Legislative Council convened at St. Stephens on Jan. 19, 1818, James Titus was the only member to show up. James Titus carried out his new duties with studied formality. He became a one man upper house by calling his own meeting to order, answering the roll call of all present, then proceeded to elect himself as President of the Council. He introduced and voted on bills, made appointments, and finally adjourned the meeting. The first Session of the Legislative Council of the Alabama Territory convened for 26 days, adjourning on Feb. 14, 1818. James Titus was the sole council member for the entire first session. He had appointed Curtis Hooks as Secretary and John Pearson as Doorkeeper. The second session pf the Legislative Council convened later in the same year and adjourned on Nov. 21, 1818. James Titus was President of the Legislative Council of both sessions, although he was not the sole member of the second session. The adjournment of the second session of the Legislative Council ended St. Stephens as the Capital. The Capital would move to Huntsville in Madison Co. for the 1819 government seat. A letter dated Jan. 6, 1819, nominated James Titus, Henry Chambers, Lemuel Mead, George Phillips, John Gayle, Jr. and Matthew D. Wilson as Members of the Legislative Council for the Alabama Territory in 1819. These nominations were made by the United States House of Representatives for the approval of President James Monroe. The letter, addressed to Alabama Territory Governor, William Wyatt Bibb, certifies the approval of these men as Council Members of the said Territory. It was signed by President James Monroe and Secretary of State, John Quincy Adams. Alabama was admitted as the 22nd state on Dec. 14, 1819.

James Titus continued to live with his family in the state of Alabama after his tenure in the Legislative Council. He and his wife, Nancy Holmes Titus, had seven children, including my 2nd great grandfather, Andrew Jackson Titus, who was born on March 12, 1814 in Madison Co., Mississippi Territory. Nancy Holmes Titus passed away on Oct. 25, 1822 in Limestone Co., Alabama. By the year 1824, James Titus had moved again. This time it was back to Tennessee.

James Titus' move to Fayette Co., Tennessee was probably made in 1824 following the death of his first born by his first wife. His name was Ebenezer Titus, and he died on Feb. 17, 1824 at the young age of 28. He was an attorney in Madison Co., Alabama. At some time before or after his move back to Tennessee, James Titus married Rebecca Edmondson, a sister to his second wife. I have documented no children in this marriage. By 1832, James Titus had moved to Shelby Co., Tennessee. He was in the employment of the United States Government in the relocation of the five civilized Indian Nations into the designated territory. (Oklahoma). They were the Choctaw, Seminole, Creek, Chickasaw and Cherokee. History would remember this as the "Trail of Tears." James Titus was to assist in the removal of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations.

The Choctaw Nation was the first of the five Nations to be relocated following the Treaty of Dancing Rabbitt Creek. The first move was scheduled to begin on Nov. 1, 1831, but due to complications to numerous to mention, did not proceed until Nov. 15, 1831. This move was disastrous for both the Indians and soldiers and men that accompanied them. It was also the first time that James Titus, accompanied by his son, Andrew Jackson Titus, set foot on Texas soil, which was then a part of Mexico. They crossed the Red River by ferry at Jonesboro crossing in early 1832. This is in current day Red River Co., Texas. The Choctaw Nation was to be moved in three successive journeys. The second move began in Nov. of 1832, culminated by the third and final move which began in Nov. of 1833. The removal of the Chickasaw Nation began in 1837. The vast majority of the Tribe was moved in the years 1837 and 1838, however a few of the Chickasaw Nation were still on the move as late as 1847.

James Titus settled permanently in the Republic of Texas in 1839, following his mission with the Federal Government. Texas had won it's independence from Mexico at the Battle of San Jacinto on April 21, 1836. Their Declaration of Independence was Signed at Washington on the Brazos on March 2, 1836, during the siege at the Alamo. which fell on March 6, 1836. The President of the Convention at Washington on the Brazos was Richard Ellis, a delegate from Red River Co., and a political acquaintance of James Titus in the days of the Alabama Territory and State. James Titus opened the first post office in Clarksville, Red River Co., Republic of Texas, and started a plantation about 15 miles to the southeast of Clarksville near Savannah, Texas. The land was a headright land grant from the Republic of Texas. Andrew Jackson Titus settled permanently in Red River Co. in Sep. of 1837. He entered the Republic of Texas with his first cousin, Peter Wright Titus, son of George Titus. Coming to Texas later would be Andrew Jackson Titus' younger brother, Dr. Thomas Fearin Titus and his sisters Isabella Rachel Titus and Miriah Louise Titus. Andrew Jackson Titus had married Jane Park Brown in Shelby Co., Tennessee on July 27, 1836. She did not accompany him to Texas initially because of the pregnancy of their first child, Ebenezer Brown Titus, who was born on April 9, 1838 in Shelby Co., Tennessee. After coming to Texas, she gave birth to their second child, Ann Rebecca "Becky" Titus on Nov. 9, 1840 in Bowie Co., Texas. Andrew Jackson "Jack" Titus had a headright land grant on the Red River north of DeKalb, Texas as did his brother Thomas Fearin Titus. James Titus also had a land grant in the same vicinity along with the one 15 miles from Clarksville. Bowie Co. had been created from Red River Co. in 1840 and named for Colonel James Bowie, hero of the Alamo. They lived the live of large land owners and planters, but that was to change.

On Jan. 26, 1839, a bill signed by Mirabeau Lamar, President of the Republic of Texas and hero of the Battle of San Jacinto, established a college at the village of DeKalb in Red River Co.. (As mentioned above, Bowie Co. was not created until 1840) The bill provided four leagues of land to be sold or leased and the proceeds used for "purchase of library, philosophical instruments, chemical laboratory, for erection of buildings, and for the promotion of arts, literature and sciences." The four leagues amounted to nearly 18,000 acres. Among the original Board appointed by the Legislature were: James N. Smith, Andrew Jackson Titus, Richard Ellis, James E. Browning, William H. Boyce, David Chisholm, Richard C. Graham (Son-in-Law to James Titus) and John H, Dyer.

The Republic of Texas was not a wealthy nor always a stable Republic. Two political factions were feuding in the eastern section of the Republic. These were the Regulators and the Moderators. The head of the Moderators was Robert Potter, who was also a Senator in the 6th Republic of Texas Congress. A few days after he had unsuccessfully tried to arrest William Pickney Rose, head of the Regulators, Potter's house on Caddo Lake was surrounded by Rose's men. Potter was shot and killed as he tried to swim to safety in Caddo Lake. An election was held to fill the unexpired term of Robert Potter, and James Titus was elected as Senator to the 6th Republic of Texas Congress representing the Red River District in the Republic. He was reelected to the 7th Congress, but died during his term on Nov. 21, 1843 at his plantation near Savannah, Texas. He was a Jacksonian Democrat and ardent supporter and friend of General Sam Houston. Before his death, he had been involved in the negotiations for Texas Statehood. Upon his death, Andrew Jackson Titus carried on his work. Texas was admitted to the union in Dec. of 1845 as the 28th state. The actual flag raising ceremony took place in Austin, Texas on Feb. 19, 1846, thus ending the Republic of Texas. For his work for the State, Titus Co. was created from Red River and Bowie Counties on May 11, 1846 and named in honor of Andrew Jackson Titus.

From his Obituary in the Weekly Appeal:
"Died at his residence in Red River Co., Texas, on the 21st Nov. last, Col. James Titus father of F. Titus of this city. The deceased was one of the oldest and most respectable residents of this Co. previous to his removal to Texas and was well known both in this state and Alabama where he had a large circle of warmly attached friends to whom this intelligence will be a source of sincere sorrow."

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 7th day of Sep. in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty five."

OBADIAH TITUS (#336) b. Jan. 20, 1788

The following is from "Titus Family of Long Island and Dutchess Co., New York" compiled by Andrew Provost, Jr. in Feb. of 1941:

"When he was ten years old, his uncle Stephen Titus' widow married George Townsend of Oyster Bay, removed to Long Island and had a daughter Mary Townsend born in 1802. The close family connection brought Mary and Obadiah together, and on Sep. 29, 1835, they were married at the Baptist Church, Oyster Bay, by Rev. Marmaduke Earl. Until Obadiah's death, Sep. 2, 1853, they resided in Dutchess Co.. His Home, 'Little Rest', near Millbrook, is said to have been named by Daniel Webster, who made a visit there to relax from political activity, but whose presence became so well known and sought for that upon terminating the visit he said that, while he had found the hospitality charming, the place should be called Little Rest. The property and the attractive residence were occupied by Obadiah's widow until about 1880, when it passed to Hon. Jacob H. Carpenter. The home and the surrounding grounds are shown by photograph in Smith's History of Dutchess Co., published in 1882. More recently, the residence was destroyed by fire.

The father of eight children, Obadiah Titus led an active life. At the age of 24, he was captain in the 111th Regiment of Infantry and was in action at the battle of Harlem Heights in 1812. He was Judge of the Court of Common Please; Sheriff of Dutchess Co. 1828-31; Member of Congress 1837-39; Secretary and for many years and active worker in the Co. Fair Association whose Fair was held annually at Washington Hollow. (The Dutchess Co. Agricultural Society.

In 1837 He and Governor Vance of North Carolina undertook a venture in sheep raising. The merino herds, formerly owned by the Royal families of France and Spain, were then available for purchase, and some 800 head were imported to start the venture, and, after arrival at Jersey City, were driven on foot to the central part of Ohio, where Obadiah had already been to purchase a ranch near Circleville. As managers of the business, Obadiah selected his young brother Mott, and his brother-in-law Jesse Hendrickson, of Oyster Bay. The separate pilgrimages of these two, with their families and all of their belongings, by sail boat to Albany, and by canal boat to Buffalo, by ship to Cleveland, and by canal boat again to a point near their destination, have been separately recorded by members of the parties and are still preserved in their letters to relatives in the East. Each trip must have taken nearly three months...

... Comprehensive articles on the lives of Obadiah and Mary Titus appeared in the Dutchess Co. Press of Sep. 1835 and in the Poughkeepsie Press of April, 1885. He died at Little Rest Aug. 22, 1854."

JESSE TITUS (#355) b. Oct. 13, 1791

He moved to Waterford Twp., Erie Co., PA in 1830. He returned to Albany Co., NY in late 1831 in connection with settlement of his father's estate. It is believed that Jesse and his third wife Lydia (WING) divorced shortly in late Dec. of 1831or early 1832 due to Lydia not wanting to move back to the hardships of the wilderness of Erie Co., PA.

Jesse eventually returned back to Venango Twp., Erie Co., PA after marrying his 4th wife, Maranda Ann Cantine. The area where Jesse Titus and his descendants lived was known as "Titus' Corners" and was near the town lines of Amity and Venango Twp. They lived there until his death in 1873.

The following is from "A History of the TITUS - CAPRON and Related Families" by Elroy Wilson Titus (1984). The article is found on page 306 of Vol. 1 and is titled " A Visit to the Phillipsville/Union Cemetery, Venango Twp., Erie Co., Pennsylvania, with Miss Maud L. A. Titus, of Erie, Pennsylvania":

On Saturday, Aug. 14, 1971, Elroy W. and Laura C. (WARMAN) Titus, with William D. and Matilda (Smith) Sevon, drove to Erie, Pa. Elroy Titus had previously corresponded with Maud L. A. Titus (granddaughter of Arthur Titus) and she had mailed him two loose-leaf binders of typed records on the Titus family in Erie Co., Pa., and except for an imperfectly healed broken hip - making it necessary to use a walker - she was in excellent health for her age. She was alert, remembered and reasoned clearly and was an excellent conversationalist. She is a rather tall lady, of fair complexion, and with white hair, well coiffured.

Maud L. A. Titus guided us to the Union Cemetery (also called the Phillipsville Cemetery) southeast of Erie, off Route 8, near Phillipsville and Titus Corners, also near Lake Pleasant - all near Wattsburg - in the southwest corner of Venango Twp.. Our first stop was at the Union Cemetery, just beyond which lay what had been the farm of Casper R. Titus, great grandfather of Elroy W. Titus.

The cemetery was well kept, shaded along the road by huge maple trees. In the front corner toward where his farm had been, were the graves of Casper R. Titus and his wife, Miriam C. Sackett. The graves of Cepas Capron and his wife Sarah Titus, the oldest child of Casper and Miriam C. (Sackett) Titus, were at the back center of the cemetery. In this group were also Charles M. Capron and his wife Esma. Esma was a daughter of Lewis E. Titus and his second wife Ida Belle Jones.

Lewis E. Titus and his first wife Ellen (May) Titus were also buried in this cemetery. Lewis E. Titus had been a Civil War soldier in the 111th Pennsylvania Infantry. A grave marked "Kitty Titus" was seen, with graves nearby of her children Ellen and Alice, who died young. Katherine ("Kitty") Sackett was the first wife of Edwin Titus, a son of Casper R. and Miriam C. (Sackett) Titus. She was a niece of Miriam (Sackett) Titus and a cousin of her husband, Edwin Titus. Edwin's grave was not seen, probably he is buried with his second wife, Elizabeth (Carr) Holmes, widow of Jim Holmes.

A Moon family plot was noted, with graves of Alfred and Hannah Moon and others, and with the grave of Mildred S. Titus in the same plot. The exact relationship of Mildred Titus is not known. There are several Moon-Titus family connections, apparent from a cursory reading of the Maud Titus records. The graves of George and Allie J. Denne were noted. Allie Dennee was a daughter of Lewis E. and Ellen (May) Titus, mentioned above.

Grouped at the back of the cemetery were the gravestones of Jesse Titus, the original settler of the name in Erie Co., who came from Albany Co., NY in 1830. He was the father of Casper R. Titus (great grandfather of Elroy Titus) and of Arthur Titus (grandfather of Maud L. A. Titus). The gravestones of Jesse Titus and of Maranda A. Cantine, his fourth wife, had been in the Butler Farm Cemetery (a small cemetery on a private farm) where they are buried. In 1964 the stones had fallen over, and Miss Maud Titus, with others, had the stones moved to the Union Cemetery to placed in a family group.

Jesse Titus' gravestone is beside that of his fourth wife, Maranda Ann Cantine, who had married Hiram Lamport after the death of Jesse - which accounts for the inscription on her gravestone. The graves of his daughters, Susan (Titus) Crain and Eliza (Titus) Holand, are nearby. Also nearby are the monuments of his son Daniel Wood Titus and his wife Maria Langdon; and of Arthur and Mare Jane (Phillips) Titus. Daniel, Arthur, and Eliza were children of Jesse by his first marriage to Susanna Wood. Casper and Susan were children of Jesse by his third marriage to Lydia Wing; while Lewis E. Titus (and others not noted in this cemetery) were by his fourth marriage to Maranda Ann Cantine. He also had one child by his second marriage to Patience Gurney: Abraham Jesse Gurney Titus, who was raised in New York by his mother's parents, living as an adult in Warren Co., NY. Elory took several color slides in the Union Cemetery before leaving.

We next drove down around the area, originally 1800 acres owned by the Phillips family, who gave their name to Phillipsvile, and from whose land the farms of Jesse Titus and others were carved. First we saw the farm of Casper Titus next to the graveyard - then the farms of Arthur Titus and of Daniel Titus. We saw the location of the original farm of Jesse Titus. Then, approaching Lake Pleasant, the area where Henry C. Titus had lived. Henry had furnished the lumber for a church near Lake Pleasant, no longer in use but still standing. We saw Lake Pleasant, a beautiful body of water, a natural lake - not a dammed stream, where a hotel and a small settlement had once been. The country was glacial moraine - a productive gravely soil, which had good crops of corn and potatoes on the farms which we saw. Hay and grain are also produced and dairy cattle are raised..."

SILAS TITUS (#401) b. May 13, 1811

Silas was born on May 30th, 1811 in Wolcott, Wayne Co., New York. His father Stephen and mother Sarah died when he was only three years old. His uncle Platt Titus wrapped him in a blanket and carried him on horseback to his farm in Cato, Cayuga Co. New York.

Silas decided not to become a farmer like his uncle and was hired as a clerk in 1827 at the general store of W. S. Inghams. The same year he was commissioned as Deputy Post Master of Cato, NY. He worked at the store until 1832 when he moved to Detroit, Michigan to look for a job with $50 in his pocket. That year he voted for Andrew Jackson for President. Silas was successful finding work and in 1833 he went into business for himself.

In 1835 he took a stage coach to New York City going through Buffalo and Albany. While in Albany he saw the first railroad in New York running from Schenectady to Albany. The new technology impressed Silas so much that when he returned to Detroit he organized a town meeting that approved building a railroad from Detroit to Ypsilanti. According to the 1880 History of Livingston Co., Michigan, Silas is listed as one of the commissioners of the Detroit and Shiawasse Railroad Company. This was the first 30 mile continuous stretch of railroad in the United States!

In 1837 he married Eliza McCarthy, daughter of Thomas and Percy McCarthy (Percy's maiden name was Soule and is reportedly a direct descendant of passengers of the Mayflower). "A Family History" by Melchor Balaguer and Marcella Roccatagliata Balaguer, 1995: "Bishop DuBois of New York City traveled to Salina ("Salt Point") near Syracuse, to perform the marriage of Colonel Silas Titus to Eliza McCarthy, even though the colonel was a 7th Day Adventist. The marriage record became the first catholic records in Onondaga County. The young priest accompanying the Bishop as a sherpa was to become Cardinal McCloskey, the first Archbishop of New York to be created cardinal..."

He returned to New York in 1840 and settled in Salina outside of Syracuse. He went into business with Dennis McCarthy operating a general store for ten years. In 1850 he was appointed by the Supervisors of Onondaga Co. to the position of Superintendent of the Penitentiary. He held that position for seven years when he decided to go into the lumber business with Dennis McCarthy. The 1860 Federal Census lists Silas Titus' occupation as a Lumber Merchant. He stayed in the lumber business until 1861 when the Civil War began.

CIVIL WAR SERVICE

In the first few weeks of the Civil War, Silas(7) enlisted in Syracuse as a member of the 12th New York regiment and went to the front. The 12th was the first New York regiment raised and equipped after President Lincoln first called for state troops. The regiment rushed to Washington to prepare to advance on the confederacy. At 4 o'clock the morning following the 12th NY's arrival in Washington, President Lincoln and Secretary of State William Seward drove out to the camp in a carriage. The President personally thanked the officers of the 12th New York saying "I'm glad to see you here boys". He then shook the hand of every solider in the regiment.

The regiment moved out of the Washington camp to Albany, Virginia until July 1861 when it advanced on the enemy at the first battle of Bull Run in Manassas, Virginia. The 12th New York took light casualties in the battle including the first man killed of the Army of the Potomac in the war. After the battle the regiment retreated back to Washington with the rest of the Union army to regroup. Soon after Bull Run, Silas was made Adjutant of General Duncan Peck's staff and held that position until the battle of Seven Pines in June 1862.
In July of 1862 he took a leave of absence due to poor health and went home to Syracuse. While he was home recovering he was chosen to be Colonel of the new 122nd NY Volunteer regiment that was being raised at the time. The following are articles clipped from the local newspaper during the summer of 1862:

During the Civil War, the Syracuse newspapers had several articles about Silas Titus. Many of these articles contained direct quotes, stories or descriptions of his personality and character. Excerpts of some of these articles are presented below:

6/28/62 "CAPT. SILAS TITUS, GEN. PECK'S ADJUTANT – A correspondent of the New York Tribune writes from Seven Pines, under date of the 23d instant, giving an account of the admirable care taken of his regiment (the New York Fifteenth) by Col. McLeod Murphy, and then proceeds as follows:*

I impose a violent restraint on myself when I avoid making the logical and dutiful application of the truths which cluster about the discipline of this regiment. But I go by them, and away from them, and into the tent of a tall, gray-haired, blazing-eyed, grave, but mortally earnest man, with a captain's straps upon his shoulders, and I salute him with reverted palm to the visor of my cap, and say: "Titus, make your bed wide enough for two to-night."

"I will do so, my lad, with the greatest pleasure" The German pipe is withdrawn from the heavy, grizzled mustache, and the rails and hemlock boughs, foundation for the bed of single blessedness, are spread for the double-sleeping of domestic felicity. "Allow me to show you. When a horseman in the field, in the presence of the enemy, goes to bed, he should be prepared to get quickly and without confusion into his clothes and into his saddle. Recollect that we are not more than two miles from 40,000 rebels, every one of whom would esteem it a privilege, as well as a duty, to kill you If you will undress, place your pantaloons and coat under your head; put your shoes there at the foot of the hemlock. But long before this, my friend, take up the saddle and get out the blanket; place the saddle on the rack; put your blanket on top of it; lift up the stirrups and lap them over the blanket; take your bridle, disentangle the reins, loop them up to the head-band, and tie them there loosely, thus: and then hang your bridle on the saddle-bow. You can now take that saddle and that bridle and put them on a horse, without confusion, in the darkest night that ever shrouded an army..."

"... I have hunted deer in Northern Michigan, and in the John Brown tract, since I was fourteen years old. I have learned the Indian ways of tracking a forest. I can approach game noiselessly. I see all things. I hear all sounds. My observation has been sharpened by culture with a rifle in my hand, till I feel that it would be but sport for me to go out into that swamp, and kill every rebel picket on a line from here to the camp this side of Richmond. I know I could do it, and come back without a scratch. This confidence, the result of familiarity with the forest, and a life-long pursuit of large game, makes it no hardship whatever for me, at midnight, to mount my horse and go through four miles of picket line and see if all is right..."

... The son of a soldier, the grandson of a soldier, he fitly received a sergeant's commission at fourteen years of age, and went through every grade of the infantry, cavalry, and artillery regiment before he was thirty. When the rebellion flamed to a head in the bombardment of Sumter, this gentleman abandoned a lucrative business instantly – literally tumbled his operatives into the street – stopped his steam engine, and put out its fires – locked the doors and threw the keys away – and then hunted for the regiment that would soonest march to the protection of the National Capital. Bankers and men of business, who knew his worth and military experience, begged him to wait and take command of a regiment. His ardor would know no restraint. Washington was in danger, and one arm, at least, should strike for its relief. He marched forthwith – as a simple adjutant.

For more than a year he labored in forming his regiment into a high toned, thoroughly disciplined body of soldiers. Almost forcibly taken out of it by a Brigadier General who knew his value, he served nominally as First Assistant Adjutant-General in the battle of Williamsburg, and by his skill in woodcraft, and his perfect courage, contributed much to the success of Peck's desperate fighting on Hooker's right. He afterwards literally led the labors which opened our war path across the Chickamahominy, and when I made acquaintance with him was giving day after day to the tracking and mapping of the White Oak swamp, and the outlets and inlets of the Charles City road, and the determination of the entire picket ground upon which the safety of the left wing, and perhaps of the entire army of the Potomac, was to rest.

And when, at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, in the midst of the battle of the Seven Pines, I saw that no brigaded enemy burst through from the swamp on our flank, but that in back columns they were countermarching across our extremest front to strike our right, I felt the worth of the work the good soldier and the faithful officer had done. On the field with the German pipe ever in his mouth, he went from regiment to regiment in his brigade, rode through the ranks, communicated his coolness and quietness to the nervous, spoke cheerfully to all; and when orders came for the regiments, one after the other, to go under fire, he led them each and showed them where they were to do their work, and parted from them with rousing little speeches of fiery patriotism. Returned he rallied the running, gathered up the broken and scattered, reanimated the discouraged – all the while without haste of gesture or flurry of voice. And when the numbers prevailed, and the bravest had to go from before a fire which it was annihilation to face, fragments of brigades were safely taken by him from the field, through wood roads which probably he alone of all the officers of the army knew – may I not say, alone had the enterprise and prudence to discover?- for it was a soldier's duty; and he never neglected duty.

7/16/62 "SERENADE TO CAPT. TITUS - A large number of the personal friends of Capt. Silas Titus "irrespective of party", called at his residence on Burnet street last evening, accompanied by Dresser's Brass Band, and complimented with a hearty welcome home. Capt. Titus responded in a neat little speech, briefly referring to the recent stirring events on the Peninsula, the bravery and heroic bearing of our gallant army under the most trying circumstances, and to the high military qualities of the General commanding, as also to those of our townsmen Gens. Peck and Slocum. His remarks were heartily applauded. The Band played "Home, Sweet Home" and other familiar airs. Capt. Titus threw open his house to friends, and they received from him a warm personal greeting."*

7/18/62 "COLONEL TITUS - The Military Committee of the Twenty second Senatorial District, at their meeting last evening, unanimously recommended Silas Titus, of this city, to Governor Morgan for the position of Colonel of the new regiment being raised in this Co. under the late call for additional troops. We think this selection will give very general satisfaction. Capt. Titus has been with the army from the commencement of the war, and for the past ten months has occupied a position on the staff of Gen. John. J. Peck. He has greatly distinguished himself by activity, energy and daring, and his gallant service in the field at Williamsburg, Seven Pines, Fair Oaks and White Oak Swamp have been brought before Government by his superiors in command, and are duly recognized. His name will increase the enthusiasm which is already swelling in our midst, and we think we can safely predict that, should the recommendation of the committee be sanctioned by the Governor, within a very brief period the third regiment from Onondaga will be fully prepared and equipped for the field."*

8/9/62 "COL TITUS - The commandant of the Syracuse military depot has been confined to his house for several days, by illness doubtless produced by over work and excitement. He has, however, continued the discharge of the general duties of his office, and will probably resume active outdoor duties on Monday."*

8/16/62 "COLONEL OF THE NEW REGIMENT - There is an impression prevalent that the Colonelcy of the Third Onondaga regiment is not filled definitely. We understand that the matter has been settled,- the Senatorial Military Committee having recommended the appointment of Col. Silas Titus, and the Governor having approved the selection. It is perhaps a question whether, under the Secretary of War's recent order, that "no officer now in the field will, under any circumstances be detailed to accept a new command," he is not shut out from accepting the position,- he holding and appointment on Gen. Peck's staff."*

29th Reunion of the 122nd NY Vol Regiment.
Col. Silas Titus is sitting in the front row center with white hair and beard.

8/18/62 "COL. TITUS - The commandant of the new Onondaga regiment is slowly recovering from his recent illness. He rode out yesterday, and this morning met with the Military Committee. He hopes to be at Camp Andrews tomorrow." Col. Titus and the new 122nd NY Vol. regiment arrived at the front just in time for the battle of Antietem. They were positioned on the far left flank of the enemy and were fortunate not to have been directly engaged in what was one of the most deadliest battles of the war.*

Three months after Antietem, on Dec. 13th, the 122nd found themselves supporting the Pennsylvania Reserves in the assault on Fredericksburg Heights. They spent four hours under artillery fire with only four men wounded at the end of the day. The following is a clipping from a local Syracuse newspaper after Fredericksburg:

"NARROW ESCAPE OF COL. TITUS - From correspondence of the New York Herald, dated "Below Fredericksburg, 7th inst.," we learn that Col. Silas Titus. of the 122nd, had a very narrow escape on the afternoon of that day. The picket firing the day be fore had been almost continuous, but on the 7th the rebels slackened up a little, and only when mounted officers rode out to reconnoiter did they manifest their sharp-shooting proclivities. Col. Titus galloped to the front, to see how matters stood, when an entire volley of English lead was fired at him, but though the balls came uncomfortably near him, he escaped unhurt."

In the summer of 1863, the 122nd NY was a part of First Brigade, Third Division, Sixth Corps. The night of July 1, the 6th corps raced double time all night up the Baltimore Pike towards the sounds of distant artillery fire. As the regiment crossed the Pennsylvania - Maryland line, the regimental flag unfurled to the breeze and the drum corps played "Yankee Doodle". Everyone was aware of the importance of the imminent battle on Northern soil. At about 4 o'clock the corps reached the Gettysburg battlefield where they were held in reserve for the night to allow the tired troops some much needed sleep.

Col. Silas Titus – 1891 at the 29th reunion of the 122nd NY Volunteers

They were engaged in the Battle of Gettysburg on the Morning of July 3rd on the north side of the battlefield in the area of Cemetery Hill and Culps Hill. In the afternoon of the 3rd the 122nd NY was held in reserve behind the Union right during Pickett's charge. The following is a report describing the 122nd NY in the battle, written by Brigadier-General Alexander Shaler, commander of the First Brigade, Third Division, sixth Corps:

HDQRS. FIRST BRIG., THIRD DIV., SIXTH CORPS. July 21,1863

"MAJOR: I have the honor to hand you the following report of the movements and operations of the several regiments of this brigade while under command of Brigadier-General Geary, during the action of the morning of July 3: At 9 a.m. the One hundred and twenty-second New York Volunteers, Col. Silas Titus commanding, was directed to relieve the One hundred and eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteers, then occupying a position in the front line. Finding the breastworks had been hastily vacated by that regiment, they were immediately reoccupied by the One hundred and twenty-second, and held by them, under severe fire of the enemy, until relieved by the Eighty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers at 11.30 a.m. At 9.20 a.m. the Twenty-third Pennsylvania Volunteers, Lieut. Col. John F. Glenn commanding, was placed in position as support to, and 150 yards in rear of, the front line. After about three hours, five companies were, by direction of General Geary, reported to the lieutenant-colonel commanding a regiment of the Second Division, Twelfth Corps. These companies, being deployed in rear of the works, were, under a galling fire of musketry, advanced into them. Owing to the heavy fire immediately opened by the enemy, the design of feeling them with skirmishes was found impracticable. Skirmishes were advanced, however, about 15 paces, but were shortly afterward withdrawn. At 11 a.m. the Sixty-seventh New York Volunteers, Col. Nelson Cross commanding, marched into the woods and forward to the breastworks, from which the enemy were then fleeing. They succeeded in capturing about 20 prisoners.

At 11.15 o'clock the Sixty-fifth New York Volunteers, Col. Joseph E. Hamblin commanding, occupied a position as support to the Twenty-third Pennsylvania Volunteers, of this brigade. At 11.30 a.m. the Eighty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers, Col. I. C. Basset commanding, advanced to the front line, relieving the One hundred and twenty second New York, and occupying the position until relieved by a portion of General Geary's command at about 3 p. m. At this hour the brigade was reformed under my command. I annex a list of killed, wounded, and missing during the engagements.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, Alexander Shaler, Brigadier-General, Commanding Brigade"

Shortly after Gettysburg Silas was ordered to serve as Provost Marshal of the General Court Marshal in Trenton, New Jersey.

5/6/64 "COLONEL TITUS A PROVOST MARSHAL - The Baldwinville Gazette states that it is informed that Col. Titus of the 122d regiment, has been detailed as Assistant Provost General for the State of New Jersey, and is located at Trenton."*

9/5/64 "THE VOICE OF A WAR DEMOCRAT - Col Silas Titus of the 122d, made a rousing speech at the war meeting yesterday afternoon. He made a plain talk to the Peace Democrats, who in his eyes, as in those of all true soldiers, were loathsome objects of pity. The Colonel proclaimed that he had always been a Democrat, is now a Democrat and always will be a Democrat, and that Abraham Lincoln was as good a Democrat as there is in the land, and so good a one that he (Col. T.) as a Democrat could give him his most hearty and cordial support.*

After serving one year as a member of the court martial he resigned and returned to Syracuse. He was very active in the organization of the city of Syracuse and served as Alderman for two years and Supervisor in 1865. In the battle of Fort McGruder a rebel flag was captured and was kept by Col. Titus for several years after the war. Col. Titus' son Silas W. took the flag back to Virginia and presented it to "those entitled to receive it".

COL. SILAS TITUS.

In the late 1890's, he lived with his son Silas W. in Brooklyn. In 1899 there was a fire in his son's home (caused by Col. Titus smoking on the couch) and Col Titus was dragged to safety by his daughter-in-law. He died two weeks later on Oct. 4, 1899. According to "A Family History" by Melchor Balaguer and Marcella Roccatagliata Balaguer, 1995: "...After Eliza died, the Colonel went to live with his son Silas Wright Titus. Colonel Titus died because he was messy while his daughter-in-law was neat. Mary Louise always placed newspapers on the floor under his ashtrays and spittoons. One day the Colonel fell asleep while smoking in his favorite chair, and the newspapers caught fire. Mary Louise was upstairs bathing the children with the serving girl. Mary Louise ran down to drag her father-in-law out of the flames, then went back up, but the 14 year-old serving girl had already wrapped wet towels around the children and carried them out of the house. The Colonel died a few days later from smoke inhalation"

WICKES S. TITUS (#409) b. June 23, 1820

The following is from a clipping of a 1903 Newspaper article found in the Syracuse Public Library: "W.S. Titus 83 years old. The Rev. W.S. Titus is 83 years old today. For more than fifty years he has been a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church, and today he is just as vigorous as a speaker as he was years ago. Mr. Titus is a well known figure wherever ministers of his denomination meet, and he is a regular and interested attendant at the meetings of the interdenominational association, frequently taking a leading part in debates and discussions. His particular subject for discussion is the use of tobacco, which he abhors as an instrument of the devil and as a sister of intoxicating beverages.

Mr. Titus recently prepared the following sketch of his life at the request of the Herald: I was born June 23rd, 1820, in Victory, Cayuga Co.. My ancestors were more distinguished for patriotism than piety. Reliable tradition assures our descent on the maternal side from Nathaniel W. Greene, who superseded Gates in our Southern Revolutionary army and who never lost a battle. My grandmother living in hearing of the guns of Saratoga. She told me how all day long they awaited the result, fearing Burgoyne's Indian allies would be let loose to butcher them all if he was victorious. I remember well when Syracuse was only "Cossetts Corners," a little huddle of cheap houses. In our log house, twenty miles west, I was reared, amid all the stern struggles of the early settler, whose axes swept away the giant forests, and whose food was wild meat, milk, pork, hominy and johnnycake.

Our large fireplaces took about one-eighth of a cord of wood. My two older brothers, with an ax, would draw in logs four or five feet in diameter, and then what a roaring fire for days. Often the snow was an inch or more thick on our beds in the morning. The Lucifer match had not arrived, so when the fire went out I waded through the snow to some neighbors to borrow fire. We wore homespun and my father was an expert wool carder.

Our home library was Franklin's Poor Richard's almanac, Fox's Book of Martyrs, the Pilgrims' Progress and the Bible. My mother dying before I was three years old, dedicated me to God and the ministry. At 17 I gave myself to God in a marked conversation, taught a large district school for $10 a month and "boarded round" among the farmers. The district school libraries soon gratified my insatiable thirst for knowledge. Debating schools roused my ambition for public speaking and the acquisition of every form of useful learning. I thirsted to become acquainted with the ancient classics, mathematics and the sciences. At 18 I started out, with $20 and went to Hamilton Literary and Theological seminary, where I remained three years. I went to Union college in 1846, graduated there in a class of 85 in 1848, and at Union Theological seminary, New York, in 1850.

The cross lots course through college and seminary, toiling for self support all the time, greatly marred its thoroughness, while it taught me self-reliance and inured me to excessive toil. Offered and accepted for our China mission at Fuchau, in 1850, I was received into the New Jersey conference, but Providence interposing I was send as pastor to Bergen. In 1851 I went to Milltown, where in one year a new church was built, and 100 members added. In 1852 I was a teacher in Pennington seminary, and in 1853 transferred to Black River conference and appointed teacher in Falley Seminary at Fulton. In 1854 I was sent to Ogdensburg, then to Canton in 1856, thence to State Street, Watertown, Camden, West Winfield, Weedsport, Wolcott, Lowville and other fields, till the age of 70, in 1890, I was superannuated. For the twelve years since I have resided in Syracuse, where in the First Reformed church near my home, I enjoy Bible class work, and all the means of grace with that noble people. And now, at 83, in full vigor, I am trying to keep step with the great army that is lifting up this world to holiness and heaven, rejoicing to be in the fight, till beckoned away to the starry crown and the kingdom of kings. Especially do I rejoice that the secular press is daily becoming more and more an ally of the church, in all her great work, as every element of human progress, born of Christianity, owes to the church the whole strength of its service.

I will now give some political reminiscences and amusing incidents for the delectation of the boys. I remember the election of Andrew Jackson and the hickory poles in 1828; Van Burren's in 1836, when we boys sang "Little Van is a Used Up Man", and "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too," and sure enough "Log Cabins" and hard cider and singing swung Harrison into the Presidential chair, to rest there only one month. Then John Tyler took the helm of the ship of State, to moor it in peaceful democratic waters, to the infinite disgust of the Whigs. I visited Mr. Tyler at the White House, and Daniel Webster, his Secretary of State, on my return from two years' teaching in Virginia and Georgia. There I had seen slavery and plantation life. I was often awakened at dawn by the crack of the driver's whip and the yells of the negroes, as he went from cabin to cabin to muster them into the corn field..."

ANDREW JACKSON TITUS (#420) b. March 12, 1814

He was active in the early Indian wars of Northeast TX, and was one of the leaders in removing the Indians from the Titus Co. area. Titus Co. was named for him when it was created in 1846. He was a volunteer in the Mexican War and was discharged with the rank of Colonel. Served in the Texas state legislature in 1851. Gave land for the establishment of a school and a cemetery in Red River Co. and helped organize the First Presbyterian Church in the area. Organized a Masonic Lodge in Coleman Springs. Buried in the Savannah Cemetery, a few miles south of Annona, TX.

From a letter by O. Lynne Titus, Nov. 29, 2000, Grand Prairie, Texas: "... My gggrandfather Andrew Jackson "Jack" Titus was a very civic minded individual. He was the first Postmaster of Savannah, Texas. He held a high position in the Masonic Fraternity. He opened up the Titus Co. area to the river port at Jefferson, Texas. He later served in the 4th Texas State Legislature in 1851-52. He died at the young age of 41 at 7:00 o'clock in the morning at his plantation near Savannah, Texas. It's sad, because of the pure nature of his character, he could have fulfilled so many other things in his life for the benefit of his family and fellow citizens.

Before his death, a third child was born to "Jack " Titus and his wife Jane Park Titus. It was a son named James Fearin Titus, who is my great grandfather. He was born on Jan. 21, 1853 in Red River Co., Texas.

"Jack" Titus did not live to see the Civil War, but certainly his family did. His oldest son, Ebenezer Brown Titus, entered the service as a 1st Lieutenant with the "Savannah Blues", which was formed on June 22, 1861, Captain James Gilliam, Commanding. He later became Captain E. B. Titus, Commander of Company K, 34th Texas Calvary (dismounted), Confederate States of America. He was badly wounded, being shot several times, during the fight at Yellow Bayou on May 13, 1864. This was during the Red River Campaign. He was discharged later that same year.

After the war's end, hard times were in store for the Titus family as it was for people all over Texas and the southern states. They still had land, but no one to work it. The Confederate money was worthless. This set a precedent that was to carry on for several generations. Most of the land would eventually be gone. I know not all the reasons for the loss of the land, but stories have passed down through the years about all the hardships. My gggrandfather, Andrew Jackson Titus, was a wealthy land owner, planter and politician. His youngest son, My great grandfather, James Fearin "Tobe" Titus, was a poor farmer on what was left of James Titus Headright near Savannah, Texas. My gggrandmother, Jane Park Brown Titus died on March 11, 1869. Times were so bad after the Civil War, that there is not even a headstone for her next to her husband. Ebenezer B. Titus died at the Savannah plantation on Jan. 31, 1883 of pneumonia. He was only 44 years old. Ann Rebecca "Becky" Titus died on Oct. 9, 1906 in Red River Co., Texas."

From the Young article, 1964: "... Andrew Jackson Titus was active in developing the area in which he lived. It is interesting to me that of all the land available, they chose the sandy type soil. This was done, according to a relative, because there was plenty of water and timber, both necessary for farming at this time. Since there was a heavily timbered section, a ready cash crop was at hand...

... Col. Titus would have been proud of his descendants. On the genealogy table, we note teachers, lawyers, store owners, lawmen and doctors. As one granddaughter told us, the Titus men died early. Col. Titus died at the age of 41. In that time he had build a road, a post office, established a church and Masonic Lodge, served in the Legislature, fought a war, helped in establishing annexation of Texas, and had a Co. named after him. In concluding:

We put a lilac where he lay - Col. Andrew Jackson Titus, giant of his time.
We turned and walked away - In search of knowledge of his kind.
History now reveals this man believed, built and fought - Because his heart was in this land
Can we do less than follow what he taught? - So we placed a lilac where he lay in the East Texas sand.

HENRY THEODORE TITUS (#433) b. Feb. 13, 1822

Henry Theodore Titus Bio: Mostly from the memory of his daughter, Mary (Minnie) Titus, compiled by H.T. Titus' great grandson, Harry Wayne Titus some time after 1973. It has also been reprinted in "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus" by John Alva Titus in 1987.

"Late in 1867 Colonel Henry Theodore Titus arrived and Sand Point, Florida, where he founded the city that was to bear his name. This event marked a significant change in the live of Col. Titus.

Henry T. Titus was born in Trenton, New Jersey, on Feb. 13, 1822. At the age of twenty-eight, in Aug. of 1850, Henry Titus achieved nation-wide notice when he joined the revolutionist Narciso Lopez to form an expedition to help free Cuba from Spanish control. Titus was assigned the responsibility of enlisting recruits in the Southern States from a headquarters in Jacksonville, Florida.

A year later, Lopez and some of his followers arrived in Cuba from New Orleans on the ship Pampero. The Pampero then sailed to Jacksonville to load the recruits, arms and supplies. As Colonel Titus trained his men near Fornandina, word was received that Lopez and some of his men had been captured and executed in Cuba. The Pampero rushed back to Jacksonville but was seized by Federal ships and men in Dunn's Lake, a tributary of the St. John's River. Colonel Titus was arrested for violating the neutrality laws of the United States. He was later tried, but no evidence was found of any punishment.

Following his release, Colonel Titus became a merchant in Jacksonville. It was during this time that Henry T. Titus married Evalina Hopkins, the daughter of the prominent General Edward Stephen Hopkins. On April 2, 1856, the Jacksonville Florida Republican announced that Colonel and Mrs. Titus were to leave for Kansas and stated that Colonel Titus' "adaptation by experience, as well as by physical proportions, for frontier life, warrant us in predicting for him a successful career in that new territory."

The Tituses joined with other Southerners in supporting the pro-slavery cause in Kansas. It was not long before open combat with the abolitionists ensued, and the entire nation became inflamed over the situation. Colonel Titus' activity in "Bleeding Kansas" is surrounded with controversy. Some newspaper reports stated that Titus was a coward, but Mrs. Titus wrote that "... Titus' bravery commands the admiration of everyone - the enemy say they never saw such a man." Colonel Titus was captured by the abolitionists and faced the possibility of being executed; however, he was released in a prisoner exchange. Not long after this event, peace cam to Kansas, and in Dec. 1856 Colonel Titus left the area.

The Kansas episode is vividly recalled in the early recollections of Mary Evelina Titus, known to her family as Minnie, the younger daughter of Henry and Evelina:

'Daddy was a Northern man and never owned a slave in his life, but he espoused the Southern cause and went to Kansas with a number of Southern men. Mother went also, and they were in the thick of things there. I remember my father telling of having John Brown's sons as prisoners and of feeling sorry for them and letting the ride mules unbound upon their promise not to try to escape, but the first chance they got they were off.

Father was wounded by a minie ball, which came out just before he died in large abscess. It was while he was in Kansas his rheumatic condition made its first appearance, which finally was to cripple him and cause his death...'

The "Border Ruffian" as Titus was then called, gathered a group of men to join the Nicaraguan Army under the "President" of Nicaragua, William Walker. The troops arrived in Nicaragua on Feb. 4, 1857. All accounts indicated that Colonel Titus showed no bravery in his commands in Nicaragua. One report stated that the Colonel was dashing madly about with a pistol, fearing attack from his own men. In April, Titus fled to San Francisco.

Nothing is known of Colonel Titus' activities from late 1857 until the Civil War. Confederate records showed Titus was paid for delivery of supplies and materials during most of the war. In 1863 while captain of the ship Charm, Colonel Titus was captured on the Indian River. Several of his passengers were trying to avoid the Confederate Conscript Act. What happened as a result of the capture is not known. It is apparent, however, that Colonel Titus was a Confederate blockade-runner and that he was familiar with the Indian River area.

After the Civil War Colonel Titus returned to his wife and family. He was now severely afflicted with muscular rheumatism and in order to help his condition determined to move to a warmer climate. Perhaps he remembered the Indian River with its warm climate and great beauty and decided to return to this vicinity to live. Minnie Titus related the events of 1865 to 1867:

'In 1865 (I was three years old at the time) my father and mother and we children made the first trip down from New York on the Indian River, which was the new name of the old blockade-runner. The trip was disastrous, and we had to abandon ship.

For many years at low tide the remains of he ship's hull could be seen; a few years ago the cannons were salvaged and now adorn the Fort Pierce park, supposedly the cannons from a pirate ship, but in reality the only part of the old Indian River ever to reach dry land. They were encrusted with barnacles and rust, but a mute reminder of days of yore when the South fought to break the blockade and when the company's dream of a fortune to be made in 'oysters and green turtle' was buried in the sea.

After reaching land at Fort Capron (Fort Pierce) they (Colonel Titus and Judge Payne) build a cannery to can oysters, green turtles, etc. to be sold in the north. To finish what might be left of father's dream, the cannery caught fire and went up in smoke, leaving only some cans and burned machinery to attest to his vision of future prosperity. The insurance company they were insured with failed also, so the venture was a total loss.

While there, waiting for my father to become well enough to travel, I have vivid recollection, though only three years old, of seeing the Indians driving their hogs in for us to buy. It seems that the squaws did this, and I don't know how it always seemed to happen at sundown. The man would come in the dining rooms while we were eating and sit down on the table. They would eat anything my mother gave them, but their manners left much to be desired. I was very afraid of them.

Early in 1867 we journeyed up the Indian River to Jacksonville on the sailing vessel Live Yankee. We slept on beds of green palmetto fans covered with blankets and under mosquito bars. Father left the family in New York and returned to Florida. The cold of the north was not good for his rheumatism; the warmth and sunshine of Florida attracted him. He was a great sufferer by then...

My mother owned a tract of land at what was then Sand Point, now Titusville. Father conceived the idea of founding a town and opening that part of the country. In two years (early 1869) the family joined him. We had no lack of company for we had many friends in New York who came to spend the winters and to hunt and fish as well as enjoy the climate. Lord and Lady Parker, from England were among the visitors.'

From that point Colonel Titus' life changed. He was determined to build a city of significance in a land he came to love. There is some indication that he ruled his land with an "iron hand"; however, he was always the first to fight for the improvement and the betterment of his town.

Minnie Titus' recollections contain accounts of some of the accomplishments of her father, Colonel Titus: ' Father established a 'mule team' to connect Titusville with the St. Johns river steamer which ran from Enterprise opposite to where Sanford now is on Lake Monroe. This was a great help... He also established a mail route which was carried on horseback. The route by sailboat from Daytona to Jupiter was delivered once a week.

He had a machine to make shingles and also all kinds of fancy canes, cups and saucers, and napkin rings out of native wood. Ligvum Vitae, crab wood, palmetto, and black mangrove were among the woods used.

Daddy gave me employment to many in clearing out the land and laying out the town buildings. He was a lover of beauty; Titusville still has wide streets which he beautified with shade trees and shrubs, bringing in hibiscus and other plants.'

In 1870 the Titus House was completed. It was '...built in what may be called the tropical style - a large main building with two long wings, all one story high, forming three sides of a square neatly laid out in a garden, and with the rooms opening off the wide verandahs like a row of houses in a city block. The table at once convinces the guest that he is in a tropical region, the meats being principally oysters, clams, fish, etc. with many strange and familiar fruits and vegetables, all tropical and fresh...'

The Titus house became the 'hub of social activity' for the Indian River area. If the dining room did not appeal, Titus' ample saloon would. Guests came from hundreds of miles to purchase the fine liquors, imported wines, and ales. The saloon was even provided with a billiard table.

Colonel Titus entertained many prominent people at the Titus House. One guest, who stayed in the House in 1875, later wrote of the Colonel: 'Notwithstanding the ravages of illness, we could readily note that he had been a man of wonderful proportions and splendid appearance. As he related some incidents of adventurous careers, his dark eyes flashed, and this, associated with a choice selection of vituperative adjectives, disclosed what manner of man he must have been. During our stay of several days the natives whispered mysteriously that the General's (sic) daily habit included several hours of sitting on his verandah with a loaded rifle across his lap waiting to locate one or more of his local enemies, who might carelessly invade the territory covered by the range of his gun. We found him a fine old gentleman, however, interesting and hospitable; and, moreover, the brand of his liquor drove away the remembrance of our long discredited supply.'

A somewhat different picture of Colonel Titus' personality and appearance is found in the words of his daughter, Minnie: 'He was very handsome and commanding in appearance, with dark brown eyes and hair, standing well over six foot in height and weighing two hundred and fifty pounds, though very graceful. Men either hated or loved him; many hated him without.... He suffered but did not complain. He would say, 'God have mercy on my soul.' His character and courage was such that he carried on daily... when lesser men would have given up.'

In 1873 the name of the Post Office was changed to Titusville. Clark Rice gave this account of the changing of the name from Sand Point: 'He (Captain Rice) and Mr. Titus that came about the same time wanted to give the place a name, so they agreed that the winner at a game of dominoes should have the name. Riceville if Rice won, and Titusville if Titus won. The result we know, for Titusville it is'

Colonel Titus worked diligently to have the Co. Seat located in Titusville. His dream was realized on Oct. 7, 1879, when a vote was taken to relocate the Co. Seat. The voting totals were for Eau Gallie, 35; for Rockledge, 39; and for Titusville, 135.

Titusville grew and prospered under the leadership of Colonel Titus. In 1880 there were approximately two hundred people living in the town. Titus made many improvements in the streets and landscape. He was constant in the defense of his town.

On Aug. 3, 1881, Colonel Titus wrote in the Florida Dispatch, 'Titusville is the ... grand center of all trade and will so continue to be. No Slanderous article from any irresponsible person will change or alter its destiny. Her motto is 'live and let live."

Four days later Colonel Henry T. Titus died. These words appeared in the Titusville Star, 'Died at his residence in this place on Sunday morning, Aug. 7th, Colonel Henry Titus, after prolonged illness.' The Titus heritage lives on in the city which bears his name."

JAMES HENRY TITUS (#508) b. Sep. 26, 1823

The following information was printed in "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus", John Alva Titus, 1987. The source of the information is attributed to Ms. Jean McDermott of Kent, WA and a biography of Lillian E. (Titus) Shoff, written in 1955. "... About this time gold was discovered in California and James got gold fever. He left his wife and two year old boy, George, and sailed around Cape Horn for San Francisco, which took six months. His wife and son went back to Maine where they stayed for the next seven years, until he sent them money. The money was sent so they could join James in the fall of 1856. She went by boat by way of the Isthmus of Panama, by rail and then took another boat up the coast to San Francisco."

The following letter was written by James to his wife March 25, 1856 and was reprinted in . "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus" by John Alva Titus. He lists a 1955 biography written by Mrs.

Lillian E. (Titus) Shoff as a primary source: "Dear Sarah, I seat myself once more to write you a few lines which you are looking for and have been for two weeks. And I expect you are most out of patience waiting, but I did not get the money to send on the last steamer. But I will send you on the next, a draft on New York for 275.00. I sent you one on Chicago for 100.00 the 15th of last month which I expect you have got by this time, which will make 375.00 which will be enough to fetch you here if nothing happens. The fare is now 200.00 in the first cabin, 150 in the second cabin and 100.00 in the steerage. I saw a lady the other day that just came from the States. She said there is no difference between the first and second, only the sleeping compartment. One has state room and the other has berth as we do our steamers between Boston and Maine. So I think you had better come by second cabin for I do not think it will make the 50.00 difference. And come by way of Panama for there is no trouble crossing the Isthmus now for the railroad is completed."

Excerpts from his obituary from 1905, reprinted in "Saga of Two North American Families, Andrews - Titus": "James H. Titus, one of the earliest pioneers of Kings Co., and really the founder of Kent, died at his home in this city last Friday afternoon. He died at the advance age of 82, and had been remarkably strong and well preserved up until a few weeks before his death. A large part of the town is situated on land formerly a part of the Titus farm. The town itself was named Titusville at its organization and was not changed until the Northern Pacific Railroad built its lines through the valley... ... Mr. Titus was the second mayor of Kent, and was always one of its foremost citizens...

... The following sketch of the life of Mr. Titus is taken from the book "Lives and achievements of King Co. Pioneers". The name of James H. Titus is inscribed high on the roll of King Co.'s honored and eminent men, and the part which he took in the founding and developing the Co. well entitles him to prominent mention in the volume. He established the town of Kent in which he has long made his home, laboring for its promotion and welfare. He is honored and esteemed by his many friends and acquaintances, and the influence of his life upon the community has been more beneficial.

Mr. Titus was born in Kennebec Co., Maine, (Town of Monomouth) on the 26th day of Sep. 1823, and his ancestors settled in that locality when the territory was part of Mass... In 1844 he left his ancestral home and removed to Michigan, where for a year he worked at the blacksmith's trade in Kalamazoo and Marshall, and for the succeeding four years made his home at Springfield, Mass returning to Maine in 1849, he purchased a farm in Kenebec Co., but in that year the gold excitement in California attracted him, and selling his possessions in the old Pine Tree State he made the journey via Cape Horn, to the Pacific Coast in the fall of 1849. During the first four years in the Golden State he worked in the trade at Marysville, while for the succeeding ten years he was proprietor of a hotel at Oroville, and in 1872 he came to Seattle, Wash., purchasing and making his home on the Dwamish river for two years. In 1874 he took up his abode at Maddoxville on the White River, where he followed the duel occupation of farming and blacksmithing for five years, on the expiration of which period he became the owner of one hundred acres of land, and on a portion of this place the town of Kent was afterward built.

When the Northern Pacific Railroad was constructed through this section, in 1884, Mr. Titus disposed of a part of the farm on the east side of the track to parties who laid it out into town lots, but he still held the remainder consisting of about thirty lots, on which he erected many residences, and the property is situated on the west side of the tracks. He is practically the founder of Kent which stands as a monument to his enterprising spirit. In its infancy this place was given the name of Titusville, but at the request of the Post Office Dept. the name was later changed to Kent."

ASA TITUS (#446) b. July 02, 1828

Excerpts from "The New Jersey Recollections of Charles Buttz Titus" printed in "The Titus-Buttz Families in America" by Charles B. Titus:

"... My father, Asa Titus, born in 1828, had two brothers, Ralph and Andrew, and three sisters, Ann, Charlotte and Martha. Charlotte had her right hand severely burned as a child, only the thumb and crooked little finger remaining; yet she could handle a pair of knitting needles and knit as well as those more fortunate..

... Our log-beam house was some 300 yards from that ever-flowing, hillside water spout, whence all our drinking and water supply was carried by bucket. I was one of a family then of eight boys and one girl that father fed from his grist mill "toll" (no money payments then) of the wheat, rye, oats, corn and buckwheat that farmers brought to the mill...

Father manufactured such good buckwheat flour that many farmers beyond the Delaware river brought their buckwheat to him to be ground, because he used the most costly silk bolting cloth to screen out all black bran specks. Our parents always furnished us plenty of plain, substantial food, as mush and unskimed milk, wheat bread and butter, buckwheat cakes and honey, home-grown potatoes, cabbage for sauerkraut, well stuffed sausage links, scrapple, pickled hogs' feet, headcheese and liverwurst - but no ice cream or like dainties. I well remember one evening when mother had mush and milk, and the school boys wanted me to hurry back to play marbles. I rushed into the house, bolted my warm mush and milk, rushed out again, and when I stooped down to shoot the marbles, the mush-and-milk shot out, too. Ever since, I have given few such occasions for my stomach and mush-and-milk to part company...

... to keep up the Titus joke-playing reputation, father nearly scared Uncle Hiram into shooting him. It was a very rainy, pitch dark night, and uncle hearing a noise, opened the door throwing a flood of light on father who had just stooped down to pick up his honey present package and umbrella. Father suddenly arose and with a war-whoop bounded toward the door. Uncle slammed the door shut and loudly called to his wife for the gun to shoot a burglar. Aunt seeing who it was laughed heartily; but I doubt if uncle then, or ever after, really enjoyed the 'joke'..."

... Sometime after Horace Grely's New York Tribune made popular slogan: "Go west, young man, and grow up with the country," father made up his mind to go out where he might expect in his own lifetime to get enough land for himself and all his boys, a hope he never could fulfill in New Jersey, where every day his mill was losing money. So in the spring of 1878. with Joe Matthews and his son Jack, and a young man by the name of Chapman, he set out for the prairie lands of Kansas. They first stopped in the settled north part of Kansas, but being a rainy time, the mud stuck so fast to their boots that the man of the house, seeing their hopeless endeavors to scrape it off, shouted: "Come on in; when it gets too deep in here, we shovel it out." They didn't care to settle on such land, so continued their journey on to the railroad terminus, Wichita, where they heard of government land yet to be taken in Harper Co..

... they started on their slow, ox-going, 65-mile journey, following the old Medicine Lodge trail, to Harper. Arriving, they were told that all government land around the town was already taken; that they would have to go several miles northwest to stake vacant claims.... [they went] six miles northwest, [and the land] proved to be well-watered (a running stream every half mile), fine for stock raising as well as for farming.

All four men took claims in one section, so that when proving up they could comply with the law that required a dwelling house on each claim, building their one house in the center of the section. Jack Chapman did not stay long enough to prove up his claim, and brother George entered it for his pre-emption. When the two Matthews had proved up their claims and moved to Missouri, father bought their two quarter-sections, and thus kept the original section intact...

...The first few years on the prairie were such dry ones that many settlers gave up their claims and went back east. One such wrote [on] a piece of board and stuck it in the ground: 'Fare thee well, dry Kansas, I bid thee now adieu; I may emigrate to [hell], but never back to you.' 'Tis true, it was hard to make a living, but father held on, and made good. If wheat failed, we had sod corn; if Irish potatoes dried up, we had yams; if young trees bore no fruit, we had plenty of watermelons...

... In New Jersey, mother made all the clothes for her boys and girls, for there was no ready made clothes then at the stores. In grandfather Buttz' day, he grew flax and 'broke' it, so that grandmother could wind the fibre into skeins on the spinning wheel. However, when mother began to make clothes for her ever 'increasing brood,' cloth could be bought at the store, and needles and thread. Soon the sewing machine appeared on the market, and father bought one for say $85, for he really wanted to help mother with the children, and make her life as pleasant as possible when there was no ready-made clothing to be bought. Mother had to make her own patterns, possibly copying some from neighbor women...

... Father like to tell anecdotes, and if a farmer was in the mill office waiting for his grist to be ground, father and he would swap jokes interminably. He would rather tell a joke than eat a meal. His idea of being on time was to be there just at the last minute possible. If it was a case in court, however, he wanted everybody to be waiting for him to appear. He was very strict, though, about his boys being at school on time, to be there every day, and to mind the teacher. If he heard of one of us getting a whipping at school, he would duplicate it at home. Hence we never disobeyed much at school..."

NOAH TITUS (#478) b. Sep. 20, 1828

Written by Grace Titus: "Noah was born in New York. Robert Titus the ancestor came from England, and Noah's branch of the family descended from his son John. The name of Noah's father was Benjamin. Noah Titus was one in a family of five children, two sisters and two brothers. There were several children who died in infancy. Living were Sara; Noah; Benjamin; Lucy; Elijah.

All of the Titus family were great for education, but they were not practical with it. They acquired it wholly for enjoyment and not for commercial or business reasons. None of the Titus men were business men - they followed farming mostly.

Noah was a man of great intellect. He was a self educated man to a large extent. He was a great mathematician and loved to solve difficult problems just for the joy of being able to solve them. He acquired the greater part of his education through his own efforts, without aid of instructors, and expected his children to do likewise. Pratt and Lee were exceptionally bright and attained a large part of their early education through their own efforts, their mother aiding them at times. Pratt was exceptionally good in mathematics, passing the inheritance on to his own daughter Marion, and son Elden.

Noah bought his own set of law books; his set of surveying tools, and set about the task of mastering the subjects. He was considered one of the best of judicial minds. His surveying and notes were so accurate as to draw praise from State officials when filed.

He was so accurate and given so much to every little detail that at times he was impractical. He was so technical, that at times it was painful. He was very particular with all of his possessions and woe to anyone who touched or handled any of his tools whatsoever.

He was moody and irritable in disposition. Previous to his birth his mother had buried a pair of twins, grief stricken she mourned greatly over the loss, and when Noah cam she rejoiced, humored and spoiled him. He developed a contrary streak which lasted through his life. He sought always to be humored.

When he was five he started to school accompanied by his older sister Sara, who was eight. It was her duty to take care of the younger children while at school, and bring them home safely. Noah developed the habit of laying down along the path, homeward bound. If she walked on and left him, he screamed and cried, and ran after her calling for her to wait. When she stopped and waited, he lay down again. When she walked back to help him to his feet, he kicked and screamed.

He repeated this performance so many times returning from school, that their arrival was rather late. Their father inquired as to the why fore, and Sarah explained the situation.

Several days following, their father was fixing fence along their returning path. Noah was performing as usual, not aware that the father could view him and was doing so. Cutting a stout switch, the father waylaid him, and walking behind Noah, switched his legs all the way home. Noah tried to get away, but it was useless. The faster he ran, the faster the switch descended. Noah's one desire was to reach his mother. When she opened the door to her crying boy and inquired as to the matter, Noah replied - "If you don't take better care of your little boy, something is going to happen to him." His sister Sara laughed many times in late years, telling of the incident. But Noah never again laid down on the way to school.

Benjamin Titus, a younger brother of Noah's came to Wisconsin in an early day and took land - purchasing it very cheaply. When Port Andrew was looking for a teacher who was able to handle the higher subjects, Benjamin sent for Noah, and they purchased later some 200 acres together. After Noah married Edwina Jessup, Noah's brother sold his interest in the land to Noah, later purchased by Delila's father.

Noah was an accomplished carpenter. He had his own set of tools and did not permit anyone to touch or use them. He built a large barn on the farm for Joseph Elliot, Delila's father, after selling it He built thoroughly and well. It was all cut on the ground, and the huge joints were mortised. The cutting and sawing and joining of this material was so accurate, that not one piece had to be altered in raising the huge barn. There was not a nail in int. In after years when fire destroyed it, long after the fire ceased burning the mortised joints, still solidly held together, stood up in the mounds of ashes.

The Titus family were great friends of the Elliot family - Joseph Elliot, looked upon Noah Titus as a man of exemplary qualifications - Mary Frances Elliot admired greatly Edwina Titus, and in turn Edwina viewed Mary as a gifted talented woman, a lady. Edwina would bring her four children to spend the afternoon with Mary. The children would play house. One day Delia wanted Pratt to make believe the currants were cooked, when they were playing house. Pratt refused; no cold currant sauce in their raw state for him. So they proceeded to the wash house, built a fire and cooked the currants. When he came back as a young man and met her again as a young lady, the first thing he said to her was - "This is the one I cooked the currants with, isn't it?" She was embarrassed and they had a big laugh. Little did Delia realize then, that she was to cook his currants a good many times thereafter.

Noah, and Edwina had six children, Pratt Benjamin; Lee; Jay; Ecara; Hattie. A little boy died at birth, between Ecara and Hattie. Pratt remembered the occasion. His father awakened them one night to come see their little brother.

Noah was a stern father. He believed children enduring hardships. This made them more ruddy and healthful. He believed in work, and too often gave tasks to them to do that was beyond their capacity to do. At times when they failed to perform them he dealt harshly with them. Little Ecara was four years old when she died. A neighbor's family had diphtheria, but were over it and out of quarantine. Noah and Edwina went there visiting and took their children. They played on a bed, and several days later Ecara took sick. She only lived four days and had the disease in its worst form. A few days before she was take sick, the children had played near some new boards that Noah had stacked neatly against the barn. The day was wet and muddy. She climbed upon the top board and ran up and down leaving little muddy tracks. When Noah discovered the condition of his boards, he scolded her and made her get a rag and wash the dirt from the board.

She was a very sensitive child, and she cried as though she was heart broken, while performing the task. After she was dead, Noah took the board, that still held the imprint of her tracks, and laid it away. He kept it all his life, and the board was burned after his death. Pratt never forgave his father this act of cruelty. The brothers loved the little sister dearly, and at seventeen Pratt left home never to return. He never saw his father again alive. He saw his mother once, just two years before he died. He always wrote and kept in touch with his family, but never returned home.

Pratt was no one to hold a grudge, he had no malice or revenge in his makeup, but he took just so much from a person, and when he was through, he was thoroughly so, for all time, and ages to come. There was never any going back or returning to past meeting points. The points were all wiped out, and the slate clean.

Pratt and his brother Jay were born on the same day just four years apart. Lee and the sister Ecara were born on the same day, just four years apart. Noah died in March of 1899. He had the Lagrippe, and at his age 72 - failed to have strength to combat the siege."

JOHN CALVIN TITUS (#932) b. July 1836

Liberty Tribune Missouri Friday, Nov.23,1866 Vol. XXI No.27:

"It is our painful duty to record two terrible tragedies that occurred in our community the present week. On the same day, a dispute occurred at Missouri City between Mr. G.S. Elgin and two young men by the name of Titus, which terminated in both the latter being killed by the former. Mr. Elgin then left town and went to his father-in-laws, near Weston in Platte Co., where he was followed by several of the brothers and relatives of the deceased men, and killed early next morning-receiving five shots in his body. The murderers then went to Platte City and surrendered themselves up, were disarmed and put under guard. We are not in possession of all the facts in the above cases, and as they will undergo legal examinations, we withhold comment. The killing of men is becoming entirely too common of late, and the good men of the Co. must take such measures as will put a stop to it. If they do not the country will become a waste. People that are worth having as citizens, will not remain. Our exchanges over the State are filled with accounts of murders and robberies, and but the other day, we read that in Andrew Co. no less than eleven men had been killed in that Co. in two months. Now, such a state of things as this cannot continue without the utter destruction of all the great interests of our State, and it behooves every citizen who desires to be secure in life and property, to put his veto on everything tending to lawlessness.

LIBERTY TRIBUNE,MISSOURI Friday,Nov.30,1866 Volume XXI No.28

"John C. Titus, Thomas C. Titus, Noah Titus and John Bivens, the parties notices in our last as having followed and killed in Platte Co., Mr. G.S.Elgin, and then surrendered themselves at Platte City, are now in jail in our city. The Grand Jury of Platte Co. found a bill against them of murder in the first degree.

THE LIBERTY TRIBUNE,MISSOURI Volume XXI Number 46, Friday April 5,1867.

On Thursday last the three Titus brothers and a man by the name of Bivens, all under indictment in Platte for the murder of G.S.Elgin, and one or two others, made their escape from our jail, by blowing open the door with powder. Notwithstanding our jail is acknowledged to be the strongest in the country, some fifteen or twenty persons have made their escape within the past few months. - We suggest to our Co. court the propriety of getting new doors, locks, & c.

THE TRIBUNE,LIBERTY MISSOURI VOLUME XXV NUMBER 3

Last evening Mr. E.A. Cunningham, Marshal of Falls City, Nebraska, accompanied by Mr. Somers, of the same place, having in custody two men, named John and Thomas Titus, charged with murder, arrived in the city. Our reporter interviewed the prisoners, (who by the way, are very respectable looking young men) at the Saunders House last evening, and gleaned from them the following statement on reference to the matter : Five brothers, by the name of Noah, John, Thomas, Abraham, and Joseph Titus, had resided for many years on Fishing River, near Liberty, in Clay Co.. Sometime in 1867 (TYPEO),proper - 1866, Joseph and Abraham happened to be in Missouri City, and stayed a short time. They had started for home, and had got a short distance from town, when a friend who was with them proposed that they should go back and take "a drink". They went back, and while in the place, Abraham had some difficulty with a man named Elgin, the origin of which we did not learn, at a saloon.

The two Titus boys left the house, and went into the street and mounted their horses, when Elgin fired from the house, killing both of them. The affair created great excitement at the time, and as soon as word of it reached the other brothers, they procured a warrant from a Justice of the Peace in Clay Co., and, accompanied by a brother-in-law named Joseph Bevins (TYPEO) proper- John Bivens, started to arrest the murderer. --Elgin had fled, and they followed him on into Platte Co., overtaking him at Platte City. When called upon to surrender himself, Elgin responded by firing a couple of shots at the party, which they returned, killing him instantly. The parties were immediately arrested (TYPEO) proper - they went to Platte City and surrendered themselves up, were disarmed and put under guard - and taken to Richmond, Ray Co., and thence to Liberty, where they were committed to jail. About four months afterwards the jail was broken open, and they made their escape and left the country(TYPEO) proper - Co.. A short time ago information was obtained as to the whereabouts of some of them, and a requisition procured for their arrest. John and Thomas Titus had been working on a farm near Falls City, Neb. for the past two years, and had been looked upon as quiet, industrious citizens. They were arrested on Friday evening. Noah Titus has resided near Bigelow, on the St. Joseph and Council Bluffs Railroad for some time. The sheriff of Holt county (TYPEO) proper - Co. started out to arrest him yesterday, and will probably bring him down today. The whereabouts of Joseph Bevins (TYPEO) proper - John Bivens is unknown. The prisoners were committed to jail in this city last evening, to await the arrival of their brother. They will be taken to Platte City this evening or Monday morning. -- St. Joseph Gazette

SILAS WRIGHT TITUS (#668) b. Jan. 18, 1849

He was educated in the Syracuse schools and developed an interest in Civil Engineering. When he was 20 years old he worked with the engineering force in the construction of the New Orleans, Mobile and Texas Railroad. About 1884 he moved to Southwestern Texas to begin studying underground water supplies. He helped to develop and construct 125 groundwater wells in the vicinity of San Angelena, Texas. He subsequently invented a method for locating and procuring groundwater by means of drilling and hydrauling. He was granted seven patents on lifting water by air. He moved back to New York circa 1896. He belonged to the church of St. Francis Xavier and is buried in St. John's cemetery.

According to "A Family History" by Melchor Balaguer and Marcella Roccatagliata Balaguer, 1995: "Silas Wright TITUS was named for a friend of his father's, Silas Wright, a US Senator, Governor of New York, and a member of Andrew Jackson's cabinet. Silas Wright Titus made and lost three fortunes:

1. A paper-box factory in Brooklyn. It failed around the late 1880's
2. The ranch in Bonham. Texas. His daughter Emma was born there. Silas was a hydraulic engineer; the geology of the core samples he drilled told him that there must be oil in the area. This idea was widely ridiculed, and he could get no financing. So he mortgaged the ranch, and convinced his cousin/brother-in-law, Edward McCarthy, to do likewise. They put all these funds into oil exploration. Eventually, they ran out of money, still without having gotten deep enough to find oil. The family returned to Brooklyn about 1894, four years before Brooklyn became a part of New York City.
3. He made his third fortune as a hydraulic engineer in New York. He first predicted, and then actually discovered, the underground river which forms the aquifer under Long Island.

Even after going broke for the third time, Silas Wright Titus continued for years to pay taxes on the land in Texas, always dreaming that he would return someday to find the oil he knew was there. As he aged and realized that he could never return, he stopped paying the financially burdensome taxes, and so lost title to the land. Texaco immediately bought the land, and within six months struck oil."

NY CITY WATER SUPPLY (From various New York Times articles, July - Nov. 1909

In the early 1900s the New York City water supply began to experience severe water shortages. Up until that time the majority of the city's water came from reservoirs and well north of the city. Droughts had threatened the supply to the city. Around 1892 the borough of Brooklyn drilled several wells near the town of Jameco, Long Island. The city engineers operated the wells for several years. With the best machinery available they were only able to produce 500,000 gallons per day. The city was about to abandon the wells at Jameco when Silas W. offered to run the plant. He was allowed to run the plant under a contract with machinery he invented and patented. Soon the wells were producing 8,000,000 gallons per day!

According to Silas, the Water Department engineers were jealous and they persuaded the Water Commissioner to "dispense with his services". Under the City's operation of the wells, production dropped to 1.5 million gallons per day (MGD). The city engineers concluded that the Jameco wells had exhausted the water supply under Long Island. One of the head engineers said he "would stake his professional reputation that not a gallon more water could be obtained from the station that was then obtained". The city was about to abandon the wells again when Silas W. made another proposal. He told the city that he would operate the wells with his own machinery and furnish 1.5 MGD free of charge. He asked the city to pay him $40 for every million gallons a day over the first 1.5 million. The city engineers laughed at him but allowed him to operate the well at Jameco again. In a short time the "exhausted" wells were producing 8.0 MGD! Soon they reached 11.0 MGD!

From 1906 to Jan. of 1909 the city regularly paid Silas under the terms of his contract. However, in 1909 the city began to hold up payments. When the city continued to hold payments Silas shut down his water pumps which supplied over 10% of Brooklyn's entire water supply. On the night of Oct. 28, 1909, twenty men from the water department went out to the pumping station to seize Silas' plant and machinery. Silas met them there and told them that somebody was going to get hurt if they put their hands on any of his property.

" I have made this a subject such a study, that I can locate water anywhere on Long Island. The water is there. I know in which direction it runs and how far it runs, and there is enough water under Long Island to supply Brooklyn for all time."

For a period of 15 years he worked locating and installing water plants in dry towns all throughout the U.S. and Canada. He would install the plants at his own risk and sell them to the towns only after they were fully developed and guaranteed. He never failed to produce a successful water supply plant.

From a letter written by Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien, Oct., 2000: "My grandmother Elizabeth Timms immigrated from Co. Mayo, Ireland at 16 years of age. She met John Henry who was working for his father, a livery stable owner. Since his dad rented out funeral coaches, John thought funeral directing would be a good business (no end of customers!). Elizabeth was a talented seamstress who went to work for a Brooklyn department store and sewed dresses to order as there was no ready-to-wear in those days. At the height of the flu epidemic early in the century, because of the rapid demise of hundreds of people on the "park slope" (their neighborhood) John had to make his own caskets and Elizabeth made the linings.

My grandfather Silas Titus, the "Water Wizard" was awarded a contract by New York City for his plan to provide water for the city for decades. He was paid $250,000 and decided to invest in a chicken farm in Jamesport, Long Island. At that time, an extremely rural and distant part of Long Island. He took with him Austin and Helen and young Austin, his daughters Genevieve (and husband Tom Murnane) and Emma. Not knowing anything about farming or chickens (thousands of them) and with so many personalities in the home, it quickly became an albatross. I don't know what grandpa did then, but my father went into the insurance business going to Hartford, CT to work for Aetna. He failed at that and went to work for Mayor Jimmy Walker ("Beau James" - a movie made in later years starring Bob Hope) in a job created for him by Walker: Secretary to the New York City Police Department. His duties consisted mainly accompanying Jimmy to his many amusements - horse racing during the day - burlesque and Broadway shows at night - which ultimately led to Walker's being charged with improper financial conduct. He resigned as mayor in 1932 in his second term. He was noted for his charm and flamboyance and enormously popular with the electorate much as Clinton is today."

Obituary from the New York Times: Jan. 10th, 1922:

"Silas Wright Titus, often called the "Water Wizard," who located the underground water supply of Long Island that provides millions of gallons a day in Brooklyn, died Saturday of arteriosclerosis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walter D. Murnane, 243 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Titus was born in 1849 at Syracuse, New York, a grandson of Thomas McCarthy, that city's first mayor. As a young man, he showed remarkable skill in discovering underground water and in building wells and plants for its utilization. He carried out successful projects in nearly every State in the Union and patented seven devices for raising water by air."

GEORGE MARION TITUS (#675) b. May 19, 1856

He was a lawyer according to the 1880 Muscatine Co., Iowa census. 1947 Obituary: "Died at 90 years of age. Was president and treasurer of the Titus Loan & Investment Company. A former state senator, he was one of the strongest advocates in the Upper Mississippi area of the nine-foot channel which today is handling great quantities of grain, coal, oil and other freight between St. Louis and the Twin cities.

Born in Cayuga Co., New York, May 19, 1856, son of Allen & Mary Jane Rhodes Titus. He lived in Cayuga Co. until 11 years old, when he moved with his parents in 1866 to Shiawassee Co. Mich. Entered the high school of Corruna. Moving to Iowa, he continued his education at the Baptist college at Wilton and in the meantime began teaching school at the age of 15. Taught for seven years in Michigan.

His legal career was launched in 1876 when he began the study of law in the office of A. N. Van Camp in Wilton and continued in Muscatine, Iowa, as a law student in the office of Allen Broomhall until his admission to the bar in 1880.

He began the practice of law in Mr. Broomhall's office and in Dec., 1882, became associated with DeWitt C. Richman, who resigned as district judge prior to entering into the partnership. The legal firm was maintained until Feb. 1886, when Mr. Titus was joined by D.V. Jackson in forming the firm of Titus and Jackson, an arrangement that continued until Mr. Jackson's election as district judge.

Mr. Titus was elected state senator from Muscatine and Louisa Counties and served in the 27th and 28th general assemblies from 1898 to 1900. He was author of the Titus amendment to the constitution which changed annual elections to biennial elections and was instrumental in securing the passage of a measure prohibiting the manufacture of buttons and tubs in the state penitentiaries.

He was selected by the state library association to present the library commission bill which was passed by the 28th general assembly. At the time of his death he was president of the board of the P.M. Musser Public Library in Muscatine, a position he had held since the inception of the library board in 1901.

He was the organizer in 1890 of the company which constructed the North and South railroad through Muscatine and served as first secretary. Was the organizer and first secretary in 1901 of the company which constructed the Muscatine Mississippi bridge. Was a leading promoter in the construction of Hotel Muscatine and served as president of the hotel corporation for five years. Was a leader in securing the construction of Muscatine's city hall, Co. jail and court house. He was a director for six years of the Upper Mississippi Valley association. One of the three original promoters of the project to transfer from the horse car system of Muscatine to an electric system, and was the first to suggest the Kansas City cut-off of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad.

Mr. Titus was a member of the First Presbyterian church and an elder since 1887. Served as representative delegate at the 1930 national Presbyterian convention. Active for more than half a century in the Masonic order. Was a member of Iowa lodge No. 2, A.F. and A.M.; Washington chapter No. 4, R.A.M.; Webb Council No. 18, R. and S.M. DeMolay Commandery No. 1, Knights Templay; and Zarepath Consistory S.P.R.S. Was a member of the Masonic Temple and served as its president from 1936 until recent years. Was a member of the Muscatine Rotary Club and served on the parks board for several years.

Mr. Titus married Eliza Broomhall on June 1, 1881. She died May 5, 1907. On Oct. 10, 1909 he married Hanna Jefferson Hutchinson, as she also preceded him in death. Surviving are one son, G. Raymond Titus of Muscatine and a daughter, Harriet E. Titus of Red Oak, Iowa, two granddaughters, Miss Mary Ann Hakes and Mrs. Betty Hakes Harrer and two great grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Hakes. Burial in Greenwood cemetery."

PRATT BENJAMIN TITUS (#745) b. Apr. 16, 1858

The following biography was written by Pratt's daughter Grace Titus in 1944: "Pratt was a fine clean looking man. He had a soft white complexion. Blue eyes that were gentle and clear, that never changed in color. He had soft dark curly hair that waved with a touch of bronze in it. He was very affectionate, loving his wife and children dearly. As a little girl, I never remember a day when he did not express this love for me. A kiss, a hug, a laugh, a toss into the air, were a part of the daily routine. He was gentle, but firm. He disliked anything rough, either actions or language. He was never excitable. In all of our injuries, or mishaps he was calm. In expressing himself, he thought before he spoke, and then in a mild way, even in an argument. Mother talked all around her subjects, but not father.

When she would scold, he would rub his arm, and laugh at her. He seldom reached a place of righteous wrath, but when he did, he could lay down the law in no uncertain terms. He was never one to hold a grudge. His nature was too affectionate and just, but if a person went too far, and my father reached a certain point, or was driven to one, he never returned to the former ground. He was there for all time to come. It took quite a long while for him to reach this place and he would put up with a lot, but when he did reach it, he was there forever. Mother shuttered and would lack the courage to deal with a situation, but not father. He was straight forward and courageous.

Often in a situation with a neighbor, my father would have acted in the initial stage, but mother disliked misunderstandings, and she would beg father to wait. The situation inevitably had to be handled at length, after it had reached greater proportions and was much more difficult to handle, and a greater resentment existed. Had he had his way, he would have handled it, in its first beginnings, and avoided a long drawn out affair.

He was honest and up right, practicing the Golden Rule always. He was generous, but conservative, he was kindly but firm, he was economical, taking care of his harnesses and tools. He was fine in handling horses, kind but firm.

We had a milk route on the farm in the early days before the separator was so plentiful. It was necessary to make a daily trip - taking the milk in to a separator and returning with the separated milk. Two teams were required for this daily hauling, as the neighbor's milk also was gathered up, and delivered, and one team could not stand the continuous traveling over the road.

Father bought a horse to complete a team for this route. A few days after traveling over the road, the horse developed a lameness in its hind legs. He would drag them, and would become very lame. Father had paid a good price, and had given the horse a trial, but had not placed it on the road. Upon discovery of this lameness he sought to sell it. One day a man came to the farm to look at it. Liking it, he was just about to conclude the deal, when he asked father if there was anything not good about the horse. Father told him exactly what was wrong, telling the man, the horse was all right for a field horse, but not for travel and the road. And since he wanted a road horse, and the man a field horse, he would like to sell. The man didn't want the horse if it had this defect, so he left without making the purchase. My mother felt that father should have mad the deal, just as the deal had been made to him, when he bought the horse, without enlightenment of the defect. I remember so well my father replying, "the an asked me right out, if the horse had any defect, and I'll not lie to any man." I have always remembered this. It left a deep impression. Although I was a young child without experiences at the time, so many times since, the words have revealed to me my father's absolute honesty.

He never acquired many worldly possessions. He wasn't the type to crave worldly goods or worldly applause. He adhered strictly to a code of honor, to an expression of all spiritual qualities, honesty - justice - affection. He exercised these daily in his home and abroad. He was a very wise man... because you don't take your worldly possessions with you when you pass into the Beyond, but you do take your priceless possessions of honesty and integrity, and you take with you the record of, 'as ye sow, so shall ye reap.'

The team by which he was injured, was a beautiful team. When father and mother were married, and they had bought their first team, they named them Topsy and Martha. Topsy was snow-white. She had a gentle mild disposition, and we children played and romped all over her riding her back to pasture, or driving her. Martha was fiery. She was like a streak of lightening, and acted like one sometimes. She was a very loyal horse, excitable, under a heavy load, and would pull her share, and all of the others if not held back. She made a good mate for Topsy - because Topsy was calm and steadied the excitable Martha. Father and mother kept this team of horses all of their married lives, and their offspring, made up the bulk of our horses on the farm. We had several generations at times...

... Then came that fateful day. Father hauled hay all morning and was late getting back to dinner. It must have been 2:30 when he came to eat. Soon after, mother and he prepared to go to town. Father wanted to meet with the Co. commissioners in regard to the improvement of our country roads. Blind Boone was to give a performance that evening, and they expected to return late. As they drove from the yard, he stopped the team and called back to sister Marion "Have the boys do up the chores early, I'll not be back." After they were gone we made a large freezer of ice cream. We had our own ice house. We intended to have fried chicken, and a gala time that evening while alone.

The sun had set, and the boys were just in from the field, caring for their horses when a horse came lopping up the driveway carrying its driver. Marion hastened to meet him, and immediately there flashed through my mind the picture of a runaway team. Marion talked in low tones to the man, then turning to face the house, she stood perfectly still. I hastened to her, asking if Clyde and Chip had caused trouble. The boys were hastening toward us too, we all met in the path. She then explained to us what had happened.

Father had driven to a store, and letting mother out, had picked up an old man by the name of Carpenter who raised tomato plants for sale. Father was very very fond of tomatoes, and could never get enough. They drove through town, and out to the man's place. Stopping the team, Father alighted, and taking caution, he wrapped the lines several times about his left hand. The horses were facing west, father was facing north. Reaching up with the other hand, he helped the old man to alight. They were in a light spring buggy, and the old man swung his legs over the end of the seat. When he alighted, this raised the opposite end of the buggy seat, and when he let go of his hold, the seat fell back, causing a jar and loud noise. The team gave one leap. In giving this leap, the lines tightened on father's hand and threw him to the hard ground on his head, stunning him, so that he was unable to unwrap the lines. Had he been conscious, that would have been his first thought, realizing his own danger. But the lines tightened and the mad and frightened team plunged away, dragging him with them. They had gone a short way when they came to a bridge. This bridge was having some work done on it, and the railing on the right side was off. The team shied from this side of the bridge leaving no room to drag father across, who was on the left.

A new post had just been set on this side and the railing attached. Striking this post, with his body, it was broken off. The second post was covered in blood, then he plunged to the creek below. He must have realized a little, for as he rolled down the bank toward the water he put out his hand and steadied himself.

The team plunged on westward bound. A pasture lay before them. Jumping this fence they left the buggy, injured very little, and began running for their very life. When at last reached, they were without one bit of harness, five miles away, having jumped seven fences, and without a scratch on them. It took seven men to get the frightened team within a livery stable. The team eventually was brought home, and sold at the first opportunity. They were practically given away.

Father was found by some little boys playing along the road, who had witnessed the whole proceeding. It was a hot, dusty day in June, and when brought up from the bed of the creek was not recognized by some of the men who knew him, until freed of the dust and blood.. My mother was sent for, and so were we children, but Father never regained consciousness. Uncle Dr. Clements Dougherty came from Wisconsin. An operation was performed, but in the end we all came home alone.

My mother had the business acumen of her father. She would have made good business deals had she been a man. She liked worldly possessions; a social life; a pleasant life. Father cared nothing for these things. He wanted nothing but his own family, his own things, his own standard of conduct. This standard of conduct was all to him. He liked good reading, and enjoyed the company of a few well chosen, intelligent friends. He liked nothing low or mean or rough. I remember one time some little girl friends were visiting me and we dressed up in the boy's clothes. We went out into the garden where he was working, and while he laughed with us, and threw clods at us, he didn't relish the idea of a little girl in boy's clothes.

He would never let one of his daughters go away from home and stay all night. The little girls would come and stay with us, but he wanted us home at night.

He loved to play with us and often in the evening after he had worked all day in the field, he would play ball or croquet with us, or just chase us all over the yard. When we were small, we loved to be the one who could out run him. Frank was fleet of foot, and carried off this honor many times. We were always free to sit on his lap, play around over him, but when he spoke we minded. We know better than to ever take advantage in play time.

When mother sold the farm in 1930, she brought to a stop our possessions of any descendants of Martha. All the time, from their first possession of Martha, we had this strain of blood in our horses and always possessed one. When mother returned to the farm in 1917, we had Dot, a young mare, who had belonged to brother Joe. Her colts were with us: Bud and Blossom in 1922 were a beautiful team, but they always retained that fire streak, and excitability of Martha. Dot died during our last years of ownership of the farm. Her colt was given to Elden Aaron, Frank's son, in 1930. He sold it, thus ending the strain of Martha for our family Father has been gone now forty four years, but his children carry with them, their most priceless possession, his honesty - his integrity, his habits of clean living, his affection, his stability of character. To have worldly possessions without these is calamity. To have these spiritual qualities, without worldly possessions, is security, safety and peace, not only here and now, but in the here after and forever."

1915 Letter to Mrs. Pratt Titus from Edmund D. Titus:

"Mrs. Pratt Titus, Stanton, Nebraska. Dear Mrs. Titus; I beg to acknowledge your letter of Dec. 26th and to thank you for the trouble you have taken to answer my inquiries. I am very glad indeed to know that you have such splendid boys and that you are so proud of them.

In answer to your question as to what relation I bear to them, beg to explain that so many years have past since their ancestor and mine were brothers that all relationship has disappeared. The ancestors of your boys were Pratt Titus, Noah, Benjamin, Noah, Jonah, John, John, John, Robert.

My ancestor was Abiel, a brother of your boys' great-great-great-great-great-great-grandfather. These brothers lived in the early part of the 17th century. Robert Titus who was the ancestor of all of us was born 314 years ago and came to America 279 years ago..."

CHARLES BUTTZ TITUS (#716) b. June 05, 1863

Excerpts from "The New Jersey Recollections of Charles Buttz Titus" printed in "The Titus-Buttz Families in America" by Charles B. Titus: "... The SAREPTA where Charles Buttz Titus was born June 5, 1863, is in Warren Co., New Jersey, some three miles north of Belvidere. He was named by his Uncle, Charles W. Buttz, a cavalry man in the Civil War, who when home recovering from a saber stroke, placed a ten-dollar bill on the cradle and said: 'Call him Charley.' A very dubious after-saying of that infant is: " I distinctly remember every detail of that naming event, but one; i.e., what became of that ten-dollar bill...

... My saddest memory is that of the death of my oldest brother, David. He was walking on the DL&W track around a sharp bend north of Manunkachunk station; and, to let a freight train pass, he stepped over on the other track right in front of a swiftly oncoming passenger train, meeting death instantly. A Sarepta youth happened to be at the station, and recognizing the body, ran in haste to tell father, who at the time was in the mill office in jovial conversation with an old friend. The suddenness of the news was like a lightning stroke, and so depressed him for many weeks he didn't care (as he afterward said) whether he lived or died. I was so young I couldn't realize the deepness of father's grief, and innocently tacked up in the mill office some undertaker's display ads of fine caskets. The very sight of those coffin pictures at the time must have further pierced a heart already under the burden of an overpowering sorrow. May the Lord forgive my childish unthoughtfulness...

... Grandparents attended the M.E. church some 3 1/2 miles distant. "We boys" were too young to be seriously-minded, and as soon as the grandparents were out of sight in their horse-and-buggy 'carry-all', we would begin a game of soft ball, using the apple trees for bases. We were careful, however to be out of the orchard by the time grandparents returned. We well knew grandmother's eagle eye, and when we attempted to get the first ripe harvest apples, we were not altogether surprised to hear her call: 'Now you boys get out of my orchard,' and believe it or not, we scampered out quickly. However, after plenty of apples got ripe, we could fill our pockets and take them into grandfather's big barn floor, where on account of mosquitoes in the house, we were permitted to sleep. The new mown hay seemed proof against mosquitoes, and we enjoyed our apple feasts before going to sleep...

... A week or two before Easter, "we boys" had a custom of hiding eggs and bringing them out for the folks on that Sunday. Then, in the afternoon, after having eaten all the eggs we could at dinner, we would take the eggs we didn't give them, by boat to the old slate quarry, boil them in an old kettle found there, and have an old-fashioned Easter egg banquet, similar to that in the fall when we took roasting ears to the same place and "boiled" them in the hot embers of a large brush fire, the steam inside the husks "tenderizing" them...

... in the fall, we delighted in gathering the rare hazelnuts, chestnuts and hickory nuts (shellbark ones), as well as the common walnuts. We had discovered one walnut tree of a new variety, nuts shaped like butternuts but of a milder taste. The owner did not know this, but we did, so every fall we would row or pole the boat to this tree, and load in every one of these walnuts. These we put in our attic, but common walnuts on the second floor of grandfather's wagon shed, to crack and eat on sunshiny winter days, The tasty chestnuts and hazelnuts, like the squirrel does, we would store in our home quarters, to eat while seated round the old crane hearth, huge logs burning for light and warmth. Wood fuel was plentiful on father's (Jenny's Jump) mountain lot, the only expense was the hauling. Father, however, always wanted the best, and ordered the solid logs of oak and hickory hauled, over which "we boys" had to toil and sweat trying to reduce them with iron wedges and sledge to sizeable cook stove use. We would much rather have had the large tree branches, so easy to cut, hauled. True, the harder work may have improved our muscles, but it did not tend to sweeten our dispositions...

... The old-fashioned Sunday school picnic, with the farmers' wagons filled with children and parents and baskets of food, was the great outdoor event in the summer time, for it gave us a fine chance to roam the cool woods (baseball had not yet become a national sport). Of course, we enjoyed the sumptuous dinner of chicken, pies puddings, cakes et cetera, but after dinner we were free to do as we pleased. Then came the time for singing and speaking, followed by an ice-cream and watermelon treat, never forgetting the sack for peanuts, candy and an orange, - the orange to make the sack look large in our eyes.

In winter, it was great sport to skate on the ice. We even played games on skates. One day Elmer skated over ice too thin for his weight, and went under. His schoolmates found a plank, shoved one end out to him, and while he held fast, they pulled him to safety. Going immediately to the house and changing clothes, he received no ill effects from his icy bath.

Also, there was the wintertime sport of sliding down the steep hillsides over the encrusted snow; and, I might add, the drudgery of pulling the sleds to the top of the hill again. But, "we boys" thought it great fun. We made substitute sleds out of long planks rounded up at the front end; and the longer a plank, the better the fun, if a bevy of girls were riding on it, for the boys guiding would always manage to upset and spill the girls off into a deep snow-bath, - no one hurt and all having a good time...

ALVIN TITUS (#832) b. Feb. 06, 1864

Alvin Titus' obituary from the Union City Times, Aug. 10, 1895: "Alvin Titus was born Feb. 6th, 1864, near Phillipsville, Pa., and was drowned in French Creek, Aug. 10, 1895. The deceased leaves a wife and two little sons to mourn their loss together with aged parents and three brothers, W. B. Titus, Phillipsville, Pa.; Ora G. and Richard Titus of Union City, Pa., and his only sister, Mrs. Dr. Rideout of Conneaut Ohio.

His boyhood days were spent with his parents at the old homestead (Titus Corners) where he grew to manhood. On entering his majority he married Miss Linda Hendry, of North Union, the 24th day of Sep., 1884. The union was blessed with two beautiful boys to bless and cheer their pathway to old age, but God has seemed pleased that it be otherwise.

His parents on leaving the farm came to live with their elder son (Mr. Richard Titus) of this city, while he being the youngest of the family was left to assume the duties and responsibilities of a farmer's life which seemed to be his chosen occupation. His life was one of mildness and cheerfulness, seeming to carry sunshine with him wherever his lot was cast. During the protracted services at Phillipsville, Pa., two years ago last March, he sought and found his Savior. Since that time his life seemed wrapped up in God's work here on earth. He leaves and unlimited number of friends who speak nothing but kind words as to his previous life and character as a child and man.

Last April he purchased the old homestead but after placing the Spring crops in June, he rented the same and engaged with his brother-in-law, Mr. Fred Haskell of Moorheadville, Pa. At a monthly salary, to look after and assist in the cultivation of a large grape tract in this section.

About the middle of last week he was sent by Mr. Haskell to look after some plough land at Baldwin's Flats, directly joining the back of the Everson homestead bordering on French Creek. After completing his task and loading a load of hay, it being very warm he suggested to Mr. Haskell's son, a lad of 13 years, that they go bathing before proceeding on their trip home.

The place selected was at a point directly back of the Everson farm house in about twelve feet of water. As he was a first class swimmer, he said to his friend who accompanied him that he would swim across the hole which was about 30 feet, and then they would return to their wagon and go home. When in about the middle of the swimming pool, he was noticed to throw his head forward and go down. His friend, suspecting that something was wrong, hastened and procured a pole and pushed out towards him, fearing that if he swam to his aid possibly both would be drowned.

On his coming to the surface the second time he did not even so much as notice the thrown out aid and the water closed over him for the last time. The news spread rapidly and very soon a large number of neighbors had gathered and were using every means at their command to procure the body. After about two hours diving and no location of his body, a potato hook was attached to a long spear pole and in another hour they finally succeeded in hooking onto the body and brought it to the shore, where kind hands lifted his lifeless form into a rig previously prepared and was taken to his brother's house, W. B. Titus of Phillipsville.

Word was at once conveyed to Mr. Haskell's at Moorheads, who in turn conveyed the news to his family. Kind hands administered to her every want and conveyed her to his lifeless form, who but a few short hours before had bid them goodbye. How seldom do we think of the shadows that fall across our pathway, hiding forever from our eyes the traces of the loved ones, whose loving smiles were the sunlight of our existence.

Death is the great antagonist of life, and the cold thought of the tomb is the skeleton of all feasts. We do not want to go through the dark valley, although its passage may lead to Paradise. There is no appeal of relief from the great law which dooms us to the dust. We flourish and we fade as the leaves of the forest, and the flowers that bloom and wither in a day have not a frailer hold upon life than the mightiest monarch that ever shook the earth with his footsteps.

Generations of men appear and vanish as the grass, and the countless multitude that throngs the world today will tomorrow disappear as the footsteps on the shore. To this the question comes to us all "Shall we meet again?". I have asked that dreadful question to the hills that look eternal, of the streams that flow forever, of the stars among whose fields of azure my raised spirit hath walked. All were dumb. But while I gaze upon Thy face I feel that there is something in the love that mantles through its beauty that can not wholly perish. We shall meet again."

Following is a poem presented after the obituary of Alvin Titus in Elroy Wilson Titus' book " A History of the Titus - Capron and Related Families" (Presumably written by Alvin's wife Caroline):

"Poor husband has gone and I am alone; 'tis the debt which all mortals pay.
Yet all of the sorrow I've felt in my life, I never knew grief till today.
As the sun went down 'neath the hilltops, and the shadows stole in o'er my head,
So the light of his life and mine went out, and left me along with my dead.
Full twice five years we walked side by side, each a staff to each other always;
But the angel of death has taken my help, so what can I do but pray?
Bless Thou us, Lord, in the Kingdom above, whence Thy grace so freely is given.
So long have we journeyed together on earth, receive us together in heaven."

ALLEN JOHN TITUS (#922) b. Dec 31, 1872

From an article written by Nora Lavon Titus (b.1910) for a book about the history of Grant, MI: "Allen John Titus, a barber, and Dora Centella Piper met in Fremont, Michigan in 1897 where she was an apprentice in professional dressmaking and tailoring. He was one child in a family of newcomers who moved into town with four eligible sons and a high-spirited daughter. These were, besides Allen John, George H., Mary Elizabeth (Marion), Willis Eben and Floyd Wicks, born to Raymond John Titus and Sarah Elizabeth Cobbledick. R.J. was the son of a New York State farmer and Sarah was the Canadian-born daughter of an immigrant English (Cornwall) miller...

... On a blizzardy Dec. 31, 1899, Allen J. and Dora C. were married, she arriving by sleigh driven from Hesperia by her brother, Charlie, who wasn't sure they were ever going to get there. Allen J. came by train from Flint in time to take part in the nuptials at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Noble of White Cloud.

Allen was inclined to move around a great deal until hearing of Grant from some ballplayers he played against in White Cloud. The team assured him Grant was an up-and-coming town, a good place to live in - - and it had a baseball team.

In 1903, what few short roots they had put down in Newaygo, they pulled up again and moved to Grant. Here Al followed his trade of barbering and Dora did some dressmaking. Both entered in the affairs of the town. A 1904 dance card announced a Feb. 12 Leap Year dance at Myrick's Hall in Grant, ladies invitation, with fifty-cent cost for the dance going toward the GAR (Grand Army of the Republic) Monument Fund and including an oyster supper at the Grant House, plus entertainment. Dora was listed as Floor Manager, Miss Hana Nelson (later Mrs. Thomas Smith) and Miss Anna Peterson of Fruitport were other members of the benefit committee. Mrs. Hubert E. Hicks was chairman of the affair.

Dora went on to become active in civic work and in what was then the Baptist Church, a church that underwent many changes even in her day. A quietly sincere woman, Dora was credited with having spearheaded the Parents and Teachers Association, along with Mrs. Dell Orcutt, her neighbor, and Mrs. Laura Hansen, and Mrs. Jessie McKinley, who were soon joined by others. These same ladies and at least twenty others formed the Grant Civic League. From it there grew such improvements as a well in the Railroad Park (across from the present library), flowers, trees, and plantings in the park and at Blanche Lake, in coordination with the Village Council's beautification plans. They were also quick to benefit families in need of help...

...Right after moving to Grant, Al, also called Tite, and later known as Abie, was appointed Newaygo Co. Game Warden. In 1908 he was named State Game Warden. He alternated between wardening and barbering. In those days the Game Wardens made most of their trips by train, horse or on foot, in fair weather or foul. He later came into the luxury of owning a second-hand Model T Ford with fold down (touring) top and isinglass snap-on curtains. Warmth was provided by a geyser of untamed heat emerging from a hole in the floorboard. The only control over this source was a tin cover that could be slipped to one side or moved back over the hole with the use of the foot.

Al and his brothers, George and Floyd were baseball fanatics and took part in the game whenever possible. He continued in pursuit of the pleasure until 1917 when he played in a rousing Farmers & Merchants Picnic ballgame. Big Bill Rose, a Grant produce broker, had jumped into the air to catch the ball as Tite was sliding into second base with his leg outstretched to touch the bag. When Bill came down with the ball he landed on the unprotected leg, which snapped sharply. It didn't spoil their friendship, but it put an end to Al's playing the beloved game. Luckily, he was in demand for umpiring when the leg had healed, which restored him to the ballpark--and quite possibly saved several lives, if the truth be known. He was not one to suffer frustrations quietly.

During the spare time in the barber shop Tite would knock out stories for city papers and sports magazines. An old Oliver typewriter was his companion in the output and with it he continued his battle for conservation measures and controls he sincerely believed were needed. Tite was sometimes called as delegate to conventions where these subjects were on the agenda and managed to be persuasive in getting certain measures adopted. During the War Years his typewriter kept him in touch with members of the Armed Forces both from Grant and those living in other areas, but who had lived in Grant at some time. The barber shop became one of the first stops on their trips home from college and the wars. He gleaned a great deal of pleasure from these friendships.

By 1905 Allen and Dora's children had begun to arrive, Floyd Leonal first, then Dorthy Ione and lastly Nora LaVon (the writer of this memoir). This did not keep the couple from continuing some of their community activities during that era when people created their own amusements. they joined in putting on masquerades, regular parties, dances, comedies, variety shows, all-ladies and all-gents entertainments, and Dora helped in costuming for school productions.

Periodically, the Danish community put on a celebration inviting the townspeople to attend. These were spirited events with music, entertainment, and dancing -- and food. Wonderful food! Since the Danish Folk School was only a mile south of town there was no real problem in getting there for most folks.

Before 1908, Al's brother, Floyd, was in Grant in the grocery and meat business, in what had been the Downing & Hurd Hardware Store building. Floyd married Mathilde "Tillie" Brant, daughter of Adolph and Augusta Brant of Grant on Dec. 27, 1908. They bought the Jay Haring House at 135 E. State Road a few years later. Their one child Howard Burdette, was born there in 1920.

It was in the early part of Floyd W.'s store business that his father suffered a heart attack. the parents were persuaded to move to Grant from Clarkston. F.W. had learned meat cutting from his father, now he invited him to work at the Grant store when he was able. The older couple came and soon became well-acquainted with the townspeople though living in the west end, then in the Hansen House (the old Mills home), in midtown, and later on Lake Street.

About this time R.J.'s parents, Allen Greene Titus and Mary Jane Rhoades, returned from Muscatine, Iowa, where they had lived near their son, George M., who owned a pearl button factory there and was later in real estate. George had also served as a state senator in Iowa. The old folks, both in their 80's, were homesick, so it was arranged that George would build them a home in Grant and R. J. and Sarah would live with them and care for their needs. He had sandstone shipped in and a two-storied house built, second house from Drummond's corner, and next to the Jacob homestead.

AUSTIN E. TITUS, JR. (#1124) b. Aug. 21, 1915

The following is an autobiographical account written by my grandfather, Austin E. Titus Jr., probably in the early to mid 1990's. It was given to me at his funeral in June of 2001: "I decided to spend the nickel car fare on a box of cracker jacks, and hitch a ride on the back step of the trolley. I was thrilled by my ingenuity until the trolley lurched rounding a curve and threw me, school books, cracker jacks and all into the cinders alongside the tracks, uninjured but with torn knickers and frightened most of all by thoughts of greeting my parents this way. My "ingenuity" caused me to stop off at my grandmother's house for some sympathy. As luck would have it, who should be at Mama's house but my father who had a violent temper. My renewed fright compelled me to tell them my pants were torn by a dog!

This incident led to my transfer from St. Frances to a new school opening in Manhattan Beach, nick-named the "chicken coop" school because it looked like one. By coincidence one of the teachers there was my aunt "Bunny". Next was a transfer to St. Mark's School in Sheepshead Bay (walking distance) from which I graduated in 1928 with Sister Dorothea's class. Before I left the chicken-coop school, I remember carrying the books of a class-mate Theresa O'Brien who had a brother Miles (Query: any relation to the current Miles O'Brien, a commentator on the TV & radio?).

In 1928 I enrolled in Cathedral Prep, a prep seminary in Brooklyn, completing high school there. During the summers in high school I worked at Manhattan Beach as the life-guard of the kiddie pool, a special section catering to some famous sports figures of the period, mainly "Jack" Fugazy, a fight promoter, Charlie Harvey, a manager of fighters, notably Steve Hamas, a contender for the heavy weight title, also Primo Caneva. Also during this period I first met Jack Dempsy at his training camp in Saratoga when he was training for his second fight with Gene Tunney. I will never forget shaking hands with him!

During this period Manhattan Beach became a very popular resort brining in a number of famous "big bands" which were then becoming popular: Rudy Vallee, the first crooner & Paul Whitenan and others. In this connection I remember a time when I saw some entertainers on the beach in bathing suits among which were a singing group including Johnnie Mercer and Jack _____ a trombonist, then unknown. I asked them to pose for a snapshot which they did. To my everlasting regret, I had the snapshot in my bureau for years, never appreciating the fame which Johnnie Mercer attained, even though I had his autograph on the reverse side of the photo. As luck would have it I lost the photo and was never able to find it. Add to this my failure to attend a concert by him shortly before he died, held in the town hall.

This period also covered my first acquaintanceship with Vince Lombardi, the football Hall of Famer with whom I spent two years at Cathedral. He had the largest hands of anyone I ever knew, being able to hold a basketball inverted in his hand!"

The following is a letter written by Austin E. Titus Jr. to Austin E. Titus, III, June 21, 1996:

" Dear Austin, How proud I am to have such a wonderful family! How fortunate I am that God has enabled me to see Leo, Rosie, and you through college and beyond --- and blessed me with such a wonderful family. And then again, God has blessed us with your vocation and allowed me to see it through to completion. And then again, to overcome the loss of Kevin... So, thank you again and may God continue to bless us and keep us steadfast in the faith. With deepest gratitude and love, Dad"

Recollections of his grandson, Leo J. Titus, Jr.

My favorite memories of my Grandfather are the times I would visit him in Huntington Long Island as a young boy. He had a boat at the Centerport Yacht Club and we would often spend days taking the boat out into Long Island Sound to go swimming. He loved to swim. With his white hair he reminded me of the polar bears at the zoo lazily swimming in the pool.

One of my most favorite memories was a time when I was probably about 9 or 10 years old. Grandpa and I worked on the boat and stayed there overnight. I remember falling asleep listening to the water hitting up against the sides of the boat and the sound of ropes hitting sail boat masts as they bobbed in the harbor. In the morning we woke up and took the dinghy (a small inflatable row boat) into shore to buy powdered donuts and orange juice for breakfast. I remember at least one time when we got up very early in the morning and went to the yacht club pool. Of course it was closed at that hour, so my grandfather climbed the chain link fence to get us in to go swimming. I think that was something he did regularly.

While I was growing up, I remember going to his house in Huntington every year for either Thanksgiving or Christmas. At dinner time, there was always a large table in the dinning room that sat everyone in the family. No little side table for the kids! My grandfather always sat at the head of the table and I always sat next to him on his left. That was my spot, I believed everyone knew it. There may as well been an engraved plaque on the chair with my name on it.

Leo Titus Jr. visiting his Grandpa Titus in 1972

As I grew older, the memories are mostly of holiday visits and good conversation. When grandpa was visiting my parent's house, there was always some extra effort involved to help him get in the house and into a chair. This was because of the polio that he had as a boy which resulted in a very weak leg for the rest of his life. Once we had him comfortable, he would love to talk about all kinds of things, especially sports and politics. It was a treat when he would start telling a story about when he was younger.

The following is was written by Austin's daughter Eileen after his death in June, 2001:

"Many years ago when my husband, Jerry was applying to college, part of his application process was to write an essay about himself. For a long time he wondered what to write about and how to write it. One morning while he was in his bedroom Jerry found the answer. It was a simple but perfect one: He opened his junk drawer and there, in that small drawer, was everything you could ever want to know about Jerry Fitzpatrick. So Jerry wrote an essay about all the "junk" in his "drawer". This past Sunday I went to Mom and Dad's home to clean out Dad's room. As I went through his closets and his drawers I learned the same rang true about my dad, only it wasn't one drawer. It was his entire room! So today I would like to tell you about Dad's "junk"...and his room was full of it!

My dad's room consists of a bed, a bureau, a roll top desk and a table with a television. The walls are covered with wallpaper scenes of an ocean beach. Sand dunes, sea gulls and light houses - how my dad loved the water! Who remembers "Res Ipsa" and "Camelot"? My dad as a Captain wasn't very good at steering his own course. How many times, Mom, did we have to be rescued after Dad drove his boats into rocks? It didn't stop him though. For years he escaped to the sea to find his peace...

In his closet I found an assortment of hats. Dad always had to wear a hat! His favorite was a fedora, a suede one with a feather on the side. I think the only time I ever saw him without a hat on was when he was swimming!

My mother always said you could tell a lot about a man by the shoes he wore. Well with my dad it wasn't the shoes...it was the ties he wore...at least you could tell a lot about the food he liked! Every tie had a stain of its own.

He had two kinds of clothing: " Suits" and "Anything that would keep him warm". Dad always had to be warm. Much to my mother's chagrin he wore his tired but true tweed jacket in the middle of July. My dad was never comfortable in a suit but he loved his tweed jacket and his turtlenecks and his sweaters and most of all his long johns. While most lawyers in Brooklyn, were perfectly attired in impeccable two piece suits, my dad preferred his shirts with the top button open and the ties halfway down his chest.

As I worked through his room I found a very interesting piece of junk. It was a broken piece of brick. I looked at it and asked my Mom "What's this?" She answered "Oh you can't throw that out! That is the brick that won Daddy his biggest settlement in his life!" One of Dad's clients, Mr. Doyle I think his name was, had tripped over that brick and the rest is history. My dad named the family room in our house "The Doyle Room". He kept that brick all these years!

On the top of his bureau I found a very special gift my Aunt Charlie had given him in 1992. It was a calligraphy that said

" Austin,
I believe that your message has been heard by many hearts
And your stories have warmed many worlds
And your love has touched all of us unconditionally Especially me"
Charlie

How he loved his sisters!

In the bottom drawer of his bureau I found his treasures: I found a letter from Cathy Rooney. He loved all the Rooney kids! Its funny the things he saved: I found letters from my brother, Kevin. My favorite one was "Dad, leave me five bucks for a school bag tomorrow." There were letters and cards from colleagues, friends and family members; my high school graduation program; Kevin's graduation program from St. Philip Neri.; a mass card of his uncle Father McGroaty. There was a note card that was very familiar to me, a card Dad had written after we celebrated his 50 years of practicing law. He sent the card to all his friends and family who had gathered to share this wonderful accomplishment with him. He wrote:

"If a man's worth be measured by the love of his friends, Then there be none richer than I. From the bottom of my heart, thank you." - Austin

I liked what he wrote so much I put a framed copy of it in my office.

And then there were the photos. And they were everywhere! On the walls, in the drawers, under the bed. Pictures of those near and dear to his heart. Many I knew, some I didn't know...brothers, sisters, children, grandchildren, great grandchildren. In the pool with his grandchildren, Leo, Frank and Stephen; sitting next to little Kevin; buying Corey's first pair of shoes; with Casey at his First Communion. With the Meyers, Titus', O'Brien's, and Rooneys, weddings and christenings and family gatherings. Pictures of him with our family and his friends at his 75th birthday (or was it his 80th?) at Leo and Ann's. Leo, you took such wonderful care of him; he felt so privileged to have you as his son! A picture of Austin on the day of his ordination, perhaps Dad's most shining moment! On his desk was a special photo album that MaryAnn, his law associate had given him last Christmas. Inside was a note that read:

"To my dearest friend Austin,
You Are a remarkable person
You have made a real difference in my life"

Inside the album were pictures of people who knew and loved my Dad. All whose lives he touched in a special way. My family thinks you are quite remarkable too, MaryAnn...so does Dad.

On his desk was a framed program of my Uncle Si of his induction into the Hall of Fame at Holy Cross. Uncle Si was pictured alongside Edward Bennett Williams, who also was bestowed the same honor. Dad was so proud his brothers.

In the corner is his television. I closed my eyes, let my mind go back to 36 Renwick Avenue. I listened for a familiar sound that I loved to hear: Dad's laughter. There isn't a member of my family who can't remember the roar of his laughter as he watched his favorite shows: "The Honeymooner's" or "Archie Bunker"...His roars shook the house! If I was on the other side of the house, I could tell what show was on by the sound of his laughter.

On his bed were things Mom had brought home from the hospital: Small toy cars that kept vigil on his night table. Timmy Rooney knew my Dad's love for cars and had given them to Dad on one of his visits. Timmy, you were with my Dad long after you left the hospital. Thank you for the gift of your time and yourself. I have a feeling those cars will have a special place in Dad's room for a long time. There were tender cards and a statue made by Uncle George. During dad's last days his brother George occupied most of his thoughts. His love for his brothers and sisters was remarkable.

On the table was a book titled "Touched by a Saint", written by Susan Crimp. It is a book of personal encounters with Mother Teresa. I don't think Dad ever read the book as it was written after he had lost ability to read. But if you read one simple line from it you would have sworn he had. On the inside cover was a quote from Mother Theresa: "We can do no great things; only small things with great love."

That one sentence sums up what my dad was all about, doesn't it? My Dad did small things with great love. My Dad loved in a quiet way. Many of you today at one time or another reached out to him in need. Your gift to him was sharing your struggles with him. And his gift to you was being there for you whenever and wherever you needed him to be. I remember when Kevin called him from the hospital at 11:00 at night asking for a McDonalds shake. In the car and to McDonalds my Dad went. He loved his nieces and nephews in a special way. I remember waking up in the morning asking " Where's Daddy?" Often times, the answer was "He's gone off to be with your cousins, to the Rooneys, to a friend". Your pain was his pain. Your joy was his joy. The Meyers, the Rooneys, the O'Brien's, the Titus', you were all his children weren't you? I was and still am so proud of him for that.

Today, Dad has once again gone off to be with his friends and his family. He is in a much better place. It is a hard day for all of us because we have to say goodbye. But I don't think it is as hard as the past few years have been. It was terribly hard watching Dad lose the battle he so bravely fought. He lost his ability to drive his car, then he lost his ability to drive his go cart. He lost his ability to walk alone and then he lost his ability to use his walker. He lost his ability read and then he lost his ability to remember. Perhaps the most frustrating thing for him was when he lost his ability to dial the numbers on a telephone. Because the telephone was his only refuge to be with the people he loved.

But there was one thing he never lost, not even up to the very end, and that was his ability to love.

Rosie
June 20th, 2001"

A MAN OF COURAGE, Austin E. Titus, Jr.

The following consists of my most outstanding memories of my brother, "Aust".: It was Aug. of 1930. Aust had just finished freshman year at Holy Cross and was home in Manhattan Beach for summer vacation. It was his birthday and Aust decided to go to mass at our church, St. Margaret Mary By The Sea. He started off from home, went no further than 100 ft., "slipped" and fell. In a sudden he realizes he could not get up??? A neighbor and close friend, Mary Fowler, walking down the street came upon Aust lying on the sidewalk. He asked her to go to our home and get my father. Somehow, some way my father and my brother, Si, managed to carry him back to the house. (6ft. 2 and 190 lbs.)

Our family doctor, Joseph Baldwin was called. After examining Aust he decided to call in an orthopedic specialist. Dr. Fett. After that exam they conferred together outside my brother's room. Not realizing the door was not closed tightly and Aust could hear their conversation. They agreed that he had been stricken with "Infantile Paralysis" (the title "Poliomylitis" evidently had not yet been invented). And they also agreed he would undoubtedly never walk again (all this was overheard by Aust). Can you imagine the depths of despair into which he sank? The doc's put his leg in a cast ostensibly to keep it from shrinking.

A few months later our mother heard from a friend of a friend about a nurse who had studied under the famous Sister Kenny of Australia who was doing remarkable work on people with disabled limbs. Mother got in touch with this woman, she agreed to try her skills.

I don't recall how many weeks or months this nurse came on a twice a week basis. She would coat his leg with some kind of oil to reduce friction and then massage, massage, massage. When she was finished and wiped off his limb she would stick a needle in Aust's be toe… he felt nothing. Then one day there was a scream, a shout, another scream: "I felt it, I felt it, do it again."

Then the rehabilitation started. Exercises to strengthen his upper body and swim, swim, swim. He was up on crutches now and getting around fairly well.

It was a year later that Aust decided on a project: to swim from Manhattan Beach to Rockaway Point a distance of 2.5 miles of open ocean with very strong tides and currents. He was warned against it by the lifeguards at the beach; but decided to try it anyway. He rounded up four of his friends, all very good swimmers, and myself. We trained in the ocean from May through mid-Aug. and then we went with Aust acting as "Mother Hen". He couldn't kick his legs but oh! How he could pull with his arms! He kept us together in a large circle, swimming around us from time to time, keeping us together and offering encouragement. He must have swam all of five miles making sure we were alright.

Later that month Aust decided to enter a swimming race. It was not just another race… it was The Metropolitan AAU Championships. He not only finished the first two "heats"; but qualified for the "finals". Now this wasn't any ole race… it was the best swimmers in all the metropolitan area of N.Y. This was the finals of the 220 yd freestyle.

Aust approached the starting blocks on his crutches. I helped him up on the block with the OK of the officials, supported him around the waist until the starting gun. There were six "all stars" in the race and Aust came in THIRD, and this he did without the use of his leg for kicking. There wasn't much of a story on it because very few people and no sports writers were aware of his paralysis. And now came time, at his insistence, to go back to college. He had discarded his crutches and was now on 2 canes. He enrolled in St. John's College in Brooklyn, commuting by subway and bus (all this depending on 2 canes). Aust finished that year and then qualified for law school (in those days one needed only two years of college to enter law school… if one could pass the entrance exam.) He was now down to one cane and getting around much better. Through a friend of a friend he got a job on Wall Street as a "Runner" for a broker. He then enrolled in the prestigious New York Law School for night classes (continuing to carry his job on Wall Street)

Austin graduated, passes "the Bar Exam" on his first try and became an attorney; perhaps the best known on "Court Street", not only for his intelligence but also for his quick humor and laughter… and oh!! How he could laugh!! Yes my brother, Aust, was a courageous man, a dedicated man, a perceptive man but most of all a man of love.

Now, as he would say, "enough is enough". With very much love, George Memories written by his sister, Mary Elizabeth O'Brien-Fritz ("Aunt Charlie") August 2003:

"My brother Austin was my mentor, my confidant, my guardisan angel, my best friend. He contracted polio when he was seventeen and I was three. His left leg was paralyzed and he was diagnosed with meningitis at the same time. My mother nursed him, boiling his bed sheets daily to disinfect them. She was successful in locating a Swedish Masseuse who knew the program of the famous Australian nurse "Sister Elizabeth Kenny" which had some results with polio rehab. After working with him 3 x per week for six months Austin managed to move his one big toe. Through sheer determination, courage and grit he eventually walked again even though his doctors had predicted that could not happen. His leg remained a shell of what it was but it worked again even though his doctors had predicted that could not happen. His leg remained a shell of what it was but it worked – although with a pronounced limp.

Austin was 5 years old when he entered 1st grade, by himself he walked and then rode the trolley to get to school. He attended a seminary high school in Brooklyn 6 days a week where tests for all subjects were given in Latin (which he read fluently). He entered Holy Cross college at 16 and was on summer vacation when he was stricken. After his recovery he worked as a runner on Wall St. and attended law school at night. When WWII started his brother Si entered the Marine Corps and his brother George the Navy. Austin was chaffing to join up also but he was declared "4F" because of his disability. He became determined however and went to the Army induction center at Grand Central Station each day to convince the examining Drs. That he would be up to the training. When the doctors threatened to call the police if he didn't stop coming back Austin made a deal with them – if he could scale a 5 ft. barrier that stood nearby (he had been a high jumper on his high school track team) they agreed to pass him for induction. He won and they did. He was assigned to the Central Intelligence Corps after completing officers training and obtaining his commission as 2nd Lt. He remained in the Army until the end of the war. Austin was a living legend in Brooklyn's legal community. He was cited as a "Lawyers Lawyer" at the 50th celebration of his practice. He had an unforgettable presence in the courtroom and in his life. He was a faithful husband , a loving father and grandfather and an adored brother.

Excerpts from a Eulogy given by his son Fr. Austin E. Titus , III at his funeral:

"...Dad was born as the so called Great War-the first world war-was raging. In the prime of his life, he was struck down with polio. And the third strike was the depression - the "great" depression. And then all hell broke loose in WW II. Now, with all that, the temptation is to become bitter with life. To just give up on God.

But everything about our faith rebels against that. Like Job, and Jesus, and Paul, and Silas, and Titus,- the martyrs, the long line of saints that have gone before us. We trust that God knows what he is doing- and we ring out in faith and in trust: 'Praise the Lord'.

But praise, like love, is more than just a feeling- To praise God, you imitate Him. You can heal people by the way you touch them- the way Jesus did. I was an accountant- but I can not count; I cant count the number of people -- who were deeply touched by Dad. His brothers and sisters- and their wives and husbands- his nephews and nieces-
Friends like Bert Behan, Paul O'Connel, Joe Rooney and their children as well- his many clients- truly I can't count the people he touched so deeply And when you touch people like that- you Praise the Lord!

And you also praise God by giving thanks. That's what every Eucharist is all about. Dad was so grateful for being able to see so much. God's creation filled him with awe. He thanked God always that he lived during what he felt was the greatest era of human history.

The inventions-the automobile, the airplane, the medical breakthroughs- the bravery of soldiers like MacArthur, and the leaders like Churchill, even the great movie stars- the sound of music- from rag time to the Benny Goodman and Judy Garland- the sports legends: Joe DiMaggio, Babe Ruth, Johnny Weissmuller, his classmate: "the coach"---Vince Lombardi. They were leaders and entertainers. But Dad----he was a man of faith. That is how he touched me...

...Dad knew more Latin than I did. He had a favorite expression. He used it in many of his conversations. He even gave it as a name to his boat. Res Ipsa Loquitor— in short, Res Ipsa. It means "it speaks for itself" In another words, it needs no explanation. Words would only get in the way. That's how he lived. Who he is - speaks for itself. The way you treat others, the way you help them, the way you love them- You don't need words. Your actions speak for you.

After fighting those early tragedies in his life, Dad kept fighting. He fought in the courtroom on behalf of his clients- who were mostly the poor and downtrodden. He fought until he could do it no more. Because the polio came back with a vengeance; Alzheimer's kicked in; and the heart finally gave out..."

... But it was a beautiful end - he had confession and the Eucharist in the morning- Mass was about to begin on the television in his room. With the Ave Maria being sung in the background. His last words to me were : "it is all right" "it is all right".

LEO JOSEPH TITUS, SR. (#1332) b. Jan. 26, 1948

Autobiographical information provided by Leo J. Titus Sr: Born at St. Mary's hospital, Brooklyn NY. Lived in a third floor apartment at 93rd street and Shore Road Bay Ridge, Brooklyn from 1948 through 1957. We were in St. Patrick's parish and I attended the parish's school, kindergarten through 2nd grade. I remember doing "duck and cover" (air raid) in school and looking out the window at the apartment when civil defense cleared the streets with test air raids. We would frequently visit grandma and grandpa Healy at 3561 Bedford Ave. in Flatbush, Brooklyn.

In 1952 dad had a house built at Knoll Crest in New Fairfield, CT. on Candlewood Lake. At first, it was our summer home and a place we would occasionally visit on fall and winter weekends. It wasn't until about 1956 that the water company was able to provide running water to the house during the winter months. Since the homes on our street were strictly for summer residences the water lines were not dug deep enough to withstand the cold winter temperatures. When we visited in the wintertime, dad would stop along the highway about 2 miles from the house and bottle water jugs from a mountain stream. He would get water from the lake so that we could use the toilet. Grandpa Austin frequently joined us on our trips to "the lake". During the summer we would move to the lake and dad would visit us on weekends. The trip to the lake seemed forever. We would travel through the Brooklyn Battery Tunnel and up the West Side Highway, which was elevated at the time. We would pass all the shipping terminals along the Hudson and can remember seeing all the cruise ships. Once we left Manhattan it was a two-lane road all the way to CT. The Hutchinson River Parkway, Merritt Parkway and Rt. 684 were not built.

The trips home on Sunday nights seemed forever. I can remember listening to Murder and Mister Malone on the car radio. I remember when Austin was born. Dad took me to the hospital and mom came to the window on an upper floor and waved. I also remember when Kevin was born and the day that mom brought him home from the hospital.

The first family car that I can remember was a green Studebaker convertible. Dad always had a love for cars. When the Rooney's moved next to us in CT., he would always be bringing home different automobiles. Joe Rooney was a car dealer in Westchester.

My first dog was Jauncey. A car on Shore Road killed him. The apartment window had a view of the entrance to the Verranzano straights before the bridge was built and can remember ships sailing into NY harbor. Mom would take me to play in park along Shore Road and the Belt Parkway. Dad bought me a scooter and I use to ride it in the park.

At the end of the block on 93rd street was a fire call box. I thought for some reason it was a candy machine. One day I was in my fire engine and got out and pulled the lever on the box. I can remember the fire trucks coming down the street and riding back to the apartment crying.

In Oct. of 1957 we moved from the apartment to a house at 105 Stratford Road in West Hempstead on LI. Eileen was born just before the move. Because it was in the middle of the term I had to go to the public school in third grade. This is the only public school I attended. The schools were so crowded we had split sessions. I was able to walk to school. One day a week Catholics were allowed to leave school early and go to the Catholic school for a few hours.

It was in West Hempstead that I got involved with competitive swimming with the CYO. We belonged to St. Thomas' parish. In the fall of 1956 I transferred to the parish school. We lived in West Hempstead for 4 years.

In 1959 Mom and Dad decided to move further out on the island and decided to build a home at 36 Renwick Ave. in Centerport. We sold the houses in CT. and West Hempstead and rented a home on Norwood Ave, in Northport until the house was built. I attended St. Philip Neri 6th grade to 8th grade. My closest friend was John Rathgaber who lived up the street. His father owned the Shell gas station on 25A. I had a part time job during the winter months in high school pumping gas, which was $0.249 per gallon.

When we moved to Centerport, mom and dad enrolled me at the Huntington YMCA. The swim coach noticed me swimming one day and asked me if I would want to join the swim team. This is when I got really serious about swimming. I eventually joined the LI Swim Club and competed in AAU swim meets throughout the NY metro area until I graduated from high school.

In 1962 I attended St. Anthony's High School in Smithtown, which was operated by the Franciscan Brothers. I was class president freshman, sophomore, and junior years. In my senior year I was Student Council vice president. It was at St. Anthony's that I started my career in food service working the luncheon counter.

Because of my swimming commitment outside of school, I only participated in intramural sports and varsity track (shot put). When I was 15, dad got me a summer job with the Town of Huntington Highway Dept. I really wanted to be a lifeguard but the minimum age requirement was 17. I can remember coming home with blisters on my hand the first day. The pay was great at $2.34 per hour.

The summer of my junior year in high school I finally got the lifeguard job at Centerport beach. Starting pay was $1.75 per hour, 6 days per week, 8 hour per day. There was no overtime pay in those days. We got paid straight time for anything over 40 hours.

During the summer of 1966, I competed in the International Life Guard Tournament in Montauk Point on LI. which was shown on the Wide World of Sports TV show. In the fall of 1966 I enrolled as a freshman a St. Bonaventure University. I majored in History and eventually met my bride to be Ann Izzo. We started dating in 1967. I continued my summer employment as a lifeguard throughout college. During the summers of my sophomore and junior years, I moon lighted with the town as a night watchman and rode on the garbage trucks on weekends. I averaged 96 hours straight time on my weekly paycheck.

At Bonaventure I was on the varsity swim team competing at the 1,000 yd. freestyle, 200 yd. Butterfly, and the 500 yd. Freestyle events.

I worked in the dining hall sophomore through senior year. Starting pay was $.96 per hour no taxes taken out. We were paid in cash weekly. I averaged about 15 to 20 hours per week. In my junior year I was promoted to student manager.

Ann and I got married in the spring of our junior year. That summer I assumed the responsibility of beach manager at Crabmeadow Beach in Northport LI which was right on Long Island Sound. The town allowed us to live in the cold water flat above the concession stand. I also worked at the beach during the summer of 1970.

Career notes:

1970 – 1976	St. Bonaventure University Rathskellar Manager, Olean, NY.

1998 –	Compass – USA, Regional Sales Director, Saratoga Springs, NY

EILEEN ANN TITUS (#1334) b. Oct. 19, 1955

Excerpt from an autobiographical article by Eileen Titus, June 2003
"My nephew called me last week and asked me to tell my life story on one page, to share with my great grand children my life and the things about it that you want to hear about. I adore my nephew, Leo, and so I shall attempt this challenging task!

I am the youngest and only girl of the Titus/Healy family, born in 1955. They called me Rosie. How I loved that name! That name somehow always made me feel special. Daddy called me that until the day he died.

My memories of my childhood include seeing John F. Kennedy during a campaign tour – my Dad threw me on top of his shoulders just as President Kennedy was passing our crowd. The shock of it all made me cry and I remember him looking right at me and waving. Dad loved that! I also remember the day he died. It was a terrible sadness for the entire world.

I remember Daddy's cars, one especially was this old convertible we called "Cheap Charlie". It always conked out on us and we would have to walk home. I remember often chanting "Come on Cheap Charlie!" over and over again praying we would make it up the hills. This was long before the era of seat belts when Dad loved to pile kids in the car and would allow them to drive on top of the back seats and even in the trunk of the car!

I remember the Beatles and knew every song by heart. I remember being in the movie theater with my girlfriends as we watched "A Hard Days Night"

I remember very strict nuns at St. Philip Neri, and going to early morning, daily Latin Masses with my Dad, I would have to wear a veil and stick bobby pins into my hair to keep it on. I remember always saying the rosary with pink plastic rosary beads. I remember standing in line with my classmates waiting for confession and praying that I did not get the mean priest who would yell at me for my sins. I remember buying a statue of the Blessed Virgin at a church fair. To this day I still have that statue on my bureau. I remember winning a bike at St. Philip Neri's for being the student who sold the most raffle tickets.

I remember having a ton of freckles, having to wear pink eye glasses, being heavier and taller than all my girlfriends and absolutely hating all of it. I love my height and my weight and my freckles!

I remember listening to the radio in our living room for the lottery for the Vietnam War and being so happy when my older brother, Austin got a really high number, meaning he would not have to go to war…

I was lucky to be born in 1955. Life was changing rapidly for females and I was given opportunities that I otherwise would not have had. I was the only female lifeguard to work for the Town of Huntington, 90 lifeguards…all male and me. I was in the second class of women at The College of the Holy Cross . Prior to 1973 the college was all male. Growing up with a household of boys, Austin, Kevin and Leo prepared me well for both experiences.

Today I continue to be surrounded by men. I have two incredibly wonderful boys, Corey and Casey, and the best husband I could ever hope be married to, all of whom continue to make me feel like a princess by surrounding me with love – a very blessed Rosie indeed!"

MISS TITUS ENGAGED (The Long Islander, Huntington, NY, Thursday, Jan. 3, 1980)
"The engagement of Eileen Ann Titus to Gerard J. Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Fitzpatrick, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Titus, Jr., of Huntington. Miss Titus is a graduate of Harborfields High School and Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass. She is employed as a stewardess with Pan American Airline and is presently living in San Francisco, Calif."

FLIGHT ATTENDANT AND MEDICAL STUDENT MARRY
(The Long Islander, Huntington, NY, Thursday, Jan. 3, 1980)
Eileen Ann Titus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Titus of Huntington, and Dr. Gerard Joseph Fitzpatrick of Commack, were married on Saturday, Jan. 3. The Rev. Crispin Maguire, pastor of Our Lady of Holy Angels R.C. Church, Little Falls, N.J., performed the ceremony at St. Phillip Neri R.C. Church, Northport. A reception followed at the Watermill Inn in Smithtown... Dr. Fitzpatrick graduated from Commack High School South. He received his undergraduate degree from William and Mary College, Va. And a degree in medicine from the University of Guadalajara, Mexico. He will serve his internship at St. Joseph's Hospital in Stamford Con. The couple will live in Stamford.

LEO JOSEPH TITUS, JR., P.E. (#1507) b. Sep. 10, 1969

I was born in Olean, New York on Sep. 10th, 1969. Some of my earliest memories are of living in Olean in a second floor apartment on 202 ½ Coleman Street. I can remember a lot of details about the apartment, playing in the neighborhood, and the Italian family next door, Dora, Quinto and Enzo.

Before I turned five years old, we moved to a small single family house on 21st Street. While we lived there, I attended Kindergarten at Washington West Elementary School, walking distance from our house. One day, I got into an argument with a boy in my class who was much larger than me. We both had decided that red was our favorite color, but he was not interested in letting someone else have the same favorite color as him. After school, we continued our disagreement in front of the school which concluded with the other boy punching me and giving me a bloody nose. One of my friends ran the several blocks to my house to report the incident to my mother. She found me and walked me back home and had hot chocolate.

I went to St. Mary's school for first grade. I think my teacher's name was Sister Ann Mary. I didn't like her too much. She was very strict. I remember looking through the window of our classroom door at the other first grade class across the hall. They always seemed to be having more fun than our class and would often pray that God would somehow transfer me to the other first grade class. It never happened.

Soon after first grade my Dad got a new job and we moved to Lancaster, PA in a neighborhood called "Old Hickory". There I attended second and third grade at Nitrauer Elementary School. I remember having a lot of fun living in Lancaster. We played outside constantly, playing baseball, trading baseball cards, riding bikes, swimming, snowball battles in the winter and occasionally exploring the nearby cornfields. I had a lot of friends and remember having the most fun playing "Kick the Can" well into the evening near a large birch tree.

I think those two years were some of the most fun of my childhood. I was sad when we moved away the summer before I went into fourth grade. My Dad had a new job that required us to move to Brookfield, Connecticut. We lived in Brookfield for a few years. The first year we lived in a town house on Silver Mine Road. I liked living there. The community was on the side of a large, wooded hill and I spent a lot of time exploring the forest. It was in Brookfield that I started in Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts. I really enjoyed my involvement in Boy Scouts which lasted until I was in high school.

After about a year in the town house on Silver Mine Road, we moved to a single family house on Patricia Lane in Brookfield. Out of all of the places we lived when I was growing up, I liked this place the least. I remember one day coming home from somewhere and seeing a "For Sale" sign in front of our house. My mom told me that we were moving to Saratoga. That was a very happy day! I loved visiting my grandparents in Saratoga. Now I was actually going to live there. I can remember as a kid having dreams about living next door to my grandparents. So moving to Saratoga was literally a dream come true.

I went to the middle school next to the Saratoga High School for 7th and 8th grade. When I was in middle school one of my favorite activities was playing baseball in little league. I was playing on the same fields at the "Rec" that I used to play on when we would visit my grandparents. Now I could play a game and walk over to my grandparents for dinner or just to get a soda. When I was in high school, I was on the Cross Country running team each fall and the Track and Field team in the spring. I played in the band, the jazz band the orchestra and sang in the chorus. I played the clarinet in 7th and 8th grade and then switched to the bass clarinet. I enjoyed high school and made a few good friends including Mike Chiumento and Pat Ryan who I still keep in touch with.

When I was at Clarkson I played on the rugby team and joined a local fraternity, Beta Tau (BT). Both were a lot of fun to be a part of. I also met my bride to be… Jennifer Sierzant. Actually, the first time I saw her was in my freshman calculus class. I thought she was very cute. While I was at home in Saratoga during a break, I remember someone saying "you'll probably go back to Clarkson and meet some cute engineer…" In my mind I pictured that girl in my calculus class who I hadn't met yet. The fall of my Sophomore year, I was introduced to Jen by Deb Lawya, a fellow Saratoga High grad and Jen's sorority sister. The rest is history.

After graduation Jen and I moved to Captain's Walk apartments in Annapolis, MD where we lived for a year. We loved Annapolis. It is a very charming town. In the fall of 1992 I was offered a management position with PSI in Worcester, MA. It was a very small engineering office (4 people) but it was a great opportunity. We moved to Massachusetts and ultimately built our first house in Foxboro, MA after living in an apartment in Shrewsbury, MA for a short time. It was a small house but was perfect for us.

Three years after taking over the Worcester office we had grown to about 15 people and doing very well. I was asked to move to Fairfax, VA to take over a failing office, one of the larger offices in the company. I accepted and we built a house on Ginghamsburg Place in Ashburn, VA. It was about that time that I passed the Professional Engineering exam after a couple of failed attempts. Between the Engineer in Training Exam and the Professional Engineer exam I spent a great deal of time and energy studying and taking the exams. It was a huge relief to finally pass.

After about a year of trying to turn things around at PSI, I was convinced that the management of PSI was not willing to do what I thought it would take to make the Fairfax office successful. I resigned and went to work for ECS. Probably the best move of my career. I worked for ECS as a project engineer in the geotechnical department for 2 years before I was asked to take over the Field Services department. It was the largest department in the company with about 25% of the company's sales. For almost four years I have managed that department and we have been successful. On August 1, 2003 I will assume the position of Vice President and Manager of all ECS Chantilly operations. It is a very exciting opportunity and I'm looking forward to it.

During the seven years we have been in Ashburn, we have been blessed with three beautiful girls. Laura, Allison and Kelley. They are our focus now. It is a very happy home with Jen staying home full time, terrific neighbors and a lot of family now living in the area including both of my brothers, Frank and Stephen.

Of course one of the most significant historical events to occur during our life in Ashburn was the attacks of Sep. 11, 2001. I had recently joined the Fairfax County Urban Search and Rescue Team known as Virginia Task Force One (VA-TF1). The morning of Sep. 11th I found myself inside the Pentagon as it was still burning. It was such a significant historical event and an important event in my life, I decided to try to write my memories of my time at the Pentagon in detail. It is presented below.

My Recollections of Sep. 11th, 2001

The 1st thing I can remember about that Tuesday morning was what a beautiful day it was. The day before was my birthday and it was going to be a good week. On Monday afternoon, I was at The Potomac Club at Avenel for a marketing golf tournament. As I stood on the patio overlooking the 18th green, I was on my cell phone setting up a very important business meeting for Wednesday morning, Sep. 12th. I remember looking down at the cracks in the concrete of the patio while I was talking on the phone thinking that they could use our help to fix the concrete slab. The purpose of the meeting I was setting up was to negotiate a very large contract for the Possum Point Power Plant project. After I got off the phone I started to think about what I needed to do to prepare for the meeting. I planned to go into the office Tuesday morning to work on it

Just as I was pulling into the office on Tuesday morning, I heard a short comment on the radio program I was listening to about reports that a plane had crashed into the World Trade Center. The radio program was the Imus in the morning show. A program that is based in New York City and one that I have listened to almost every morning since about 1993. I can remember listening to his program early in the morning as I was getting dressed for school when I was growing up living in Brookfield Connecticut.

Hearing the news, I imagined that a small commuter plane or something must have gone off course and accidentally hit one of the towers. I didn't think too much more of it as I got out of my car and went into my office.

A few minutes later I was walking by the conference room in the office and noticed someone trying to hook up an antenna to the TV monitor. A project engineer in my department at that time, Greg Colley, had an antenna in his car because he was in the office working on Sunday and wanted to watch the Redskins game while he was working. I still didn't think this was a significant event until I saw the pictures on TV of the first tower on fire. The NBC Today show was broadcasting live pictures of the smoke coming out of one of the twin towers. The damage appeared to be more serious than I originally imagined.

I left the conference room for a few minutes and when I had come back the second plane had just hit. Several people in the conference room watched the second plane hit as it happened just before I walked into the room. Shocked, I stood there and watched replays over and over trying to figure out what was going on. There were probably 8 or 9 people in the room watching the broadcast. I remember some of those people, Rick Cowart, Lisa Carlisle, Patty Phillips, Stan Murphy, Greg Colley and some others were popping in and out over a five minute period just to see what was going on.

I realized this was very serious and started to wonder if the search and rescue team I recently joined, VA-TF1, would be called to New York. Stan Murphy, a principal engineer in my department and a VA-TF1 veteran, told me that he thought it was very likely we would be called up to New York. This was only minutes after the second plane had hit. After a few minutes of watching the television broadcast I quickly went down to my office and turned the radio on. As I was gathering my thoughts a news-flash came over that some smoke was seen coming out of the Pentagon. It wasn't clear what happened and there were some reports that a helicopter possibly crashed at the Pentagon near the helipad.

I went to talk to Stan and he suggested I run home to get my gear just in case VA-TF1 mobilized. I was nervous. I literally ran to the car and drove home listening to the radio. As I drove up route 28, I heard reports that it was in fact a plane that had hit the Pentagon. Moments later, I heard live reports that the first tower had collapsed. I was stunned. About that time, my father called to make sure I was aware of what was going on. I can't remember where he said he was, but I think he was in front of a television since he was describing the collapsed tower. I told him that I was on my way home to get my gear and that there was a "10% chance" that I would be going to New York. At that time I had no idea how serious the attack at the Pentagon had been.

As soon as I pulled into my driveway, I ran into the house and down into the basement. The contractor I had hired to finish the basement had just started the day before and they were working on the framing. I told them what had happened in New York. I don't think they realized the magnitude of the situation until later. I ran upstairs and turned the TV on. Within minutes, I saw the second tower collapse live on TV. Again, I was stunned. The television newscaster was also stunned. There was no discussion as you would typically expect with a news anchor. Just silence as we watched together as the second tower collapsed into a pile of rubble and dust. I ran up to the guest bedroom where my gear was stored. I gave it a once over, grabbed everything and brought it out to the car.

I went back inside and told the guys working in the basement, Johnny and Jim, that I would leave the TV on and if they wanted to go up and see what was going on to feel free. I also told them I wasn't sure when I would be home again and didn't know if I was going to be able to pay them for this week's work until this was all over. They told me not to worry about it and I was off.

I kept in constant contact with Stan Murphy via NEXTEL radio. To this point the team had not been put on alert status yet. I drove as fast as I could back to the office. Stan had already left the office and was on his way home to get his gear. I also contacted Dean Tills, the Structural Specialist Manager to tell him I was available and ready. He told me to wait for word, but he was confident we would probably be deployed to New York.

As soon as I got to the office, I checked my email and saw the alert from VA-TF1. I picked up the phone and called the number we were told to call. Once I got through, they asked me my name, position and how long would it take to get to Station 18 with full gear. I told them 15 to 20 minutes. They told me to get there as fast as I could.

I ran down the hall and told my boss and a few others I was on alert and headed out. I called Stan and he told me he would get there as fast as he could. I couldn't help but wonder as I was driving if any of the people driving around me knew what was going on. Everyone seemed to be going about their business. By this time it must have been about 10:30 or 11:00. I tried calling Jen, but remembered that she had meetings that morning out of her office and I had no way of reaching her. I called my dad again and told him we had been alerted and that I would keep him informed. Next I called Fran Hoover, our next door neighbor to let her know what was going on. Laura and Allison were at daycare and I couldn't reach Jen.

I pulled into Station 18 off of route 50, just inside the beltway. I was one of the first to arrive. I signed in and asked what I should do. Someone told me to get my BDU's on (I was still in my work clothes). I ran back to my car and changed on the sidewalk. The spot where I parked is a residential area and I kept looking around to make sure I wasn't going to upset one of the neighbors by getting down to my underwear in the middle of the street.

Once I was in my uniform, I dropped off all my gear and waited. More and more people started rolling in. I kept trying to call Jen but with no luck. Once I heard we were being deployed at the Pentagon, I talked to my dad and to Fran one more time to let them know we were going and I was on the roster. I don't think I'll ever forget getting a copy of the roster and seeing my name in the Structural Specialist slot. I realized just then, this is it... I am actually going. Especially since all seven Structural Specialists showed up at station 18. Since I was the first one there, I was put on the roster to go. Tony Beale was the other Structural Specialist assigned on the roster. I was getting more nervous, wondering if I was capable of doing the job.

I was also concerned about possibly being away from Jen and the kids for an extended period. I knew it would be hard on Jen and I considered letting one of the other guys go in my place. But something told me I had to do this. Then either I called Jen or she called me. I can't remember how we got in touch, but I was finally talking to her. She had already picked up the kids and was at home. I was told later that when Fran Hoover saw Jen pull into the driveway she went over to Jen to tell her what was going on and that I had been in contact with her. Jen was understandably nervous about the whole idea of me walking into a disaster zone. I assured her over the phone I would stay safe. The truth is, I really didn't know what we were headed into, but I had to try to keep her as calm as possible.

Once I had talked to Jen a great sense of relief came over me. She knew where I was now and I could focus my thoughts on what I had to do. I had just finished structural specialist training a month earlier in Sacramento. While we were waiting to go to the Pentagon, I was trying to remember all of the things we were taught.

Not long passed when the busses pulled up along with a police escort. We were told to get on the busses and we were on our way. By this time it was probably about 12:30.

The police escort brought us right down route 50. I remember how proud I felt to be on the bus with these guys. We were rolling down the highway with people honking their horns and giving the thumbs up signs. On the bus, one of the Operations Managers gave a pep talk which really helped to get us focused on the job ahead. My nervousness started to go away on the bus ride. This was real now and a sense of duty replaced nerves. The magnitude of the events was sinking in and I and most of the rest of the task force were mentally getting ready as we drove down route 50. Patriotism, pride, anger, revenge, nervousness... many emotions were running through my head.

We arrived at the Pentagon about 20 minutes later and had to stay on the bus for several minutes for security reasons. While waiting, we all were crowding up against the right side of the bus looking at the crash site. It was a lot bigger than I had imagined. At this time it was about 1:00 p.m., only about 3 or 4 hours after the attack. There were several fire trucks still putting water into the building. It wasn't realized until later, but the fire damage was very significant. While on the bus, I snapped my first picture of the site.

Once we got off the bus, we made our way into the site. First we had to wait a few minutes to get wrist bands before being allowed into the site. Later during the week the security would get tighter including photo ID badges.

We assembled on the lawn and I met up with Dean Tills who had arrived at the scene about an hour earlier as a member of the FEMA IST (Incident Support Team). Dean briefed Tony Beale and me on the situation. We went over some drawings to review where the potential interior damage would be. We spent about 15 minutes getting oriented when I heard that the Recon teams were forming. I didn't know it, but I was on the blue recon team. The recon team consisted of about three rescue people, a haz-mat, a canine, and an engineer.

Since I was a rookie, I still wasn't fully equipped for all situations. I was told to put on some flash gear and a respirator in preparation of going in the building for reconnaissance. Unfortunately I did not have any flash gear to put on. Flash gear is the coat and pants that firefighters wear for small fires. I went around looking for someone that had flash gear I could borrow. I found some and quickly got suited up.

As the recon team gathered just outside the building, I noticed a line of FBI personnel searching the lawn for pieces of the plane. I saw several small plane pieces scattered all over the ground.

We went into the building just to the left of where the plane had entered. I remember seeing a small piece of the plane leaning up against the building as we went in. I'll never forget this next part either. We entered the building and immediately I was amazed at the smoke and debris and the darkness. I could not believe where I was and what I was doing. My absolute first thought as I started climbing the debris to get farther into the building was "Jen would KILL me if she saw what I was doing". My next thought was "My MOM would kill me if she saw what I was doing." The greatest fear that we all had was the potential for additional collapse. In retrospect, the only danger I was in was of slipping and cutting myself on debris, inhaling smoke or dehydration from the intense heat. But at that moment, it was so dark, smoky and there was so much debris, I didn't really know how dangerous a place I was in. We had to assume the worst, so we were very careful to stay clear of the areas where collapse was possible. Keeping us out of those areas was my job.

Our mission was to enter the building and to evaluate the damage and to identify potential areas where there may be victims. We worked our way into a stair well and went up to the second floor. The heat from the fire was intense. The flames were out but there were a lot of areas glowing with hot embers.

One unexpected obstacle was water. There was a lot of water. Several inches of water was on the floor and it was literally "raining" scalding hot water from the water still being put on the roof fighting the fire.

A slightly humorous story about the water: Just before entering the building, my recon leader Mike Regan, wanted to make sure I was ready to go in. He knew this was my first deployment. He double checked to make sure I had paper and pen so I could write down the structural conditions that we saw and report them to operations when we exited the building. He strongly emphasized how important it was that I have my pen and some paper.

While we were on the second floor, I noticed some structural damage and I took out my pen and paper. It was hard to write with gloves on, so I took my right glove off to start writing. As I was writing, hot water fell from above and hit back of my hand. It burned so bad I flinched wildly and my pen went flying. The pen was gone. A few minutes later, my recon leader asked me to jot down some notes and I had to tell him I lost my pen. I felt pretty stupid, but someone else had one and we were able to move on.

I'm not sure how long we were in the building, probably 20 to 30 minutes. The heat was intense and there were areas we couldn't go further because of it. I remember the recon team leader continuously calling out "FAIRFAX FIRE!!! IF YOU CAN HEAR US MAKE A NOISE!!" Then we would wait silently a few moments listening. I hoped that we would hear anything, but feared that due to the heat and smoke, there wouldn't be any response. After several minutes, the recon leader acknowledged that it was unlikely there would be any survivors due to the fire.

The haz-mat guy indicated the carbon dioxide levels were getting dangerously high. We were only equipped with half mask respirators, not designed for protection from carbon dioxide. In addition, the floors were very hot and the dog's feet were getting burned. The recon leader ordered me and the canine team out of the building. They were going to stay in to check out the third floor. While walking down the stairwell I slipped and fell a few steps. I've heard people talk about it being so dark you couldn't see your hand in front of your face, but this was the first time I've ever experienced that. I picked myself up and found my way to the bottom of the stairs by the way of the light of the canine handler ahead of me. When I slipped she heard me and turned around to shine her helmet light so I could make it the rest of the way. Being my first time, I didn't know I should have had my own flashlight when I went into the building. Lesson learned.

I was told later by the recon leader, a veteran firefighter, that I experienced a pretty intense situation inside that building, even for a firefighter. He patted me on the back and told me I did a good job. That made me feel pretty good and more confident. Several months later I saw him again at a White House ceremony commemorating the six month anniversary of Sep. 11th. We relived the whole experience and had a few laughs about the pen incident.

After I left the building I met up with Dean Tills again and went over what I saw. The majority of the recon team stayed inside for another 30 to 40 minutes. I spent some time with him and some of the representatives of the Pentagon Renovation team reviewing plans and waiting for someone to tell me what to do next. It didn't take too long before Tony Beale and I were told to set up monitoring stations to see if there were any areas of the structure that were moving and potentially a hazard. We determined that the most critical area that needed attention was the corner of the building that was adjacent to the collapse zone. Several columns were obviously missing, and there was a significant length of building that was cantilevered with no support from below.

We weren't sure how stable this area was, so we kept the area cordoned off until we could better evaluate the hazards of working in this area. We set up two transits about 100 feet from the building. One transit was focused on the corner of the building that was cantilevered. The second was fixed on a piece of rebar that was part of the parapet hanging in the collapse zone. The task was to record any movement and report it to operations. For at least the next several hours, no movement was recorded. By this time, it was late afternoon and the next several hours was spent getting organized, setting up the monitoring stations and setting up the base of operations (BOO).

It was clear that the cantilevered section needed to be shored to prevent it from collapsing. It was still relatively early in the deployment and we were still in "rescue" mode, which means we are working with understanding that there still may be survivors in the building. That is different than "recovery" mode. In rescue mode, more risks will be taken to save a life since time is critical. In recovery mode time is no longer a major factor. The objective is to recover as many victims as possible without any injuries to the rescue team. That means we take our time, plan and execute very cautiously. When there is a live victim, time is of the essence and higher risks are tolerated.

As we monitored the collapse that afternoon, I noticed a group of men in dark suits about 30 feet away from me assessing the damage. It was the Governor of Virginia, Richard Gilmore and members of his staff. He was the first of several dignitaries to visit the site.

Late in the afternoon, materials for shoring started to arrive from local contractors and hardware stores. The Home Depot was the largest supplier of lumber. This type of event is referred to as a "luxury disaster". Because of the nature of the event, whatever we asked for, we got. This is much different than an earthquake in a third world country where the task force has to work with whatever they can find in the streets.

During the afternoon and evening, three other Task Forces arrived on site. First, MD-TF1 out of Montgomery County, Maryland arrived at about 3:00 p.m. VA-TF2 out of Virginia Beach arrived late in the afternoon and TN-TF1 out of Tennessee arrived during the night. The FEMA Urban Search and Rescue Response System also had an Incident Support Team (IST) which was there to help coordinate the Task Forces and work with outside agencies and officials to obtain necessary equipment and supplies. The IST assigned the two Virginia teams to the night shift, 6:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. The other two teams had the day shift.

Shoring – 11:50 p.m., Sep. 11th

Just before starting shoring, we set up a third transit monitoring station to the left of the collapse area. MD-TF1 had a cache of equipment that allowed us to have three transits set up. (VA-TF1 carries two transits in their cache). As shoring began, I was stationed on the third transit. According to my monitoring log, shoring began at 11:45 p.m.

Shoring was done using 6" x 6" lumber. The first shore was a couple of simple post shores followed by a "9 point crib shore". A crib shore is a very simple column of lumber. Three pieces per layer, laid down alternating each layer. It is very similar to building Lincoln Log toys. Once the shore reached the beam it was to support (about 14 from the ground) small wedges or "shims" were driven into place to transfer the weight from above onto the crib shores.

About an hour or so after the shoring began, I noticed that some of the limestone panels on the exterior wall were loose. Several came off during the impact and explosion. Many others were still in place, but it was obvious that many were loose and directly above the rescue squads building the shores. We were suddenly concerned that some of these panels could fall and seriously injure someone.

I asked that the shoring be temporarily stopped until the panels could be knocked off. A man was sent up in a man-basket with a crowbar and pried off several of the loose panels. Other panels were reached from a window on the third floor. It took a crew of two men with crowbars and axes 45 minutes to break through the recently installed blast resistant windows.

I spent most of the first night stationed at one of the transits monitoring the shoring operations. I checked the transit every 15 minutes and kept a log of any movement. There was no movement recorded the night of the 11th into the early morning hours of the 12th. The three crib shores at the front corner of the collapse area were completed at about 5:45 a.m. on Sep. 12th.

Leo Titus Jr. (left)talking with other engineers while monitoring the damaged section of the Pentagon after the terrorist attacks of Sep. 11th, 2001

Met Allyn Kilsheimer

At about 10:00 p.m. or so the night of the 11th, Allyn Kilsheimer came walking up to the collapse zone with two military escorts. I knew Allyn from several jobs that ECS has worked with him on. He is a structural engineer and was called by the Pentagon Renovation team to come down and assess the structural damage. Allyn was wearing "docksider" style boat shoes, a pink golf shirt and a baseball cap. He was not at all dressed to go into the building, but that is exactly where he was headed.

I walked up to him to say hi and to warn him that he needed to get some protective clothing on before he went into the building. Allyn argued for few minutes moment that he didn't need boots or other gear. I gently convinced him and about ten minutes later I saw him walking back in full flash gear, boots and helmet. During the rest of the week I was there, Allyn and I talked almost every day. While VA-TF1 was continuing shoring operations, Allyn was planning the reconstruction.

Sight of first three victims

The night of the 11th and early morning hours of the 12th, while the shoring was underway, was my first sight of any victims. The shoring at the corner had allowed us to get closer to the building and with flash lights we looked into the damaged area trying to identify structural problems. Someone pointed out three or four different bodies in the rubble. Because it was so dark and there was so much debris, it was very hard to see them at first. The shoring squads are made up of professional fire fighters and they are trained and experienced in finding bodies. All I could see of the victims was white patches which were parts of their skulls. The fire had been so intense that all that was left of several victims was their skeletons. In some cases, some body tissue still remained and could be seen from a distance only as a patch of red. This was the only color that stood out amongst the dark gray and black charred debris.

Food – Salvation Army

Within hours of being on site, there was a Salvation Army truck parked near our Base of Operations. They were handing out all sorts of drinks and food. My first meal at the Pentagon was a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. I had many more of those that week. Over the next few days several support groups were on site serving all types of food and snacks. There was a mobile McDonald's and a Burger King on site as well as the Salvation Army and the American Red Cross. Unfortunately, I just started a diet and exercise program a few weeks before. There was plenty of food and drink available and I ate a lot. So much for the diet.

During the night someone had rigged a small television at the BOO. Occasionally I would have an opportunity to watch what was going on up in New York on for a few minutes. There wasn't a lot of access to media for the first couple of days. Being a "news junkie" it was difficult for me to not be up to speed with the latest news considering this was one of the most significant events in the nation's history.

After working through the night, we started to prepare for other teams arriving to relieve us. At about 5:30 a.m. the morning of Sep. 12th, we were told that the Maryland Task Force and the team from Tennessee would be on the day shift. Our team and the task force from Virginia Beach, VA-TF2, would be on the night shift from 6:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. for the duration of the deployment.

Shoring of the front corner finished at about 5:45 a.m. and we started to get ready to head out to get some sleep. We were promised that we would be taken somewhere where we would have beds, hot showers and food. We started boarding buses around 6:30 a.m. We took a short drive into the southeast part of Washington D.C. to the Anacostia Naval Base. The accommodations were not exactly plush, but they didn't need to be. We were provided with old classrooms where we could sleep.

Having been up all night working I was pretty tired when we got back. But besides being tired I was hungry. I walked over to the mess hall where breakfast was being served. I don't remember exactly what I ate, but it was breakfast food. What I do remember was sitting at a table alone eating while I watched the morning news on a television. Overall the cafeteria was fairly crowded, but it was also pretty quiet as everyone listed to the latest news coming out of New York. The news coverage out of New York was much more intense considering the magnitude of the disaster. The Pentagon would have been a major historical event on its own, but was somewhat overshadowed by the thousands of deaths at the World Trade Center.

I walked back to the classroom building to get some sleep. Showers were available, but I was so tired I decided to just go to sleep and take a shower when I woke up. There were no cots available so we all slept on the floor the fist day. Several team members had been through this before and had bed rolls or sleeping bags in their gear. I being a rookie did not, so I slept on the floor using a shirt for a blanket. The second day (Thursday) cots and sleeping bags were available which made things a little more comfortable.

On Wednesday I probably got to sleep around 9:30 or 10:00 a.m. Since it was the middle of the day, it was hard to get a good sleep. We did a good job of covering the windows to make the room dark, but my internal clock wouldn't let me sleep more than about 4 or 5 hours even though I had been up for well over 24 hours. I woke up at about 2:30 or 3:00 p.m. I took a shower and changed into some dry clean clothes. Most important, I changed into a fresh dry pair of socks. Before I went to sleep I put baby powder in my boots to help dry them out. Baby powder and clean socks were one of the most important keys to comfort during the deployment. I changed my socks two or three times a day always remembering to sprinkle them with baby powder before putting my boots back on.

At about 5:00 p.m. we started to gather onto the buses to take the short trip over to the Pentagon. I remember calling Jen, my Dad and my boss, Jim Baldridge, to touch base and give them an update. This became somewhat routine since I had my cell phone with me. The challenge was finding a place where I could charge the phone when the battery went down. Those daily calls were good because it kept me in touch with home and work.

We were on the bus driving to the Pentagon and either my Mom or Dad called me on my cell phone. They wanted to let me know that President Bush was leaving the White House and was on the way to the Pentagon to visit the rescue workers. We were in evening traffic. I knew that if we were not on the Pentagon grounds when the President got there that we would not be allowed to enter until after he left for security reasons.

We pulled up to the Pentagon at about 5:30 p.m. and as I expected, we had to sit on the bus until the President left the area. I was pretty disappointed since I would have liked the opportunity to see the President in person. I was comforted that he and his staff were in charge. During the election the year before, I was a strong supporter of Bush and disliked the Gore candidacy. I remember thinking that one of the main reasons I voted for Bush was because I knew he would have a strong experienced team in place in the event there was an international crisis.

While we were on the ride over, our operations leader gave us a pep talk. Several of the task force members were upset that we were not on a bus headed to New York. We all knew that there would be no survivors at the Pentagon, so several thought that our skills would be better put to use at the World Trade Center where there was still some hope of finding survivors. Knowing that there were hundreds of New York City firefighters missing made it even more difficult. Most of the task force members are firefighters and they have bond with all firefighters. I could see the pain and emotion on some of their faces as they expressed their concern about the usefulness of our deployment at the Pentagon. Jerry Roussillon, one of the operations leaders, gave us a motivational talk about how important our job at the Pentagon was. We were there to stay and we were going to do the best job that we could to help recover the victims. As days went on and the likelihood of survivors at the World Trade Center started to decline, most of the team realized that we where we were supposed to be and there were very few comments about going to New York.

When we were finally allowed to get off the bus, we had to get back onto the Pentagon grounds. While we were sleeping, security started to get more organized. We were allowed in, but we had to get security badges. This was a process that occurred more than once since the security procedures kept changing. One of the first things we noticed as we walked onto the Pentagon grounds was the giant American flag that had been draped over the side of the building to the south of the collapse area. It was very inspirational to see that. The night before I witnessed a small group of military personnel put a makeshift flag on a pole sitting on top of a burnt out fire truck. It was immediately behind the transit monitoring station that I was stationed at for the last few hours of the night.

After getting cleared through security, I requested to go down to the monitoring station to see how things were going. No movement had occurred through the night so everything was status quo.

Sometime around 7:30 p.m. I was told that I would be on a team going back into A & E drive. The team's mission was to escort FBI and NTSB personnel into the alley known as "A&E" drive where the plane had come to rest. There was reportedly several victims and they wanted to begin recovery efforts.

We started our way back into A&E drive around 8:00 p.m. The first thing I remember was all of the water on the floor. I kept waiting for my feet to feel water seeping through my boots, but to my surprise, my feet stayed pretty dry.

As we got closer to the area where the plane came to rest, the odor became very strong. It is impossible to describe. There was nothing left of the plane. I couldn't recognize any structural part of the plane other than small fragments of aluminum that were twisted and melted. There were a lot of small pieces of flesh scattered all over the ground. I wouldn't call them body parts since I couldn't recognize anything. It was more like pieces of flesh and bone scattered all over the ground and sitting under about two inches of water.

The hole in the wall was about 9 feet in diameter. As the structural specialist, I was asked to go into the hole and evaluate whether or not the area was safe for the other Team Members and the other agency personnel. I had to be very careful where I was walking since the remains of two of the building victims had been marked just a few feet inside the hole. If it hadn't been for the red tape placed to mark the victim locations I would have had trouble seeing them since all that remained were mostly skeletons and ash.

After determining that the area was structurally safe to enter, I notified my group leader that people could go in about ten feet. Once debris was moved out of the area, I would be able to further into the building to make another assessment. After that, I didn't have much to do other than watch the other agencies do their jobs. I had to stay with the group, so I looked for a spot where the ground was dry, found a bucket and used it as a seat. We stayed back there for a few hours while the FBI and NTSB picked up body parts, personal items and plane parts. I sat there as they spread out personal items next to me. I distinctly remember a brief case, a wallet, several wallet size photographs, a check book, shoes, a mail bag stuffed with letters, business papers, pieces of clothing, pieces of suitcases. It was difficult to sit there and watch this stuff pile up and have nothing else to do.

We spent several hours back in A & E drive. At the same time, other teams were out front discussing internal shoring activities. Later that night, probably around 11:30, I was asked to go into the building with the other VA-TF1 structural specialist, Tony Beale. Our mission was to map out columns on the first floor that required shoring. We used structural drawings to orient ourselves on the first floor.

This was a difficult mission since there was still very little lighting available inside and the debris made maneuvering very difficult. It became clear that shoring would be very difficult with all of the debris in the way. There was no clear path into the building and there were piles of debris immediately below areas that required shoring.

That night there was still some confusion as to who was in charge with respect to the shoring activities. The end of our shift was coming up and we needed to turn over recommended areas for the Maryland and Tennessee teams to start working. The engineers that were there decided that the best approach would be to start shoring back in C ring where there was less risk of collapse. As we completed the shoring we would move in the direction of the most dangerous area, columns 9.B.

We made several copies of this sketch and turned it over to the incoming structural specialists on the day shift. We suggested that they request the Army start clearing debris to create paths indicated on the sketch. Everyone agreed and they proceeded to start the clearing of debris.

We packed up and were getting ready to board the buses to head back to the Anacostia Naval Base. As we were riding on the bus that morning, we saw all of the flags on cars and buildings. People were honking their horns, pointing at us, waving, clapping, and giving us the thumbs up sign. It was very moving. This was a common occurrence every time we were on the bus. It made me feel good to be a part of it.

As we unloaded at the naval base, there was a lot of food, drinks, toiletries, cots, sleeping bags, pillows, newspapers. It was all there for us to take what we needed to be comfortable. I had two big concerns besides being comfortable. First, I needed to make sure that my phone was charged so I could maintain contact with Jen. I found a navy van that didn't appear to be in use and it was unlocked. I plugged into the lighter to charge my phone. I was worried that someone might come and drive the van away and my phone would be gone so I wrote a sign in magic marker to indicate that there was a phone charging and to leave it behind if anyone needed the van.

FRANK STEPHEN TITUS (#1508) b. Jun. 13, 1972

I was born Olean, New York on June 13, 1972. We spent a few years in Olean while my mom finished her Masters Degree in education and then moved to Lancaster Pennsylvania. I have two fond memories of Lancaster, one day my brother Leo and I were driving in the car with our Dad who noticed an Amish man at the side of the road experiencing problems with his carriage. Our father offered to give him a ride to where he needed to go. As the man got in the car Leo and I looked at each other noticing the strong odor coming from the man, our father's way of introducing us to the Amish lifestyle. The other main memory I have of Lancaster was June13, 1977, not only my 5th birthday, but the day my parents came home from the hospital with Stephen. Needless to say he got all of the attention, but I got a "Green Machine" big wheel bicycle .

We later moved to Brookfield Connecticut where we first lived in a townhouse. I remember eating blueberry pie on the porch that my father brought home from work as we watched the bats fly overhead. I played soccer in Brookfield and recall hearing the news that Pope John Paul II had been shot after practice one day. I also recall playing bumper bowling when President Reagan was shot. I learned how to swim on Candlewood Lake in Brookfield, the same lake my father grew up on 20 years earlier.

My time in Connecticut included a period where I was quite ill and spent a large amount of time in the hospital. I remember my father bringing me a teddy bear and radio as he left to spend several weeks on a ship providing food service for the Maritime Academy. When I returned home from the hospital my mom home schooled me; I would often hide from her during math lessons.

We moved to Saratoga Springs in the early 1980's. My first day of school in Saratoga was at St. Clements Elementary School in the 4th grade. We lived with my grandma and grandpa Izzo for a few weeks while we waited to move into our house, where I would have my own room (with eagle wall paper). We lived right around the corner from the Hospital Emergency Room. I still have a scar on my right palm where I fell out front and needed to go to the ER for stitches.

I tried out for the swim team one day; after listening to the coach yell at me to swim faster I remember getting out of the pool and telling him that I quit. I didn't consider being yelled at 'fun'.

I was very active in Boy Scouts; was an Eagle Scout, spent several summers at camp where I was a counselor and a lifeguard for a summer. I remember riding my bike to grandma and grandpa's often, mowing grandpa's lawn, eating steak sandwiches with mayonnaise and "Kraft Macaroni and Cheese" for dinner and making homemade chocolate chip cookies.

When I graduated from Saratoga High School in 1990 I attended Ithaca College where I was a resident assistant and Vice President of my Senior Class. I studied a little bit as well. I met my future wife Heidi Frey my sophomore year, we were in several classes together and were fixed up by our student advisors.

While a senior in college I interned at Community Health Plan in Latham, NY where after graduating I began full time work. While there, Heidi and I were married and we later moved to Michigan where I worked for M-CARE, the University of Michigan's HMO. I received my Masters in Health Services Administration at UM. Heidi and I had both of our daughters, Abbey and Maggie at UM hospital and we built our first home in Dexter Michigan.

We all moved to Maryland in 2003, where our daughters will get to grown up with their cousins. I am running Kaiser Permanente's nation claims and benefit service organization. We are looking for a house in the D.C. area and enjoying spending much more time with our family in the area. (June 2003)

FRANK PAUL IZZO (Section IV, #10) b. Jul. 11, 1920

My grandfather was born in Saratoga Springs, NY. With the exception of his attending Michigan State and a few years in the Army during the 1940's, his entire life he lived either at 105 West Circular Street or at 17 Ritchie Place in Saratoga Springs where he and my grandmother live today.

His earliest memories of his father were sitting on the edge of his bed and trying to teach him a little bit of the Italian language. At a tender age he was taught to count to 100, the Lords Prayer and a couple of simple Italian poems. He remembers his mother sitting him in a chair before going to school if it was a holiday like Arbor Day, Washington & Lincoln's Birthday, Valentines Day, etc. When the teacher would ask the class, "who knows what day this is?" he was always the only one to raise his hand. And the teacher would say "Yes Frank" (Rolling her eyes and in a tone that suggested she was a little tired of him being he only one to know the answer) and he would recite the name of the occasion. His mother made sure that the family somehow afforded a piano and that he would take lessons. In college, he shared his expertise and played many tunes by ear. In his senior yearbook at Michigan State University, there is picture of Frank playing the piano and singing at his fraternity house. The text to the left of the photo reads: "... Frank "Saratoga" Izzo, student council elections chairman and Phi Kappa Tau story teller, who thinks New Yawk is the only state in the union..."

105 West Circular Street – Saratoga Springs, NY

He was the Senior Class President of the Saratoga Springs High School Class of 1938. The caption next to his photo in the yearbook reads" "Resolved to Rule". He was in the senior play, Varsity Club, Varsity Soccer, Drum Corps and several other committees and activities. He was listed as "Most Popular" and "Most Ambitious" in his senior class yearbook (1938).

When he was in high school he worked at Ligget's drug store. After high school he wanted to attend Rennsalear Polytechnic Institute (RPI) and study to become an engineer. He was accepted there but the tuition was five or six hundred dollars per year and the family could not afford it. He decided to go to Michigan State. There he met Aileen Zickgraf and they married in 1944.

Frank Izzo in front of Liggets Drug Store

After graduation he was commissioned as an officer and served at anti aircraft artillery training posts and the infantry before serving two years (1945 – 1946) as a commander of military police unit in the Philippines. When he got off the boat returning from Manila, he learned that his father had died in Saratoga. He went back to Saratoga and he and Aileen ultimately settled there living for a couple of years with his mother at 105 W. Circular St. In 1949 they bought the house at 17 Ritchie Place where they reside today (May 2003). They paid about $8,000 for the home in 1949. He was very active in the National Guard, commanding Co. "L" in Saratoga for about 10 years. He also worked for Prudential Insurance in Saratoga.

My earliest memories of my grandfather are going to visit him in Saratoga before my family ultimately moved there. When I was very little he would set up a tent in the back yard and we would "camp out". I don't remember if we actually slept out there over night (probably not), but I remember being excited about being in the tent. I also remember him taking me to the Armory in Saratoga. He took me to the gymnasium where I would play with the basketballs. Before my family moved to Saratoga, I loved to visit there. When I was very young grandpa would walk me across Lake Avenue to take me to the "Rec". It was the recreation field with play grounds, ball fields, etc. Every evening in the summer Grasso's Italian Ice truck would park in front of the Rec entrance, within sight of my grandfather's porch. We would get a nickel or a quarter (whatever it was at the time) and go get ourselves some Italian ice. It was great!

When my family moved to Saratoga, Grandpa became my math tutor. Almost every day after school I would go to his house on Ritchie Place and he would help me with my math homework. He taught me an important lesson that I tried to remember all through school and college: "RTDQ"... Read The Damn Question. My math tutoring was a success and I scored very well on my final math exams every year. Eventually I went on to become an engineer, thanks in part to my grandfather's guidance and patience.

Grandpa is always telling stories. My favorites are those about when he was growing up in Saratoga. In 1999 I sent him a tape recorder and asked him to record some of the stories so I could put them on paper for my kids. Many of the stories are presented below along with a couple of newspaper articles. Some stories that were not included on the tapes were those of when he was young growing up in Saratoga. I remember him telling me about when he sold newspapers on the corner of Union Ave. and East Ave. in front of the thoroughbred race track in August. Another story told about how his father worked for the railroad and the tracks ran very close to his house neat the intersection of Beekman Street and West Circular. Every Christmas, the trains would come down from the mountains in the north loaded with Christmas trees. Some of his father's buddies on the railroad would purposely let loose a car load of trees for their Saratoga friends. Every year they would walk down the street near the tracks and pick out their Christmas tree.

Another story that wasn't on the tapes but has been told many times is "Antogones Recapitulates Felogonies" (Translated: The History of Man Repeats Itself) The story goes that when my mother Ann was growing up, my grandfather would repeat this phrase often. My mother knew it well. One day in school, her religion teacher announced that if anyone in the class could tell him what "Antogones Recapitulates Felogonies" meant, they wouldn't have to take the final exam. Well… my mom didn't have to take the final!

The following are stories and articles told by or about Frank P. Izzo:

One Equals Two

I want to tell you how I got a high school teacher to almost want to commit suicide and quit the teaching business. He was our math teacher. Oh - he had one of these gold pins for academic achievement and he was so damned smart. When I was going to be a sophomore I went in and I had to check with him to take mathematics. I thought I was going to be an engineer! He looked at my freshman mathematics record and he said "no - you can't do this". He picked his students and did real well by doing that. He didn't have a bad record. I said "well I'm going to be an engineer and I'm going to take that course." "Alright…" he said "it's your funeral".

Now four years go by and he said "you're going to graduate… what do you want to do and what did you like about your math class?"" "Well" I said "I've just figured one thing… that I've learned from you that I could make one equal two. And here is what I showed him that day in this book: Ann reading from the book "One times zero equals zero, two times zero equals zero, therefore things equal to each other are equal to themselves." Grandpa: So one equals two… and he quit teaching school. His name was Claude Van Wee… and he's the guy that was in charge of building your building and you can tell this story to anyone you want to.

I went in to see him one time. I had something to do with the armory and we were having a little trouble with school contract regarding the kids playing in the armory. And I went in to talk to him about it. And anyway, he told me that "the engineers made a great mistake when they built this school building" He says "they went around, laid the brick and by golly when they got around they didn't meet the other brick from the other way, and he was the Principal! Of course he didn't have much to do with the engineering. We became pretty good friends after that.

When the Circus came to Saratoga

Across the street from our house the whole circus was unloaded and would walk up to the circus grounds. On South Broadway where Topper Buick is today is where the circus grounds were. It was an open field at the time. We used to go over there to watch fireworks.

Everything came by railroad. All the new cars came by train and unloaded out in front. They had special lumber to hold the cars so they be wouldn't banging around when the trains were moving. So it was a very nice corner to grow up on. They unloaded vegetables, automobiles, circuses…

Mass The Battalion ("The Turning Point of My Life")

I had a friend who went there [Michigan State], he wanted to be a hotel manager. He liked it so well out there, and we were very good friends. The next thing I know he bought me a subscription to the college newspaper. It was very inexpensive, even for out-of-staters. It was about $35 per quarter. When I left Saratoga, my father got me a pass on the railroad, he was working on the railroad, and I started all by myself to Michigan. I had some money left over – I had a friend from Saratoga, well two friends, one was Jim Roohan. I met a fella from Saratoga, Bob McMillan, he was a sophomore or junior there. He met me on the street one day in Saratoga… I barley knew him. I knew him a little bit in high school but he was older. He said "I hear you're going to Michigan State". I said "Yeah". "Well" he said "look it, do you know anybody out there?" "Yeah I know one guy", he said, "Well I live in a nice place, if you're looking for a place to stay that's inexpensive, how would you like to be my roommate?" Wow, I grabbed that, I liked him, I knew him, he was older but he was from Saratoga. He was a varsity basketball player and well liked. He was in his freshman year when I saw him on the street. He was a year ahead of me in high school and we knew each other… He was a turning point in my life, for number one he was a gentleman, number two he was smart, he was serious…

My major was a general thing called business administration. Here is the turning point: … adding up all the reasons I went to Michigan state, [one reason I went was because] they had an ROTC program. All males had to take it for at least two years. That was the idea that the state colleges… they got federal money if they would have a military program. Well I signed up for that. Bob McMillan was a year ahead of me and he was my roommate. And I thought after two years I could qualify for the advanced course and wind up to be a second Lieutenant. The war wasn't on yet. So I signed up for ROTC… had to… and Bob was my roommate. For two years, now the war clouds are forming, and I'm beginning to like school and I'm in the ROTC Coast Artillery. And thereby hangs a tale.

Now two years go by in the Coast Artillery and they're going to pick the juniors. If you didn't get picked to be a junior, you weren't going to get a reserve commission. You were all done. They were only going to pick 50 guys, out of our school… 50. And I didn't make it.

This one particular afternoon changed my life. They had 50 guys on the bulletin board that morning that had qualified for the Senior ROTC program for the next two years. Now the war is starting, World War II. And they were posted on the board, 50 boys… and my name was not on it. I was devastated. So I went home to tell Bob. What could he do? Nothing… Nothing! But when he was studying he always tried a lot of things out on me. Mathematics [for example]: when he learned something, he'd tell me what he was learning and then he'd say "tell me what I said"… that sort of thing.

So he said "You know my assignment tomorrow… I want you to listen to me now, tomorrow in ROTC…" (He was in advanced, he passed and was going on to get his commission)" …Our assignment for tomorrow is to mass the battalion." Now when you're massing a battalion you have about 800 guys, 200 here, 200 here. He told me that he wanted me to help him study. So he went through all the commands and drew some pictures about what his assignment was. He went through that and he said "Now tell me what I just said". He gave me the commands and everything. And I did.

The next morning, we are winding up the year – oh geez – it was a big bunch of people scattered all over the yard. So the Captain in charge of the class chooses one of the Junior boys – they had different uniforms – and the Captain says "all right… Mass The Battalion!" We were scattered all over. So this boy swallowed a couple of times and says "I'm sorry sir but I didn't get a chance to study my assignment." Here is another guy and the Captain called him and he couldn't do it. At this point, all us peasants waiting to be told where to go were all laughing because these big shots with fancy uniforms, they were the big guns and they didn't know what the hell they were talking about. Well… the guy in charge is losing control and he didn't like it. And he called everybody to attention and now he is going to give us all hell for talking and laughing.

All of us all at attention, I'm in the front line. He says "which one of you wise guys that are laughing thinks you can mass the battalion. And I think holy geez I can. I know damn well in my heart I can do it. I can just see my roommate Bob telling me, drawing on a piece of paper, telling me the order to do. And I wasn't a greenhorn, I played in the drum corps for years in Saratoga. I knew something about marching, a little bit anyway. So I put my hand up and then I thought oh I'm not going to be a wise guy… I get my arm down to here [halfway], and he looks and sees my hand and didn't know my name… "OK – YOU!, Come Out Here… let's see YOU mass the battalion!" He thought he was going to give us a lesson about being a wise guy. Well, I did what Bob McMillan told me to do the night before. Jesus, I looked around and here there are squared off in one nice mass… mass of humanity, squared off nice. The captain, he looked at me and he says "can you get 'em out of that now?" and I said "Yes Sir, Yes Sir... First Company stand fast, Second Company half right"... Bing bing, the next thing you know they're scattered all over hell but they're in a nice orderly manner. "Ok" he said "very good".

Now the next day, I go in, I had to go, I had to get credit for it. And I'm looking at the guys that had made it, all in a line. The First Sergeant comes in. He knew me of course after two years. "Izzo" he said "you is one lucky boy." And I said "what do you mean Sarge?" He said you're number 51. And that's how I made it. Otherwise I would have been drafted. When I graduated we went to camp McCoy, Wisconsin. That's the end of the story – and here I am. [At the end of the story my cousin Christine Harwood says "I've got you on tape – it is immortalized now – we'll play it for all of our grandchildren].

"You Don't Have a Slide Rule!?"

Now just before graduation the scene shifts to the end of our senior year. And this Colonel, he has a class. He's been at Corregidor and all through that mess over there. He gave us a problem, and the next day he says "if anybody can't do this come in to my office after 4:00, I'd like to go over it with you". So I went in! I figured hell I better go see him, I don't know what they're talking about. And he said "All right, that's no problem, let me have your slide rule." I said "I don't have a slide rule". He looked at me and he said "You don't have a slide rule?! What the hell kind of engineer are you?" I said "I'm not an engineer". He said "What are you?" I said "I'm a business administration student"

He said "I don't understand how the hell you stayed in this course for four years, not being an engineer", that's all we talked about, in coast artillery there's a lot of surveying and angles and oh a lot of stuff, a lot of figuring to do.

... He told us all about Corregidor, and the day came a long time later and I stood on Corregidor. I graduated in '43, this happened in '42, oh probably 1945 was when I was in Corregidor. So if it hadn't been for Bob [Mass the Battalion story above], God only knows.

Jim Roohan

Jim Roohan – I've told you about him – We went to high school together. He's the guy that got me to go to Michigan State. Christmas Eve - At Christmas time, I knew the name of his ship... I sent him a Christmas card – and you had to put your return address on it. I was in Manila.

We went to high school together and there was a saloon in town were a girl would sing bawdy songs. One of the songs was "Stick Out Your Can – Here Comes the Garbage Man." And of course we all knew that saloon – all the young boys in Saratoga – we would go have a beer and go home.

So I mailed him the Christmas card with my return address on it in Manila. And on Christmas Eve I hear this old broken down jeep coming down the road and I'm thinking "Oh my God – what happened to that Jeep?" And then I heard somebody on the stairway – I was on the second floor – and he's singing "Stick Out Your Can..." What a night we had. He said – "You got to do me a favor" – I was in the military police. He says – "Can you give me a jeep?" I said "How the hell am I going to give you a jeep?" He said "We've only got one jeep on the ship and every time the ship docks the captain of the ship takes the jeep!"

"Irey... William J."

Now the years go by and we get time to come home and get out of the army they sent us to camp McCoy, Wisconsin. They said "Answer here when you hear your name is called and come to the desk and sign." When we signed up in Detroit for the army they called the same thing: "Answer here when you hear your name is called and come to the desk and sign." The first name out of the box was "Irey... William J." HOLY COW! The same guy that was called before me in Detroit the day we were sworn in. Then we walked around Chicago for the day. He gave me a bundle of money, $400, he said I'm not going home, take this money – I'm afraid I'll lose it. He gave me his address and I mailed the money to him after I got home and never heard from him again. That's the end of the story.

Henry Hipp

When I was in the Army and in college I met a fella' whose name was Henry Hipp, and we went into the Army together. "H & I" I was with him all the time... names were alphabetical. Oh – when I would reminisce about the Army your mother and Ann would hear stories and hear "Henry Hipp did this and Henry Hipp did that"... so they got to know him by name. One day I was in the office, this is ten, fifteen years later, and the telephone rings. Your mother [Margaret Izzo – he was relating the story to Christine Harwood] has now got a job in the Holliday Inn. She called me in the office. She says "Dad! You used to know a fella' named Henry Hipp." I said "Yes". She said we've got someone named Henry Hipp at the motel!" Boy... I went down there and he wasn't there.. I put a note under the door saying "If you're the Henry Hipp I know..." and signed my name. The next thing you know we're getting together and he got his wife. She was in Buffalo. We went to dinner that night. It was very nice.

IZZO PROMOTED, NEW SPA GUARD COMMANDER NAMED

Capt. Frank P. Izzo, commanding officer of the local guard unit for the last 10 years, has been appointed assistant division quartermaster supply officer with headquarters in Albany. He will retain residence in Saratoga Springs where he is in the insurance business...

... Captain Izzo has been in military service for the last 17 years since his original commission from ROTC, Michigan State University, in 1943. During the succeeding two years he served at anti aircraft artillery training posts and after a period in the infantry went to the Philippines where he served in 1945 and 1946 with the Military Police. He was separated from active service and transferred to the reserve at Camp McCoy, Wis. In 1946, being recalled as a platoon leader in Co. L., 105th Inf., this city in April 1949. The following year, also in April, he took over the company from Capt. William J. Murray. His promotion to the rank of captain followed in April, 1952...

MAJOR IZZO GETS ARMY CITATION
The Saratogian, Saturday, August 28, 1968

"Camp Drum – Major Frank P. Izzo, 45, 17 Ritchie Place, Saratoga Springs, assistant supply officer for the 27th Armored Division, who has been on active duty training here, was awarded the enviable U.S. Quartermaster School Commandant's Award Wednesday at brief ceremonies.

Major Izzo, former commander of the local National Guard units, is the first of only two men who are in line for the award, presented by the commandant of the quartermaster school, located at Fort Lee, Va. The award follows 439 hours (almost six years) of study and correspondence. The end result was that Major Izzo attained the highest grade average of all the non-resident students. The program completed by Major Izzo is available on a national level to military personnel.

Reflects Credit

Major Izzo was cited by Major General A. C. O'Hara, chief of staff to the governor, who commented: "Major Izzo's efforts produced... exemplary results which reflect credit upon him and the entire New York Army National Guard," which General O'Hara commands. Maj. General Collin P. Williams, 27th Division commander, stated, "Too often personal sacrifices to obtain military education are overlooked," but not so in the case of Major Izzo. Receiving the award indicates "conscientious, consistent and self-sacrificing efforts," the award noted.

Major Izzo, who commanded Companies "L" and "B" (now Company "A") of Saratoga Springs for 10 years, is married to the former Aileen Zickgraf of Michigan. A veteran of World War 2, serving in the Philippine Theater as a commander of a military police unit, he is the father of two girls and a boy.

In Army 22 years

As a civilian, Izzo, an Army man for 22 years, is a local sales representative for Prudential Insurance Co. The award was presented by Colonel Murray Kitt, Division Support Command commanding officer, witnessed by Lt. Colonel George Saddlemire, 27th Supply and Transport Battalion commander. Major Izzo returned home today along with the local unit, completing its annual two-week active duty field training period. The local company arrived in Saratoga Springs about midnight.

The Garage and the Gambling Equipment

The day came when Doc Farone did something wrong. He was the local gangster in town. Everybody's friend, nicest guy but he played on the edge of the law and he wound up in jail in Ballston Spa. He owned a lot of property. Not only did he own it, he owed a lot of taxes on the property. At the time the city was squeezing people for their money and they were going to sell the property if you didn't pay your taxes.

Doc Farone was in jail for something. And in the paper I guess it said that at the corner of West Circular and Beekman where our house was, there was a garage and land for sale for non payment of taxes. Well Andrew Iorio saw this too. He went up and bought the property for taxes. But in the tax law it says I guess that the owner has so much time to pay and reclaim his property within this time limit. So this one day, my father and Andy Iario and Paul Spinnelli (they met every night and smoked those Italian cigars which they weren't allowed to smoke in their houses by their wives). Andrew Iorio came along that night (they met every night there) and he said "I own a half a-Beek-a-man-a street-a". From the corner down to my Uncle Joe's house was half way on Beekman Street. My father had a fit. He (Andy) had paid the taxes and he figured he owned the property. Boy they were upset about that, my mother and father. So Uncle Tony goes down to the jail and he said "what did you let that happen for" to Doc Farone who was a good friend of his. And he (Uncle Tony) said "my nephew will give you $1,000 for that corner." There was a big garage and lot, so I don't know how much the taxes were, but is was a good deal for Doc Farone. So he sold the lot to my brother for $1,000 and paid the taxes and Andy lost it. My brother now owned the garage and the property. This is when I came home from the army from overseas.

Now he's got the garage and he's got the property and he goes to bring $1,000 to Doc Farone. Doc Farone says "Hey... I got some gambling equipment in the back of the garage. Keep it there and I'll give you $50 a year" or month or something like that. There was gambling cloth for craps tables and all kinds of equipment. When I came home from the army, there it was. So every once and a while, my brother would go down to Doc Farone's place on Putman street and Doc Farone paid him $10 or $15 a month for the rent because my brother's got that stuff in the garage that he now owns. So he got the money and I think maybe 10 or 15 years later, my brother went down to get the rent for the stuff and Doc was in the shop and Doc said "is that stuff still there?" And he (Bill) said "yeah". Doc said "Oh jeez" and the next day he took it all out. So Bill got all his money back and then some. And in there were old alcohol cans and uh…

Just go back one minute on the alcohol cans. When I was in the drum corps in high school, they wanted to have a parade on Halloween. The fella who was in charge of the drum corps, he was leery about having it on Halloween. He didn't want the drums to be out in the crowds with the kids… something would happen to the drums. So we said, well if we had these big alcohol cans (they're 5 gallon cans… nice cans) and I went to see Doc Farone and I got enough of those so we wouldn't have to take our drums out. We marched down Broadway beating on the alcohol cans. Only in Saratoga you could do that! I had a rope around my neck beating on the can. It was the silliest thing.

Now his friends in jail. He's trying to get bail to get him out of jail… Sonny Pompeii. And Doc Farone has a brother going to law school somewhere. So he's going to help get Sonny out of jail. The day comes and all my Uncle Tony's friends and including Uncle Tony and Doc Farone's friends go to court where they are going to decide what happens to this guy. Trying to get out on bail… anyway. The judge says to Doc Farone's brother… "And what does counsel think would be a fair bond to let this man out?" And Frenchy says (that's Doc Farone's brother) "Well I heard it was going to be $5,000". The newspaper people were there and everyone else in town. He said the judge looked and said "You HEARD it was going to be $5,000?... Who'd you hear it from?... You didn't hear it from me!" Now the judge is on the spot right? BANG – No bail – back goes the guy to jail…. Only in Saratoga!

LEO H. HEALY (Section IV, #18) b. abt 1894

When my grandparents Austin and Eileen Titus moved from their home on Renwick Avenue in Huntington, New York, their children and grandchildren pitched in to help them move out. While going through some old boxes in a closet upstairs in the bedroom over the garage, I found a very old scrapbook. It contained numerous newspaper articles, photographs, letters and documents dating between the 1850s and the 1940's. It was a compilation of the events and achievements of my grandmother's father Leo Healy and his family. For someone interested in family history (that's me) it was a gold mine!!

Over the last 8 or 9 years, I picked it up on occasion to gather bits and pieces of family history. It recently dawned on me that the entire scrapbook was a family history already put together for me. Unfortunately, it was in very bad shape. It was falling apart. It was something that should be shared by all of my family members, but it was too fragile to handle. I decided to recompile the scrapbook electronically so I could print it and send copies to anyone that would be interested in seeing all of this great stuff.

I picked through all of the articles and pictures and chose the most interesting things to incorporate into this new "Healy Family Scrapbook". Photographs and articles were scanned and embedded electronically into this document. In addition, I retyped several of the articles to make it easier for the reader. At the end of this book I have included genealogical records of the Healy family. Among all of the things I found, my favorite item was a letter in an envelope addressed "to the children and grandchildren of Leo Healy" written by Miss Mary J. Ryan Gentile, Leo Healy's cousin. The letter is dated May 21, 1969, 9 Irving Street, Worcester, MA.. and is transcribed below:

"To the children and grandchildren of Leo Healy who was the brother of Gertrude Healy, 115 Wynsum Ave., Merrick, Long Island, NY.

Dear progeny of my illustrious first cousin, Leo Healy, and who have been the comfort and delight of Gertrude Healy since Leo's death. I am a first cousin of Gertrude Healy. My mother Elizabeth A. Higgins was the sister of Nellie Higgins Healy. I am a retired school teacher since 1966. In my baby-hood, I was nurtured by the Healy's until my mother recovered her health. In my girl-hood the Healy's were my pals, my family, my pride. Each in his own way. Your grandmother was Aunt Nellie who was the delight of the whole family. She used to just look a certain way, facial expression, and sparkling eyes, behind Fr. Frank's or Gert's or Clara's backs while they were counseling me, so that I was supposed to keep a straight face toward them, and know that she wanted me to be happy.

The first Healy to make us proud was father Frank. He was tall and thin, and so intellectual, yet human and jolly! Clara was the hard working, far-sighted, ambitious sister who urged them (her brothers, sister and me) to hitch our wagon to a star which we did, and to put Worcester behind us, in our early careers, which they did and I didn't to my regret. (I have a snap shot (color) of Clara holding Leo's 2 girls).

Gert was sweet, pretty, quiet, intellectual and her mother's bulwark, and later companion & nurse. She sang like a bird. Gert and I have exchanged notes over the years and just today, as I went searching in my desk for a mass card to send to you, I came across an Infant of Prague card that Gertrude had enclosed in her 1967 Christmas greeting. What do you think of this coincidence? Two hours ago, at 2:45 p.m., I had begun a novena to the Infant (9 hrs. for a consecutive day) asking for guidance to my son-in-law Robert L. Shepard, who is about to make a critical decision in his N.E. Tel. & Tel. executive position.

Your father, as a boy, was a "devil". He played pranks and was nosy and bursting with health & energy and original ideas. In high school, he bought fame to Worcester, Mass because of his debating ability and the city, state, and national, and international honors and awards.

You would be glad to hear some of his exploits over and above his scholastic accomplishments while a student at Holy Cross college. Prizes, high honors, as easily as he could snap his fingers. He never was seen by us, studying. He excelled - got 100% all the time.

He shocked the citizens on Main St. because he strode through and above them, with a big fat cigar in his mouth - smoked it! no less. He probably was 18 yrs. old. I remember (we then lived in a 5 room tenement on Belmont St.) that every Sunday my mother always whipped up 2 extra cream pies because Leo and his troupe of hungry, noisy, gorgeous hunks of male animals would burst in, swing my mother around in a dance, everyone roaring with laughter at the jokes told, the teasing of "Aunt Liz". My sister Blanche would play the piano, Ma played a banjo and for one hour the rafters rang. the boys were stuffed with sandwiches, and cream pies. I know that there were other stops where FOOD was available and FREE before Leo and his buddies (often 15 or 16) would disperse, and as far as innocent babes in the woods like me knew, go home to bed. Hm! Hm!

One of the treasures that we unearthed, (after my mother died at the age of 86) in an ancient round top trunk bound with tin, in the cellar of our family home at 130 Elm St., was a golden curl of Joseph Higgins' baby-hood, and the newspaper articles about Leo's H.S. and college life in Worc.

Gert is the last Healy to be buried in the Healy lot in the original catholic cemetery in Shrewsbury. I shall visit this grave as I always do when I'm in Worcester and place flowers on it for Gert and the others. Gert used to know that I did it for her when she could not get there herself. My grandparents (Higgins) are buried there too. The J. J. Higgins family lot is still awaiting Grace Higgins of Worc., her brothers Jim of Newton, Tom of Syracuse, Joe of N.Y.C.. But my grandfather's lot is not available because of the widening of the roadways.

Did any of you accompany Gert's last ride back home? If you did, I'm sure the little cemetery impressed you. The large cross for a Fr. Power and 8 small graves in a row - to the right of the drive-way are the resting places of the first Catholic priest in Worc. and the 8 nuns who gave up their lives when they bought a 3 decker on Green & Temple streets, converted it into the 1st hospital in Worcester for the nursing of scarlet fever. All eight caught the germ and died. One of these nuns was my mother's sister, your father's aunt and your Grandmother Healy's sister. Now-a-days, all Catholics have to be buried in St. John's cemetery near Canterbury St., so we are proud of our family ancestry among the original Irish that settled in Worcester.

Your Grandmother Healy was born on Shrewsbury St. in a cottage with rolling lawns and fruit trees. Her father and all her brothers were rail-road men - went high in positions. One of your grand uncles was the engineer and conductor on the first R. R. between Worcester and Boston.

Your Healy ancestors are buried with Gertrude. Your grandfather Healy was Uncle "Jerry" or "Jar" to me. A large impeccably attired man with a deep rumbling voice and a gold chain across his vest with a big solid gold watch which kept accurate R. R. time. (Hamilton) I have the one that your grand-uncle Jim Higgins used from the time he was employed @ 16 years of age by Boston & Maine R. R. and worked until he was 85 as a switch-train-man. His eyes had to be examined every 12 months and he would have been asked to resign if he had needed glasses. This was in the days when human eyes had the responsibility of lives on the trains. Before electric switching and radar, etc. Be proud and knowledgeable of your Higgins and Healy ancestry.

Love, Mary J. Ryan Gentile"

In the spring of 1912, Leo Healy won an international declaiming championship in Boston, MA. He defeated a man from Germany in a debating contest in Fanueil Hall. This victory brought fame to Leo Healy while he was still in high school. As you will see in several of the articles below, the title of World Champion Declaimer is mentioned prominently when Leo Healy is introduced. From the articles and letters, this event no doubt had a significant impact on his life and future career. The following are letters and newspaper articles that trace his career.

Letter to Leo H. Healy from John E. Goggin, Sec. and Treas. of United Optical Co. Mar. 16th 1912

My Dear Leo:

I presume that you have been congratulated to death for the past few days, but my feelings would not permit me to refrain from offering mine. Your victory is a great credit to yourself, your parents and your college. I have watched you with great interest and I am proud of my young neighbor.

I hope that you will continue to pile up honors for yourself and your parents, and I hope to see you personally one of these days so that I can grasp your hand and say, "Well done, young man".

Sincerely Yours, John E. Goggin

FATHER DINAND GIVES DINNER TO LEO H. HEALY

Leo H. Healy, '15, of Holy Cross college was tendered a buffet lunch this afternoon at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Joseph N. Dinand, S. J. president of the college. All the members of the freshman class were the guests at the luncheon. One member from each division of the class has been chosen to speak in Fenwick hall after the lunch. James A. Deery of Worcester will represent section A and will speak on "Fellowship." Francis R. Kent of Worcester, who is the speaker from section B., will talk on "Healy's success as a declaimer." Thomas A. Quirk of Milford, from section C, will speak a few words on "Healy's recent victory." Charles I. McDonald of Portland, Ore. Will be the speaker from section D, and has chosen the "Art of oratory" for his subject.

TRIBUTE TO HEALY

... Toastmaster McCauley paid a glowing tribute to Leo H. Healy of Worcester, Mass., in introducing him. Mr. Healy made and instantaneous hit with the ladies when said that he was in favor of woman suffrage and therefore felt out of place in New Jersey after the last election. He delivered a masterly address on the subject of "Civic Pride" and the hall vibrated with his eloquence. He said America owed a debt which it could never repay to its hyphenated citizens, regardless of the land of their birth. They had assumed the lion's share in the making of the history of this country...

WORCESTER BOY TO TAKE STUMP FOR PRESIDENT WILSON (Summer, 1916)

Leo H. Healy, Worcester boy and a former Holy Cross student, who a few years back won the championship of the United States in declaiming contests, is going on the stump for President Woodrow Wilson. He will tour the state of Maine the latter part of the month with other speakers listed by the Democratic national committee. Mr. Healy arrived in Worcester this morning from New York where he recently began the practice of law and will spend a short vacation with his parents in Oxford Center, at the same time preparing for the Maine campaign. Mr. Healy hasn't been given a complete itinerary of his campaigning during the political season, but he is listed for work from now on until election time, in Nov.. It is probable that he will be detailed for work in the eastern states, with a possibility that he might be sent to the middle west. He recently took the New York state bar examinations, passing the first test and is awaiting to learn of the final test, the examinations for admission in New York state being divided into two tests. He graduated from Fordham in June.

WORCESTER BOY IN POLITICS

Leo H. Healy, Holy Cross '10 ['15] Manages Successful New York Campaign – Was Prize Debater

Another Worcester boy has been added to the list of men who are figuring prominently in politics in New York. He is Leo H. Healy, who managed the recent campaign of Supreme Court Justice –elect William F. Hagarty in New York city.

Mr. Healy was graduated from Holy Cross College in 1910 [1915] with the highest honors. He is remembered in Worcester as a holder of the championship in High school declamation contests. He defeated, May 10, 1911 in Boston, Carl Guggenheim of Germany for the championship of the world which he held for one year. He attended Fordham law school and was the valedictorian of his class. He was graduated from there, since which time he has been a practicing attorney of New York's Supreme court.

Over Fifteen Hundred at the Union Hill Gathering Where Healy Denounces Socialism and Rev. Father Field Makes Splendid Patriotic Plea – Congressman Suggests Firing Squad for Enemies to Bond Issue – The Weather Conditions Interfere With West Hoboken Parade

Fiercely denouncing Morris Hillquit, candidate for Mayor of New York, for his recent announcement that he would not buy a Liberty Bond, Leo Healy, the silver-tongued orator, thrilled his big audience at the Union Hill High School last night when he told them that the time has come to tear down "the red flag of the seditious Socialists" and run up the American flag.

"The patriotism of 1776 was a burning flame. The patriotism of 1917 is a smoldering and slumbering flame. I implore you to fan that flame into a blaze of energy and spirit. The question before us today is not how much interest will we get for our money? That is not the characteristic of the American race. This is the characteristic of the men who stand on the street corners of New York and preach and practice sedition, at the same time waving their red flag of sedition."

"The greatest inspiration we can get to buy Liberty Bonds is the picture of Morris Hillquit, candidate for Mayor of New York, announcing that he would not buy a bond. The time has come when we must all join and subscribe together as a reply to Hillquit and his gang that we will tear down all the seditious rags, whether they stand for Irish freedom, or English freedom, or German freedom and run up the flag of American freedom."

Not Close To War

"There is only one reason for the apathy of the American people in this war," he continued. "We are not close enough to the war. We need to be inspired. If the war was in our front yards we would gladly give out all to help the men who are so gloriously sacrificing their lives to defend us. I appeal to you, men of New Jersey, not only to reach your maximum, but to double it. It would be a greater defeat for America to lose in the Liberty Loan than if the Germans occupied Paris."

Over 1,500 men, women and children crowded into the auditorium of the Union Hill High School, heard these stirring words and cheered the young orator. It was one of the largest audiences the auditorium has seen in many months. Both the orchestra and the balcony were filled and many were compelled to stand.

ALBANY HEIGHTS WAR HEROES HONORED BY HOMES IN DISTRICT

Have Dinner Followed by Parade and Reception at Commercial High School (April, 1919)

"Let us follow these boys as they tore down that rag over in Europe; let us here tear it down, whether it stands for internationalism, materialism, Socialism, Bolshevism, or any other kind of 'ism', and in its place run up the flag of Americanism," declared Leo Healy last evening during an address at the welcome-home celebration of the Albany heights Patriotic League, which was held in the Commercial High School. That the more than 500 persons fully agreed with these sentiments was evident from the volume of applause that followed their utterance by the speaker.

"The lesson taught us," he continued, "is what real true Americanism really means – respect for authority. That is the one reason why these boys were successful in their fight with the Huns, and it is a lack of respect for authority that is the curse of America. There is a small element in this country that can see no reason why these boys should be proclaimed as heroes, or why we should gather here this evening to pay them homage. It is that same element that they crushed under foot overseas, and which we must crush here in America, the element that is plying its wares under the cloak of patriotism."

Preceding the exercises in the school more than seventy of the returned heroes of the district were the guests of the league at an informal dinner held in the Ormonde. Following this, the more than 200 members that were present formed a parade at the corner of Nostrand Ave. and Herkimer St. and marched through the streets of the district to the school. Capt. Arthur B. McDermott, Headquarters Co. of the 106th Regt., was grand marshal of the parade, which was led by the Boys Band of sixty-five pieces of St. John's Home.

Although many of the residents along the line of march were not aware of this part of the welcome home ceremonies, they nevertheless illuminated their homes and crowded the windows when they heard the martial airs and were acquainted with what was taking place. It was one continuous round of applause that greeted the heroes when they appeared. The women members of the league who were in line all wore large white silk sashes with the inscription upon them "Albany heights Patriotic League, Welcome Home."

DEFIES KU-KLUX KLAN TO STAND UP AND BE COUNTED

Leo H. Healy Challenges Order to Subscribe to Same Loyalty Oath as K. of C.

Leo H. Healy, chairman of the State Speakers Committee, issued a defiant challenge to the members of the Ku-Klux Klan to stand up and be counted and to subscribe to the same oath as that taken by the members of the Knights of Columbus of loyalty to this Government, during the course of an address on "Loyalty," delivered at the 25th anniversary dinner of the Marquette Council, No. 288, K. of C., at the Imperial, Red Hook lane and Fulton St., last evening.

The speaker said that the marauding night riders in white gowns upon which is emblazoned a cross should stop and contemplate for a moment the fact that the cross was a symbol which Columbus held in his hand aloft when he first set foot on the soil of North America. Further, that the Rev. Oscar Haywood and other Klan organizers should listen to the words of Chief Justice William H. Taft of the United States Supreme Court before maligning Catholics and members of the Knights of Columbus. Justice Taft said: "A man who is loyal to his church must be loyal to his country."

"I would ask those who would malign the Knights of Columbus to look back but four years and who joined us then in our appeal that we must stand together. There were no questions asked then of whether a man was a Protestant or Catholic, Jew or Gentile, black or white. We all stood a united nation for America and America only."

Condemning "any organization that prostitutes the fundamental principles of our grand nation to self-aggrandizement," Mr. Healy said: "I say to you, Ku-Klux Klan, you are a more dangerous menace to the American Government than the most vicious Socialist. We of the Knights of Columbus will not cease our activities against you and remain silent when you preach bigotry and prejudice throughout our nation. We tell you that every star in the flag that you carry to further your work is lit by the flame of Catholic courage and patriotism and that every stripe is reddened by the lifeblood of thousands of Catholic heroes and we Knights hold it untarnished and unsullied."

"Those Catholic heroes died to make the world safe for democracy behind that flag and we Knights of Columbus today will fight behind it, if necessary, to keep America safe for democracy. Let loyalty be the watchword of life today, loyalty to our country, our church, our homes and our families. We are loyal to the principles we profess as Catholic gentlemen but we realize that one failure in our human life today is a refusal or neglect to live out in practice that which we profess in theory."

"We ask for truth and equity in thought, and that bigotry, prejudice and un-American insults to our country cease at once. Rip from your head the mask and let us see what kind of Americans you are. Stand up and be counted. Join us in our pledge of loyalty and realize that there is but one flag. We told the Socialists that it was not made of red, the blue law advocates that it was not made of blue, and we tell you Knights of Midnight that it is not made of white, but red, white and blue bound together. If you are Americans I challenge you to accept our pledge that it is your flag and our flag."

HEALY NAMED ASST. ATTORNEY

Leo Healy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah [F.] Healy of Brooklyn and until recently of Worcester, has been appointed an assistant district attorney in Brooklyn. Mr. Healy is a graduate of Holy Cross College. He is 28 years old and is one of the youngest men ever named assistant district attorney in Brooklyn.

HOLY CROSS GRAD. AND OLD TIME WORCESTER MAN IS HONORED AT NEW YORK

Leo Healy, Appointed Assistant District Attorney of Long Island City, Is the Youngest Man Ever to Hold That Office – Was Prominent as a Debater in College Days, Winning National Declamation Contest

Leo Healy, formerly of Worcester and a graduate of Holy Cross College, has been appointed an assistant district attorney in Brooklyn, according to word received in Worcester. The appointment, naming the Worcester man one of four assistants, was made by District Attorney Charles J. Dodd of Brooklyn.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Healy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah [F.] Healy, who recently moved from Worcester to live with him in Brooklyn. A brother, Rev. Francis J. Healy recently was made pastor of the Catholic Church of Garden City, L.I. A sister, Miss Clara Healy, formerly a teacher at the Sever-street school, has been made assistant supervisor of music for the public schools of Brooklyn. A second sister, Miss Gertrude Healy, is now teaching in a Brooklyn School. Mr. Healy is also a cousin of Joe Higgins, who earned country-wide fame as a sprinter while at Holy Cross College. The family has many relatives and a host of friends in Worcester.

Mr. Healy , who is only 28 years old, is one of the youngest men ever to be named assistant district attorney in Brooklyn, according to relatives. After he graduated from Holy Cross College he took a law course at Fordham and was admitted to the New York bar shortly after being graduated.

While a student at Classical High School, he was prominent as a debater, and later won a national declamation contest held at Boston. In a world's champion declamation contest sponsored by colleges all over the world, the Worcester man won from a German student. The judges were professors from Holy Cross College, Boston College, Yale, Harvard and other universities.

Mr. Healy was prominent in New York politics at the time of the Wilson presidential campaign, managing speaking tours throughout the state. More recently he managed the campaign for William F. Haggerty for the Supreme Court in New York. Mr. Healy is a member of the Elks, Cathedral club, Columbus Council, K. C., St. Patrick society and the Lion's club.

HEALY GETS MOOSE GAVEL TO-MORROW
Assistant District Attorney Will Be Inducted Into His Office at Exercises at Academy
New York American – Sunday, April 26, 1923

A public installation of the officers of Brooklyn Lodge, No. 14 Loyal Order of Moose will be held to-morrow night in the Academy of Music, Lafayette avenue and Ashland place. Assistant District Attorney Leo H. Healy will be installed as Dictator. He pledges ten thousand members for Brooklyn during the year.

Many prominent city and county officials will speak at the exercises, scheduled to begin at 8 p. m. The prize winning Brooklyn Moose Band, under the direction of Professor Frand E. Houts will give a programme of popular selections.

The Loyal Order of Moose has been established since the year 1888 and has been established in the Borough of Brooklyn for the past sixteen years. The Moose claims to have been the first lodge to offer men of good character in all walks of life, a common plane of brotherhood and mutual aid without the necessity of buying insurance outside the fraternal usage. Neither is it necessary that wealth or education be a recommendation for membership. All men are alike in the Moose lodge, men of wealth, join hands with those of modest means and those in high positions mingle with those in the more humble walks of life. The qualifications to become a member is that of character. The Moose is not a religious or political order as it embraces men of every creed and political belief.

TESTIMONIAL TO BE GIVEN LEO H. HEALY
Moose Order to Honor Retiring Dictator at Dinner Next Sunday
One of the largest testimonial dinners ever held in Brooklyn will be tendered by Brooklyn Lodge, 14, Loyal Order of Moose, to its retiring dictator, Assistant District Attorney Leo H. Healy, at the Hotel St. George grand ballroom next Sunday. Mr. Healy has served Brooklyn Lodge, 14, for two years as dictator, and the success of Brooklyn Lodge is due to his efforts.

COLORED DANCERS' DISPLAY OF LEGS HALTED BY HEALY

Guest of Honor at Testimonial Acts as Censor as Clergymen Present Read Menus

Assistant District Attorney Leo H. Healy, who was the guest of honor last night at the Hotel St. George, where more than 1,00 of his friends gathered to commemorate his retirement as the dictator of Brooklyn Lodge, No. 14, Loyal Order of the Moose, acted as stage censor at the affair and issued an edict against an encore or repetition of a dance by a company of colored girls from a boro "night club" which had been included by the committee in charge of the affair as a part of the function.

Abbreviated Clothing

While the dinner was in progress a group of entertainers appeared on the ballroom floor and the girls disported themselves in a dance with abbreviated clothing below the hips and in bare legs. The Rev. Bernard J. Quinn, rector of St. Peter Claver's R. C. Church; Rabbi Louis Gross of the Union Temple and other clergymen who occupied seats on the dais displayed an utter lack of interest in the "girl show" and became suddenly attracted to a reading of the menu card or toyed with their knives and forks.

A reporter was talking with the guest of honor as the artists went through their "stunt." While the dance was in progress Assistant District Attorney Healy dispatched a member of the dinner committee to the floor with instructions that there must be no encore and the dance which aroused such a storm of protest, must not be repeated.

County Clerk William E. Kelly, who acted as toastmaster, also expressed himself forcibly regarding the impropriety of the judgment of the dinner committee in booking the troupe of colored dancers. When members of the clergy were informed of the edict against the dancers by the Assistant District Attorney, who knew nothing about the character of the dance before the artists appeared, they expressed themselves in high praise of the guest of honor.

Testimonial to Healy

Although the dinner had been arranged as a testimonial to mark Healy's retirement from the office of dictator of Brooklyn Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, persistent and well-defined rumors were in circulation that the affair had been planned as a medium for launching a boom for County Judge this fall for the county prosecutor. Healy's friends in the Loyal Order of Moose made no secret of their intention to groom him for the place on the County Court bench now held by Judge Franklin Taylor. They even went so far as to say that Healy would run in the primaries against Judge Taylor because, they said, the jurist had weakened himself as a vote-getter on account of his opposition to certain features of the Baumes anticrime laws before their constitutionality was sustained by Judge Frederick E. Crane of the Court of Appeals.

When Assistant District Attorney Healy was informed by reporters of the political significance that his 1,000 friends were attaching to the dinner, he said: "I am in the hands of my friends, but I want it distinctly understood I am and always will be loyal to Democratic County Leader McCooey."

Earlier in the evening members of the dinner committee declared that Judge Taylor, although invited to the affair, could not attend because of illness. However, the jurist appeared later, greeted the guest of honor cordially and occupied a seat on the dais.

McCooey Lauds Guest of Honor

Although Democratic County Leader McCooey, who spoke during the dinner and hurried away to attend another affair, did not refer to the Healy boom, he was lavish in his praise of the assistant county prosecutor as an efficient official and loyal party worker. McCooey said: "The guest of honor has always manifested a deep interest in the Democratic party and its organization. We of the Democratic party have learned to look upon him as a pinch hitter – we can put him anywhere, at any time."

District Attorney Charles J. Dodd and other official and political associates of the guest of honor lauded Assistant District Attorney Healy who was presented with a high-powered limousine. The wife of the guest of honor was the recipient of a radio set.

JUDGE LEO HEALY TALKS OF FOLKS BACK IN WORCESTER

Youngest Magistrate in New York, Who Won Title "Best Intercollegiate Orator in the World," Had Ambition to Become an Actor, By Roger Batchelder

New York, Dec 2 (1927) – New York's youngest magistrate, and one of the youngest ever to hold that office, is Leo Healy of Worcester, Mass, known as the "boy orator" during his earlier school days, and winner of the trophy awarded to the "best collegiate orator in the world."

Scorning offers to go on lecture tours and accept stage contracts, Judge Healy has rapidly made his way in New York, and his appointment by Mayor Walker to fill the unexpired term of Judge McCloskey of the Brooklyn Homicide Court, who died last month, was not unexpected. He will preside over this court, which handles all murder, manslaughter, reckless driving and driving while intoxicated cases until 1930. Judge McCloskey was its first magistrate when the special court was inaugurated some years ago.

"I'd rather talk about Worcester," said Judge Healy, as we sat in his chambers after court had adjourned for the day, and when he was asked to tell what he had been doing since the days when he soared to oratorical heights on New England platforms. He was just Leo Healy again, though older in appearance and demeanor, as he wistfully turned back the pages and reminisced. "That's a great little city," he went on. "I miss it and above all, the old friends whom I no longer see."

What Dan Gains Said

"Here's a good one from Charley Campbell," he chuckled, selecting a letter from the stack on his desk. Mr. Campbell managed the campaigns of Senator Walsh. The letter itself was more or less formal in its congratulation, but at the bottom was appended this postscript: "In your new exalted position, don't forget what Dan Gaines said about you." Dan was one of Worcester's greatest characters for many years. He had a barber shop on Main St., near Thomas, and would do an artistic haircutting job for 15 cents. He was also a leader in politics among Worcester's colored people.

"My first political speech was made in Dan's barber shop," related Judge Healy, "and the place was packed for the rally for John T. Duggan, who was later elected Mayor. I did the best I could, and apparently made a pretty good job of it, for as soon as I had finished, Dan seized my hand , and in a tremendous voice cried to his audience, 'Fellow citizens, Mr. Healy may have a white skin, but he surely has a black heart.' "

Judge Healy was born on Dewey St., near Pleasant, and attended the Abbot Street School. He entered Classical High with the Class of '11, and in his sophomore year was class president, president of the Euclia Debating Society, and winner of the interscholastic oratorical championship of New England. In his senior year, he became champion schoolboy speaker of the United States.

Lure of the Great City

On entering Holy Cross he came under the direction of Fr. Coveney, who guided his destinies to a considerable extent, and before long he won the intercollegiate oratorical championship of the world by defeating Carl Gugenheim of Berlin in the finals, which were held in Faneuil Hall, Boston. But the young man's eyes were turned toward New York and the lure of the great city called him.

"At one time I was a soda clerk in Levasseur's drugstore opposite the station," he said, "and from behind the counter I could see the trains puffing along to the metropolis. The idea of New York got into my blood to such an extent that I lost my job. When I made a banana split for a man who had ordered a lemon and lime, that was the last straw and I was fired."

The fame of Leo Healy had preceded him to New York, and when McCall unsuccessfully ran against Mitchel for the Mayoralty, Leo was drafted as a star member of the staff of campaign orators. He never returned to Worcester, except for visits, but went to Fordham Law School. He graduated with the class of '16, of which he was valedictorian, and since it was the 75th anniversary of the founding of Fordham he and his classmates received their diplomas from Cardinal Hayes.

Next he entered the offices of John V. Bouvier, noted New York attorney, and after two years of work and further study became attorney for a firm of shipping agents. He had always lived in Brooklyn, and in 1922 he was attached to the staff of Dist. Atty. Dodd of Kings County and became an active member of the Madison Club, a part of Tammany Leader McCooey's Brooklyn organization. His success was so notable that Mayor Walker gave him the first available appointment to the bench, and he became the second presiding judge in this important branch of the magistrates' courts.

Out of Touch

"You ask a hard question when you want to know whether I prefer New York to Worcester," asserted Judge Healy. "Most of my cherished memories, and nearly all my best friends, are back there, but my opportunity has come here. Besides, I have my family here with me now. My father and mother live in Brooklyn, and my two sisters, Clara and Grace – who went to the Worcester Normal School, by the way – are respectively supervisors of music and English in the Brooklyn public schools. My brother, Francis, who graduated from Holy Cross in '05, is editor of the Tablet Publishing Company, which prints a Catholic paper and is pastor of St. Joseph's Church at Garden City."

Judge Healy, who is 33, lives with his wife and his 5-year-old daughter, Eileen at 4303 Cortelyou road, Brooklyn.

"I haven't had the chance to get back home as often as I should have liked," he went on, "and the last time was at the opening of the new Elks Club on Elm St., where I made an address. Each time I return I seem to be more and more a stranger, for I have been out of touch with Worcester people and affairs for such a long time. Everyone has advanced in his profession. I was particularly happy, at the time of my last return, to find that Fr. William Ryan, for whom I was altar boy when he said his first mass in an old barn on Pleasant St., now is pastor of the beautiful new Church of the Blessed Sacrament."

Reverting to boyhood days, Judge Healy recalled how he had sold newspapers in front of the Harrington and Richardson Arms factory at Park Ave. and Chandler St., and then told of his sad experience as a window dresser.

"I got the job of decorating the windows of the modiste's shop of Mlle. Dupre, on Park St.," he declared. "She told me how she wanted things arranged, and I blandly said that I could do the work perfectly. I put everything in the window, including a beautiful wax model, which was worth something like $125. Everything went well until I tripped over something, and grabbed the model for support. It fell with a crash, and the next thing I knew I was running up Park St., hat in hand, with Mlle. Dupre running after me."

Amateur Actor

"My first real work came during vacations at high school, when I was employed by the Street Department as checker of wagons, tools, and other equipment. I don't know how successful I was at this, but I made the fine salary of $12 a week. In the summers while I was attending Holy Cross, I went to Block Island and was clerk at the old Atlantic House, where I met a great many people from Boston."

Judge Healy admitted that he had always had a secret ambition to become an actor, but that Fr. Coveney and Senator David I. Walsh, who was also one of his best friends, would not allow it.

"At any rate, I had a great time playing in the 'Drummer Boy of Shiloh,' which the G.A.R. put on each year at the Worcester Theater. My first attempt was in the hero's role, but I decided that my talents were somewhat wasted, and insisted on being the terrible villain, Frank Rutledge. I played that once, and on my third appearance took the part of Mart. Finally, the great opportunity came, and I was offered the part of counsel for the defense in the professional play, 'Madame X.' But I finally decided to keep off the stage, and I'm mighty clad I had such good advice to follow."

"Proud days for me were those when I was an altar boy at St. Paul's Church under the late Fr. Goggin. But I think the greatest day of my life was that St. Patrick's Day when I marched down Main St. as sergeant drummer of the St. Aloysius Drum Corps. It was a great thrill, and I was feeling mighty important, for all the boys envied my position."

During the past few years Judge Healy has been a leader in numerous societies and organizations of Brooklyn. For two years he was the head of the 8000 Brooklyn members of the Loyal Order of Moose, and when he gave up his chair he was presented an automobile.

Chief Justice Rugg His Model

"I don't know just what the future will bring," he mused, "but it will be greatly influenced by the kindly encouragement of Arthur Prentice Rugg, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, who is one of the finest men I have ever been privileged to know. He lived right across from us on Dewey St. and often he would take my arm, and as we walked along, ask how I was getting along, and if there was anything that he could do to help me. I have always had deep respect for Justice Rugg. In my childhood, I often wished that I, too, could be a great judge some day, and attain the fine character of the eminent jurist. I feel the same way about it today. My great ambition is to follow him as a model and attain, if possible, something approaching his distinction."

ASSERTS WILSON YIELDED TO JAPS

Speaker in Rahway Makes Strong Plea for Preparedness

Rahway, May 31, - A stirring address by Leo H. Healy, of the National Security League, was the feature of the Memorial Day exercises held in the high school auditorium Monday night. The speaker emphasized the danger of trouble with Japan, and declared that Baron Chinda had drafted a bill admitting Japs into this country and had forced President Wilson to approve it under a threat of severing diplomatic relations. The speaker urged that this land be so prepared that no nation on earth would dare attempt to dictate to it. He said that America will not bow to Germany any more that she will to England or Japan.

Mayor Harry Simmons, in introducing Leo H. Healy, of the National Security League, said that it would be a great thing if the younger United States army veterans would keep up the observance of Memorial Day. He called attention to the dwindling ranks of the G. A. R. The local post that once numbered 120, he said, had thinned to twenty-seven.

FRANCIS J. HEALY TO BE MADE A PRIEST IN BROOKLYN TUESDAY

Francis J. Healy, son of Jeremiah F. Healy, 20 Dewey street, will be ordained a priest in the Brooklyn Cathedral Tuesday, by Bishop McDonald of the Brooklyn Diocese. Mr. Healy is a native of Worcester, and a member of St. Paul's parish. He will celebrate a solemn high mass, in St. Paul's church, May 23.

He was graduated from Holy Cross college in 1905, and has been a student at St. John's seminary, in Brooklyn, since. After his ordination, he will be assigned to the Brooklyn diocese. While a member of St. Paul's church, he was an altar boy in the church, and then a teacher in the Sunday school.

YOUNG PRIEST OFFERS FIRST PUBLIC MASS

Rev. Francis J. Healy, son of Jeremiah J. Healy of 20 Dewey Street, who was ordained to the Catholic priesthood Wednesday at the cathedral in Brooklyn by Bishop McDonnell, celebrated a solemn high mass in St. Paul's church yesterday. The sermon at the mass was preached by the pastor, Rev. William H. Goggin, who spoke of Father Healy as a boy in the parish, serving on the altar and in the Sunday school. At the close he invited all to receive the blessing of the young priest, and several hundred of the congregation took advantage.

Guilman's mass in A major was sung, which gave fine opportunity for the work of the chorus choir. The "Juravit Dominum," which was composed by Archbishop William H. O'Connell of Boston, was sung by the choir and for the first time in the United States. James Redican and George Cronin of the sanctuary choir sang the "Veni Creator." The music of the main choir was under the direction of Daniel Downey, Walter E. Howe, organist. Miss Genevieve B. Convery directed the sanctuary choir, with Joseph Rogers organist.

FR. HEALY GUEST OF PARENTS

Rev. Francis J. Healy, assistant at the church of St. Vincent de Paul, Brooklyn, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Healy, 20 Dewey Street. Fr. Healy is much improved in health since his visit here in the summer. Many have renewed their acquaintance with him during the holidays, and all express their pleasure in his return to health and strength.

REV. FRANCIS J. HEALY ASSIGNED CHAPLIN

Rev. Francis J. Healy, a graduate of Holy Cross College, and formerly of this city, has been commissioned a first lieutenant and assigned as chaplain at Plum Island. Fr. Healy attended the Brooklyn Seminary and has been a priest in the Brooklyn diocese for the past ten years.

Rev. Francis J. Healy Article

"Rev. Francis J. Healy has been appointed Editor-in-chief of The Tablet and pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Garden City, Long island, N. Y. Father Healy was born in Worcester in 1883 and after graduating from Holy Cross made his theological studies in St. John's Seminary, Brooklyn. Ordained in 1909, he was assigned at various times to St. Vincent de Paul's, Holy Redeemer, Freeport, St. Joseph's and St. Gregory's parishes. In 1914 he was appointed professor of English in the new Cathedral College. Forced by ill health to resign in 1916 he resumed his curacy at St. Joseph's. In 1918 he was appointed K. of C. chaplain at Fort Terry, Plum Island, where he served, with the rank of First Lieutenant, until the armistice. For twelve years he has been on the editorial staff of The Tablet, of which he is now appointed Editor-in-chief. Another Holy Cross graduate, Rev. Edward J. Matthews, '07, is one of the associate editors of The Tablet.

WORCESTER PRIEST NAMED PASTOR

Rev. Francis J. Healy Promoted to Have Charge of Church in Garden City, L. I.

Rev. Francis J. Healy, a nephew of Jeremiah J. Higgins of Worcester, and a native of Worcester, for several years assistant pastor of St. Gregory's church in Brooklyn, has been promoted to the pastorate of St. Joseph's church, Garden City, Long Island and will take up his new duties at once.

Fr. Healy's parents, Jeremiah F. Healy and wife, who is a sister of Mr. Higgins, with their daughter[s] Clara and Gertrude and Leo H. a son, all well known in Worcester have removed from this city to New York. Clara is employed as a principal in the department of drawing and arts of the New York public schools; Gertrude is employed as an instructor in the department of music in the public schools and Leo H., is now a practicing attorney there.

The Rev. Fr. Healy, is known as a strong pulpit orator, and as editor of The Tablet, the official Catholic organ of the Brooklyn diocese, has become known as a forceful editorial writer. In early life the father of the family was director of the choir in St. Anne's church in Worcester and his wife was the leading soprano singer in the same choir. In the last years of their residence in Worcester the family worshipped in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament.

Francis Healy during his seminary days

Letter from the Office of The Dist. Attorney of Nassau Co., NY, dated Mar. 21, 1927

Rev, Francis Healy, Garden City,
L.I., N.Y.

My dear Father Healy:--

I want to thank you personally for the splendid speech which you made at the dinner the other evening. I enjoyed thoroughly your stories, which were exquisite and every one commented upon them as well as upon your speech generally.

I want to take exception to the "golf" part of that speech, and say that the grand result of it is that I have been invited to play with at least twenty dubs, because of the record you have made for both of us. One of my would-be guests says that I may bring you along.

My own son, who was present, said: "After all Pop's talk about his golf, it took the minister to expose him." There is, however, one advantage to that speech of yours about my golf, it is going to insure a very early date. Not so much in the hope of beating you as to see to it that publication is given to the fact that you can shoot in the eightys, and thus let the public lose faith in another one of its ministers. Please be prepared for our promised game of golf shortly.

Again let me thank you, and assure you of my appreciation of your coming and helping us, especially in view of the Lenten season, and knowing how busy you are.

Very Sincerely yours,

Elvin N. Edwards
District Attorney

REV. F. J. HEALY IS DEAT AT 57
Was Editor of Catholic Paper in Brooklyn – Funeral Will Be Friday
He was Distinguished Student of and Essayist on Literature. (Dec. 1940)
The Rev. Francis J. Healy, for eighteen years editor of the Brooklyn Tablet, official publication of the Brooklyn Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, died today in St. Joseph's Hospital in Kings County. He had been in ill health since August and had been under treatment at the hospital for three weeks.

Father Healy was a brother of former Magistrate Leo Healy and of Miss Gertrude Healy, a school teacher of Merrick, L. I. Funeral services will be held for him on Friday at St. Joseph's Church in Brooklyn of which he had been pastor since 1922.

Was an Eloquent Speaker
He was regarded by those who knew him as a distinguished student of literature, a brilliant essayist on English literature and an eloquent speaker. However, between his duties as editor-in-chief of the Tablet and those of his own church, he had little time to engage in other activities.

He was born fifty-seven years ago in Worcester, Mass., and named Francis De Sales Joseph Healy. From boyhood he wanted to enter the priesthood and after attending public schools he entered Holy Cross College in his native city to prepare for his life work.

After graduation from that institution he entered St. John's Seminary in Brooklyn for his theological training. In May of 1909he was ordained a priest and assigned to the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, Brooklyn. Three years later he was transferred to the Church of Our Holy Redeemer in Freeport, L. I., and after a year there became assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Brooklyn, which later he was to serve as pastor.

During the world war he was chaplain at Fort Terry, Plum Island, Brooklyn, and in 1919 went to St. Gregory's Church in the same borough. After several years at St. Joseph's Church in Garden City, L. I., he returned to Brooklyn to St. Joseph's Church in 1924.

SECTION IV

Ancestors of Laura Aileen Titus, Allison Joanne Titus and Kelley Eileen Titus

June 2003, Ashburn, VA

This section of the book is for my immediate family members. The first chart shows the ancestors of my three daughters, Laura, Allison and Kelley through their great grandparents. The next several charts trace the lines of their grandparents.

More detailed information on the individuals outlined on the charts is found in the text immediately following the charts. Where possible I tried to get biographical information on each individual in order to tell a more complete story of my daughter's ancestors. Most of the information in this section has been provided by family members.

Generation No. 1

1a. Laura Aileen Titus, born May 30, 1997 in Fairfax, Virginia. She is the daughter of 2. Leo Joseph Titus and 3. Jennifer Ann Sierzant. In June of 2004 she had just completed first grade at St. Theresa Catholic School in Ashburn, VA. She loves ballet, ice skating, riding her bike and playing with her friends. She is a very thoughtful and helpful little girl.

1b. Allison Joanne Titus, born August 13, 2000 in Reston, Fairfax Co., Virginia. She is the daughter of Leo Joseph Titus and Jennifer Ann Sierzant. Allison will be four years old when this book goes to the publisher. She is one of the cutest toddlers I have ever seen. She has beautiful red hair and a wonderful smile. She is a little princes and loves to dress up and play with her big sister.

1c. Kelley Eileen Titus, born Feb. 13, 2003 in Reston, Fairfax Co., Virginia. She is the daughter of Leo Joseph Titus and Jennifer Ann Sierzant. Kelley is sixteen months old as I write this. She has the same red hair as her big sister Allison. I think both of them got the red hair from my grandmother Eileen (Healy) Titus (individual #9 this section). With her red hair she is a perfect mix of her two older sisters.

Generation No. 2

2. Leo Joseph Titus (#1507 Titus Genealogy), born Sep. 10, 1969 in Olean, New York. He was the son of 4. Leo Joseph Titus and 5. Ann Aileen Izzo. He married 3. Jennifer Ann Sierzant Nov. 16, 1991 in Tarrytown, New York. Lived in Olean, NY; Lancaster, PA; Brookfield, CT as a child before moving to Saratoga Springs, NY in 1981. Graduated from Saratoga Springs High School in 1987 and received a BS in Civil and Environmental Engineering from Clarkson University in 1991. Received a MS degree in Geotechnical Engineering from the University of Maryland in 2002. Registered Professional Engineer and worked as an engineer and manager. Compiler of this book. More biographical information is presented in Section III. Living in Ashburn, VA, June 2004.

3. Jennifer Ann Sierzant, born Apr. 12, 1969 in Potsdam, NY; died of breast cancer on Oct. 27, 2003 in Reston, VA . She is buried in St. Joseph's cemetery in Leesburg, VA. She was the daughter of 6. Thomas David Sierzant and 7. Sylvia Ann Davis. Grew up living in Rochester; NY, Buffalo, NY; Farmington, CT; Westerville, OH; Marietta, GA and finally back to Buffalo, NY where she graduated from Williamsville East High School. Graduated with High Honors from Clarkson University in 1991 with a BS in Industrial Distribution. Received a MS in Finance from Boston College in 1996. Worked as a government cost analyst for the Institute Defense Analyses, the MITRE Corporation and Tecolote Research. Full time mom starting in Apr. of 2002. Taught religious education to preschoolers at St. Theresa Church in Ashburn, VA.

Autobiography of Jennifer Sierzant Titus, June 2003 (two weeks before cancer diagnosis)
"I was born on April 12, 1969, in the small town of Potsdam, New York. My father was a college student at Clarkson University and my parents lived in married student housing. I was the only baby in the hospital and my family received a lot of attention! We moved many times during my childhood. I grew up in Rochester and Buffalo, New York, Farmington, Connecticut, Westerville, Ohio, Marietta, Georgia, and back to Buffalo. Eight moves before I graduated from high school. I have many memorable experiences growing up including spending a week every summer with my maternal grandparents, spending a week every summer in the outer banks of North Carolina with my mom's whole extended family, and numerous weekends at my great grandmother's little blue and white cottage in the woods of a lake outside of Binghamton, New York. I loved spending time with my grandparents "Otie and Grandma", my Great Grandma Evans, and my Great Aunt "Bobbie". We would have cookouts, bonfires, and long walks in the woods collecting berries for our breakfast.

Growing up I was involved in Girl Scouts, ballet, and played the clarinet. I loved babysitting neighbors' children. In high school I was a yearbook editor and played varsity tennis. My brother Mike and I spent a lot of time during the summer playing tennis and swimming. My parents also traveled with us quite a bit in the U.S. exposing us to many great places including Washington, DC, Florida, Colonial Williamsburg, New York City, and the Adirondacks of NY. I loved taking long weekend trips with my family; we went to shows, museums, and sporting events. My family was great. Even though my parents divorced when I was 17, we always had a very calm home. I remember normal sibling disagreements but never yelling or hitting ever. My brother is an extremely calm, caring person. He possesses the same relaxed disposition that my Great Aunt Bobbie did; it makes me smile just to think of them.

I loved the routine of our Christmases growing up. My immediate family would celebrate an early Christmas wherever we were living at the time. Then for a week we would head to New York. We'd spend Christmas Eve with my Dad's family. In the early years it was held at my Great Grandma Jachomivicz's house. There were always tons of people there. I was overwhelmed by how many people were there and the house seemed absolutely enormous. Mike and I would go exploring with our cousins into the numerous bedrooms, basement, and attic areas. It was scary and exciting. Then very late at night we'd head back to my Mom's family. We'd visit my Great Uncle Alvin and Great Aunt Esther who lived three houses down from my Grandparents (my Grandfather's brother). Then we'd spend Christmas morning at my Mom's parent's house. Coming down my Grandparents steps in the morning was so thrilling. Each person would have a pile of presents waiting for them in the family room.

I went to college at Clarkson University where I had been born. It was a fantastic experience. I learned an immense amount, had a ton of fun, and met my future husband, Leo. I joined a sorority, Delta Zeta, where I made a lot of friends and became very involved with the college. I was secretary and chaplain of my sorority, joined two honor societies, and served on the panhellenic inter-Greek council. Leo and I met through one of my sorority sisters. We've been together since the Fall of our sophomore year when Leo asked one of my sorority sisters to introduce us. I remember Leo's fraternity parties, getting pizza rolls and "gobbler" bagels from the Bagelry, and going out to the gorges and falls near Potsdam. We became engaged in April of 1991. Leo possesses an enthusiasm for life that is contagious. There is no better way to spend your life than with someone who enjoys living. I can always count on my husband to embrace whatever we're doing, even if it's as simple as a "picnic" pizza dinner on the family room floor.

Leo and I chose to live in Annapolis, MD. We had a nice apartment within walking distance of the downtown pier area. We moved a year later to Upper Marlborough, MD to reduce my hour and a half commute to Alexandria, VA. We both had exciting first jobs. I had begun my career as a government analyst in the cost research and development field. We later transferred up to Shrewsbury, MA. I began working at the MITRE Institute, a federal research center. I primarily worked for the Air Force and NOAA. We bought our first house when we were 24 years old. It was a quaint two bedroom white cape cod. While in MA, I worked nonstop. I was earning my Master's of Finance from Boston College at night.

When we were 27 years old we transferred to the Virginia area. Leo was promoted with his company and I had already coincidentally been traveling to the DC area every month to support government projects. We had our first daughter in 1997, Laura Aileen. Laura is joy to be with. Just like her father, she approaches every day of life with enthusiasm. When she was three years old she opened every tiny chocolate Easter egg in her Easter basket as if it were a pot of gold. She is also one of the kindest people I have ever known.

I was a part-time working mom for almost five years. I joined another government contracting firm, Tecolote Research as a team leader. I supervised a team of five analysts and managed a government contract. In many ways I was living the dream of earlier women engineers before me, able to hold a management position in a technical firm while only working 3 days per week. While Laura was little this worked out very well for us. I later decided after having two children that work was causing too much stress and I needed to focus my life in one area, my family. I was confirmed into the Roman Catholic faith in 1999. We had two more daughters, Allison Joanne (2000) and Kelley Eileen (2003). Allison turned us into a family and Kelley has completed our family. Allison is so much fun to be with. I enjoy every day with her. At the age of two, Allison would stand outside in our cul-de-sac and sing at the top of her lungs and later relax by lying on her back in the grass staring up at the clouds. Allison makes the world smile. Kelley is still a baby but I believe many of our personality traits are evident from day one. She has a smile that you cannot resist. She opens her mouth really wide and krinkles up her nose. She is absolutely adorable. My daughters have made me a better person in more ways than I could ever list.

5. Ann Aileen Izzo, born August 17, 1948 in Saratoga Springs, New York. She was the daughter of 10. Frank Paul Izzo and 11. Aileen Meyers Zickgraf. "Here are some recollections of growing up in Saratoga: I was born at Saratoga Hospital and spent the first year of life living with my parents and Grandma "Ruff" at her home on the west side of Saratoga. The house at 105 West Circular St. is a west side landmark and still remains in the family today. When I was a year old we moved to 17 Ritchie Place on the East Side of Saratoga. It was a coveted move for the son of an Italian immigrant. My elementary school was St. Clements which was literally around the corner from our house. My sister also went there and I can remember bringing two dollars in a little brown envelope every month for our tuition. I used to love to go home for lunch every day. I would race back to school to the playground because the nuns had cookie tins filled with penny candy which they sold us! When we were little and the environment wasn't an issue we used to rake our leaves in the fall and put them in the street. On fall evenings we would burn the leaves and roast marshmallows over the ashes. My parents still live on Ritchie place 54 years later. I went to St. Peter's Academy for high school. Like my elementary school, there were no gym classes for girls, and in fact we were never allowed in the gym. I was a cheerleader and we had to practice our cheers in the hallways. Only on game night did we get to use the gym. It is notable that during the course of my 16 plus years in school I never had a gym class. My senior year of HS I was vice president of our class.

In 1966 I went to Saint Bonaventure University in Olean New York. I was in the first class of freshmen girls to live on campus…this was not popular with the formerly all male population. While at college I met Leo Titus who was in my class and we were married during our Junior year. I received a degree in Elementary Education and three years later also got my Master in Education from Saint Bonaventure. Many years later I am still teaching. I am a third grade teacher and over the last twenty years have taught all grades K through 6."

6. Thomas David Sierzant, born Oct. 16, 1946 in Binghamton, New York. He was the son of 12. Vincent A. Sierzant and 13. Veronica Jachomivicz. He married 7. Sylvia Ann Davis Sept. 2, 1967 at St. Stanislaus Kostka Roman Catholic Church in Johnson City, New York. He married (2) Leigh Nitka, Jan. 1991 in Buffalo, NY. They had one son, Geoffrey Sierzant, b. Jun. 6, 1992.

Autobiography written June 2003
"I was born just after World War II in Johnson City, New York, on Oct. 16, 1946. We lived in Binghamton, but the Johnson City Hospital was close to our house. We lived on the second floor of a 100-year-old two-story home owned by my Grandpa in a section of the city called "Polish Heaven". Grandpa moved to the US from Poland to near the Chicago area (Kenosha, WI). From there he moved to the Binghamton area to work for Endicott Johnson Shoes.

I was born the fifth of five children, Vincent, Richard, Harold, Eileen, and me. Both of my parents worked hard at GAF Corporation. GAF started during WW2 making specialty films for the military. My life was full of family and friends. I fondly remember my childhood Christmases. We always went to my Grandma's (Mom's side of the family) house. These Christmas celebrations were fun and crowded. My maternal Grandma had 15 children! My paternal Grandma passed away when I was young; therefore I don't remember her well. I was named after my paternal Grandpa, Thomas (who I called "Jajzu")- he passed away when I was a child. I liked my grandparents and have fond memories of them.
I was closest to my brother Harold and sister Eileen. Harold had a great personality and was a good athlete. When I turned 16, Harold was killed in a car accident. A tragedy that effects me still.

As a teenager, I had a paper route and sold the Sunday edition in front of our Catholic church, St. Stanislaus. In high school I wrestled, and liked math and engineering. After High School, I went to Clarkson University. I started out in EE and ended up in ID (Industrial Distribution). This was a specialty Engineering curriculum with 40% Business management. I really enjoyed my life at Clarkson and have many fond memories, of friends, parties, and studying. After college, I worked in sales and management. I've worked and lived in Rochester, NY, Buffalo, NY, Hartford, CT, Columbus, OH, Atlanta, GA, Boston, MA, Orlando and Tampa, FL, and now in Washington, DC.

While at Clarkson, I got engaged to my high school sweetheart, Sylvia Ann Davis. We married in my junior year of college (1968). Just before I graduated in the spring of 1969, Jennifer was born. Since Jennifer was the only baby being born at the time, the Potsdam Hospital let me stay in a room and gave me meals while waiting for my precious daughter to be born. Michael was born two years later (1971), in Rochester, NY. It was nice weather the day Michael was born, and I remember walking in to the hospital with Jennifer to see adorable Michael and Sylvia.

Jennifer and Michael were both smart and loving kids. I remember our family trip to Walt Disney World, and Mike and Jen riding in the front of the monorail train, and carrying them both through Tom Sawyer's cave.

After almost 20 years of marriage, Sylvia and I divorced. A few years later, I met Leigh Anne (Nitka) Romero. We married in 1991. I became step dad to her son Philip (born 1986). Geoffrey, my youngest child, was born in 1992 in Buffalo, NY-he was a cute baby-weighing 9 ½ lbs.

I am proud that Jennifer and Michael graduated from Clarkson, just like their Dad. I'm also proud to have five wonderful grandchildren: Laura, Allison, Madison, Ian, and Kelley!

7. Sylvia Ann Davis, born Nov. 20, 1947 in Johnson City, New York. She was the daughter of 14. Glen Otis Davis and 15. Joanne Evans. Married (1) Thomas David Sierzant, 1968 in Johnson City, NY; married (2) Terry Teemley; married (3) Robert Allen Dunn in 2000.

"I was born Nov. 20, 1947 in Johnson City, NY. The day that Queen Elizabeth married Prince Phillip. My mother told me that was the big excitement among the nurses that day in the hospital. As a Pre-schooler I lived in a second floor apartment in a house owned by my Great Aunt's (Odie's)mother's sisters and my father's brother lived downstairs with his family. When I was in first grade we moved to our brand new house on the hill (128 N. Hudson St.) in the North Side. I was always a good student and my parents gave me lots of responsibility at an early age. I started to iron as soon as I could reach the board. Ironing became part of my chores list as was setting the table, clearing the table, doing the dishes, vacuuming and watching after my brother. As a child some of my fondest memories were of fishing with my dad. I was his son until my brother, Glen, grew up. In grade school I helped out in the cafeteria by cleaning and clearing tables. We didn't have a lot of money and I remember my mother making up baloney sandwiches, because that was the cheapest meat. (I still don't eat baloney to this day because I don't like the taste).

Many evenings and weekends were spent at my Aunt Barbara's cottage on the lake. We would fish, swim, hike. My grandfather would put peanuts in his pocket and the chipmunks would come up to him and eat the nuts out of his pocket. We walked everywhere because only the rich people's kids could afford cars. At my high school only one person owned a car. When I was a high school senior, I worked at the shoe factory. My job was to put tips and welt on tennis shoes. I loved the smell of the factory and the leather. I still think about the factory whenever I detect the scent of new leather. I really liked that job. It is a shame that all the manufacturing has moved out of the U.S. I don't think any shoes are made in the U.S. anymore and I think about all the people who lost their jobs when the factories closed. I won a Regent's scholarship my senior year in high school and I used it to attend Wilson Hospital School of Nursing. I left that school before finishing, after two years, so I could marry my first husband, Thomas David Sierzant. One of the things I remember before the wedding was that we were going to have a big Polish wedding and Tom didn't know how to dance, so my dad got him over to his house and should him how to Polka (an integral part of the wedding). I still chuckle to myself when I have that image in my mind. Tom and I lived in married student housing and we made money by baby sitting for the professor's at Clarkson. We had lots of friends in fraternities and would always get invited over to the parties because they knew we didn't have any money. Tom worked at he gas station. I also worked at the Potsdam State Library, reclassifying the library from the Dewey Decimal system to the Library of Congress system. We were on a very tight budget. One time we went downtown to the Laundromat to do our clothes and Tom had spent part of the money on popcorn at the movie so we didn't have the money to dry the clothes and had to take !them home wet and hung them all over the furniture to dry. Jennifer was born April 12, 1969 during Tom's senior year. Tom graduated the next month and we moved to Rochester NY to the astounding salary of $9300. Two years later, April 17, 1971, Michael was born. Soon after Michael was born we moved into a Town House complex, which we managed so we could earn enough money to make a down payment on a house. Most of our holidays and vacation times were spent back in Johnson City, so we could get together with our relatives. After Rochester we moved to Buffalo, NY. And when Jennifer started Kindergarten we moved into our first house.

I didn't learn to drive until I was 30, because I didn't need to. We could only afford one car, and usually that was a company car that Tom used so it was never home. My first car was a Datsun B210. It was the cheapest one available. That was when we lived in Connecticut. After Conn. we moved to Westerville, Ohio. We lived near the Hoover Reservoir. When Odie came to visit he would take Michael to fish in the reservoir. After Ohio we moved to Atlanta, Georgia.(Marietta) The kids were old enough so I could work. I worked lots of different jobs while we moved around for Tom's job. Mostly I worked as a salesperson in many different clothing stores. We moved back to Buffalo when Jennifer was in high school and lived at the Holiday in for a few months while our house was being built. All the moving was difficult for my children but it taught them to make friends easier and be more independent and also made the two of them closer.
My second husband was Terry Teemley. I met him while working at Joseph Bank Clothiers in Buffalo. During our time together we were able to do a lot of traveling and during this time I went to Australia, England, France, Monaco, Alaska, Hawaii, Cancun, Bali, the Philippines and California. It was with Terry that I started collecting Snoopys. He brought the first one back from Japan. I guess you could say it became an obsession. I guess I like Snoopy because he makes me smile.

I married my Third Husband, Bob Dunn (aka Shoedog) because he had crinkly eyes. I remember first thinking that I wanted to date this guy when I saw him at the morning meeting at the Lord and Taylor store in Maryland we both worked at. (He's a shoedog because he sold ladies shoes). We got married on April 14, 2000. I wanted to get married in April because so many good things happened in April, specifically the birth of my two kids. (plus we thought if we got married the day before tax day, we wouldn't forget our anniversary.) Since getting married we have lived in three states, Virginia, Georgia and Ohio. Who knows where the future will lead us.

Sylvia Davis Married to T. Sierzant – Excerpts from Sep. 2, 1967 article:
"Miss Constance Marhefka was maid of honor for Miss Sylvia Ann Davis as she became the bride of Thomas David Sierzant, yesterday. A double ring ceremony and Nuptial Mass was celebrated for the couple by the Rev. Francis Duda in St. Stanislaus Kostka Roman Catholic Church at 10 a.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen O. Davis of 128 North Hudson Street, Johnson City. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Sierzant of 3113 Briarcliff Avenue, Vestal... ... The new Mrs. Sierzant was graduated from Johnson City High School where she was a member of Alpha Zeta Phi sorority, and attended Charles S. Wilson Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. A graduate of Vestal Central High School, her husband attends Clarkson College of Technology in Potsdam. The newlyweds are on a week's wedding trip in Canada.

Children of Thomas Sierzant and Sylvia Davis are:

3 i. Jennifer Ann Sierzant, born April 12, 1969 in Potsdam, New York; married Leo Joseph Titus Nov. 16, 1991 in Tarrytown, New York.

ii. Michael Thomas Sierzant, born April 17, 1971 in Henrietta, NY; married Jill Schaefer May 1998 in East Aurora, NY; born Nov. 30, 1970. Michael and Jill had two children: Madison

Colleen Sierzant and Ian Michael Sierzant. Michael is a manager with Lord and Taylor. They reside in Lawrenceville, GA in 2003.

"I was born, Michael Thomas Sierzant, on April 17th, 1971 in Henrietta, New York. As an adolescent I moved around a lot from Buffalo, NY to Hartford, CT to Columbus, OH to Atlanta, GA then back to Buffalo, NY where I graduated from Williamsville East High School in 1989. I then decided to attend Clarkson University where my father was an alumni and my sister was currently enrolled. I chose Clarkson because of these two people. Growing up, my father would talk about his college days with great pride and I wanted to be just like him. That, coupled with the fact that my sister, the most intelligent and responsible person I knew, was currently enrolled, made it my first choice. At Clarkson, I was very active with my fraternity, Omicron Pi Omicron. The "brothers" I met there became my closest friends. After changing majors from civil engineering to management I graduated with a BS from the School of Management in 1993.

After graduation I moved in with my Mother outside New York City. Being with my courageous mother made this an exiting time in my life. My horizons expanded and my confidence was heightened. My mom was a manager at Lord & Taylor department stores and recommended it to me for employment. I was placed in an executive training program and my career had begun. I was soon promoted to sales manager and I eventually moved back to Buffalo, NY. It was at Lord & Taylor that I met my future wife, Jill Marie Schaefer. A couple of years later, we got married on May 9th, 1998 at the Roycroft Inn in East Aurora, NY, Jill's hometown. That place was chosen because when Jill was 9 years old, she had told her mother that when she got married, that was where she would like to have it. Soon after, we purchased a three bedroom, ranch-style home in Lawrenceville, GA and on June 18th, 2001 welcomed our daughter, Madison Colleen, to the world. On Dec. 3, 2003 we were blessed with a son, Ian Michael."

8. Austin Edward Titus (#1124 Titus Genealogy), born August 21, 1915 in Brooklyn, New York; died June 15, 2001 in Connecticut. He was the son of 16. Austin Edward Titus and 17. Helen Adelaide Timms. He married 9. Eileen Gertrude Healy Feb. 08, 1947 in Brooklyn, New York. He was a lawyer in Brooklyn, New York for most of his life. More biographical information is presented in Section III.

9. Eileen Gertrude Healy, born Dec. 27, 1921 in Brooklyn, New York. She was the daughter of 18. Leo Harold Healy and 19. Anna Gladys Cummings. My grandmother was born on a farm in Brooklyn at 4302 Cortelyou Road. The farm was owned by here grandfather Michael Cummings and was across the street from Holy Cross Cemetery. She recalls that Halloween was always scary growing up with the cemetery across the street. When she was little she had a collie named rover. She often told the story of when she was a very little girl she got lost in a cornfield on the farm. Rover came to find her and in her words, "saved me". One of her earliest memories was when she was little, her Grandfather Cummings gave her a pony cart and she can remember being chased by the pony cart the day Charles Lindburg landed in Europe after his solo flight across the Atlantic.

A story that she tells often was about the time when she was babysitting me (Leo Titus) in Olean, New York. I was probably about four years old. We went for a walk to the store and crossed some railroad tracks along the way. As we crossed the tracks, my shoe got stuck. There was a train coming (very slowly and probably several hundred yards away). But I was four and I can remember the incident and thought at the time we were in pretty serious danger. We got the shoe unstuck and escaped to safety! Another story that was told often when we were little was how her great, great, great, great, great grandfather "O'Healy" came over on the Mayflower. It was a long voyage and one day a terrible storm hit. The storm rocked the boat violently and all of the little children were washed overboard. Her ancestor O'Healy took the "O" off of his name and threw it out into the ocean to save all of the little children. And that is how she had the name Healy. When I was little I almost believed it!

There was a bar in Brooklyn on Flatbush Avenue called Lefferts Bar. After World War II, the men returning from the war would meet on Friday and Saturday nights at Lefferts Bar were many romances began. That is were Eileen met Austin.

MISS HEALY TO MARRY MR. TITUS - Brooklyn Eagle, Sunday, Oct. 20, 1946

Former Magistrate and Mrs. Leo Healy of 3561 Bedford Ave., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eileen Gertrude Healy, to Austin Edward Titus, Jr., last night at a cocktail party held at the Healy home. Miss Healy is a graduate of St. Angela Hall Academy, and Georgian Court College, Lakewood, N.J. Mr. Titus attended Holy Cross College as was graduated from New York Law School. He served in the late war as an officer with military intelligence and is now engaged in the practice of law in Brooklyn.

MISS HEALY, MR. TITUS ARE UNITED

Church Wedding Followed by Sherry's Reception – Brooklyn Eagle, Sunday, Feb. 9, 1947

"Our Lady Help of Christians Church was the scene yesterday morning of the marriage of Miss Eileen Gertrude Healy, daughter of former City Magistrate and Mrs. Leo Healy of 3561 Bedford Ave. and Austin Edward Titus Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin E. Titus of 157 Maple St. the Rev. Joseph McGroarty performed the ceremony, and a reception followed at Sherry's Manhattan. Miss Healy was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Maureen Healy as maid of honor and the Misses Virginia Titus, sister of the bridegroom; Margaret Sabbatino of Brooklyn, Nancie Reinecke of Erie, PA; Jean Wall Carroll of Patterson, NJ and Mrs. Horace Marucci of West Orange, NJ as bridesmaids.

Austin Titus and Eileen Healy on their wedding day – 1947

The bride wore a Skinner satin wedding gown in 18th Century influence, made with a Polanese drape and bustle back skirt. Her French illusion veil was held by a headpiece of Brussels lace, crowned with orange blossoms and heather. Hand appliquéd Brussels lace bordered the veil which fell over a fan shaped train. The bridal bouquet was composed of camellias and valley lily showers. The attendants all wore pink marquisette and carried old fashioned bouquets of Spring flowers, violets and roses. Silas Titus was best man for his brother and the ushers were George Titus, another brother; Thomas O'Brien, James Dore, Robert Breslin, all of Brooklyn and Luke Burke of Bayside... ...After a trip to Lake Placid he and his bride will reside in Brooklyn."

- i. Leo Joseph Titus, born Jan. 26, 1948 in Brooklyn, Kings Co., New York; married Ann Aileen Izzo Feb. 08, 1969 in Olean, New York.
- ii. Kevin Charles Titus, born Oct. 06, 1953 in Brooklyn, NY; died Nov. 19, 1987 in New York; married Mary in Hicksville, NY; born Bet. 1950 - 1955; died Feb. 2000.
- iii. Austin Edward Titus, born May 13, 1951 in Brooklyn, Kings Co., New York.
- iv. Eileen Ann Titus, born Oct. 19, 1955 in Brooklyn, Kings Co., New York; married Gerard Fitzpatrick Jan. 30, 1980 in Northport, NY; born March 26, 1953 in Queens, NY. (#1334 in section II of this book. Autobiography in Section III.

10. Frank Paul Izzo, born July 11, 1920 in Saratoga Springs, NY. He was the son of 20. Paul Izzo and 21. Rufina Etes. He married 11. Aileen Meyers Zickgraf May 26, 1944 in St. Mary's Church, Grand Rapids, MI. He grew up in Saratoga Springs, NY. He attended Michigan State College and spent two years in the Pacific at the end of WWII. He returned home and lived at his parents house on West Circular Street with his wife and two daughters for a couple of years before moving to 17 Ritchie Place in Saratoga Springs in 1949. In the summer of 2003 when this book was published, they still resided at 17 Ritchie Place. More biographical information, articles and stories are presented in Section III.

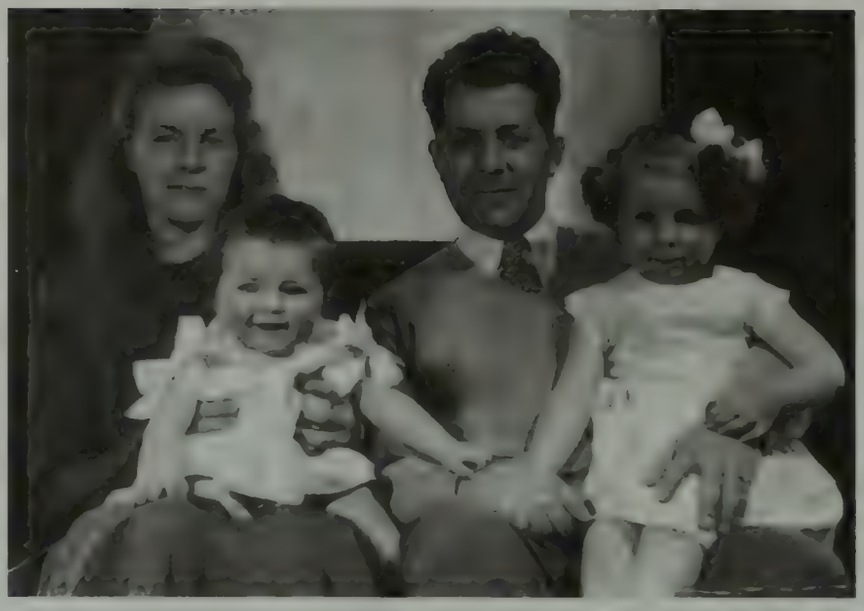
Frank and Aileen Izzo - 1997

11. Aileen Meyers Zickgraf, born Dec. 13, 1921 in Mason, Michigan. She was the daughter of 22. Arthur Ferdinand Zickgraf and 23. Mary Marguerite Myers. She graduated from Michigan State College in 1943 as a Home Economics major. Aileen and Frank both worked in the dormitory dining hall. Frank wanted to take her out on a date. He walked her home to her dorm and a boy from home was there to visit her. Aileen told her that she couldn't go out because she had a visitor. And then she said "But I can go out tomorrow night!" ..."In high school I played violin in the orchestra and piccolo in the marching band and concert band. Also played tennis and did well at singles and doubles. Guess I am bragging but thought my family should know I could do other activities besides housework!" Stories told by Aileen (Zickgraf) Izzo on audio tape and transcribed by Leo Titus Jr.:

Grandma's First Teaching Job and the Basketball Coaching position.
"My first teaching job. OK, It was in Remuth, Michigan. I taught the junior and senior high school. I taught home ec. The other was for the 7th and 8th graders. I ran the cafeteria, taught home ec., and ah, I'm trying to think what the other one was. Well, it had to do with math and all that, and I got through it. I don't really remember what it was."

The Coaching Job – Grandma was a basketball coach and tells the following story:
"How does it start out? Well when he hired me, uh, he told me what my duties would be and so forth. He said "I manage the girls basketball team. They have a pretty good team but we have to have a lady sitting on the bench with us." And he said "I would like you to do that for me." And I said "OK". So I put on my red wool jacket and sat on the bench. He'd be around me to tell me what to tell the kids to do."

The Apartment in California (This just before Frank left for the Pacific in WWII)
"We found our room... I went to work for the... it was voluntary... the USO. A lady called up one day and said she had an apartment for rent. And I said "OH! We're looking for one and I'd like very much to have a chance to see it." I said to the woman "there's just one thing... We're expecting a baby in a few months". She said "Oh we love babies!" So we got the apartment. It was beautiful. It was at the foot of the mountain."



The Izzo family in 1949
Aileen, Ann, Frank and Mickey

Children of Frank Izzo and Aileen Zickgraf are:

5 i. Ann Aileen Izzo, born August 17, 1948 in Saratoga Springs, New York; married Leo Joseph Titus Feb. 08, 1969 in Olean, New York.

ii. Margaret (Mickey) Izzo, born July 16, 1945 in Riverside, CA; married Michael Harwood in Saratoga Springs, New York; born 1946 in New York. She lived in Olean, NY. "I was born July 16th, 1945 in Riverside, California. My father was in the Army and was deployed to the Phillipines several days after my birth. My mother and I stayed in California until she could travel and we moved to my maternal grandparents home in Mason, Michigan. When my father was discharged, we moved to Saratoga Springs, NY, his home town, and lived with my fraternal grandmother. At the age of 4 we moved to Ritchie Place, now as a family of four. I had a new baby sister, and in 1954 our brother was born. Ritchie Place is still "home" and has always been a place of laughter, story telling, and learning. I graduated from St. Peter's Academy in 1963 and attended the State University at Albany, NY. I graduated from Mildred Elley Secretarial School in 1966 and went to work for GE at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, in Schenectady, NY. During this time I met my former husband, who was in the Navy. Over the years, we traveled much and had two daughters; Lisa and Christine. We settled in Olean, NY after his discharge and this has been my home since then. I am now employed with the Rehabilitation Center managing a home for physically and mentally challenged individuals....and, back on the road traveling to my daughters' homes."

iii. Stephen Arthur Izzo, born June 06, 1954 in Saratoga Springs, NY; died Oct. 25, 1983 in Wilton Developmental Center, Wilton, NY.

12. Vincent Andrew Sierzant b. Nov., 1917 north of Chicago near Kennosha, Wisconsin. He was the son of 24. Thomas Sierzant and 25. Olga Dubanevich. He died June 12th, 1987 just shy of his 70th birthday. When he was a kid the whole family moved to Johnson City, New York where Vincent's father worked for Endicott Johnson shoe company. Thomas retired from that company. During WWII Vincent served in the Army and the Navy. He worked all his life for a photographic film manufacturer Ansco which later became GAF in Binghamton, NY. He went to night school at Cornell University to become a spectromitrist (specializing in analysis of light spectrums and effect on film). Most of the work was for the military during and after WWII. He married 13. Veronica Tilley Jachomivicz probably in Johnson City, NY. Veronica was born in Johnson City, NY probably around 1919-20. She died Jan. 19th, 1976. She worked at Ansco and GAF with Vincent. She packed film at the plant. Veronica was one of about 15 kids. Vincent was one of two kids. Vincent's brother's name was John Sierzant who was wounded in WWII and never completely recovered from his wounds. John Sierzant was married for about 10 years and had one boy and two girls. John died in the Veterans Memorial Hospital in Syracuse, NY Jan. 18th, 1976 (one day before Veronica Jachomivicz). Both Vincent and Veronica are buried in Johnson City, NY

From Eileen Laskoski: "He met Irene (can't remember her last name) and married in the fall of 1976. He was diagnosed with prostrate cancer and was given 2-3 yrs to live. He was the first person worldwide to have a radium implant. As you can see he lived to 1987. Thats the stubborn Sierzant side- never give up. Mom died of colon cancer. If she were alive today it would most likely have been treatable."

Vinent and Veronica Sierzant at the Statue of Liberty

Children of Vincent Sierzant and Veronica Jachomivicz are:

6
- i. Thomas David Sierzant, born Oct. 16, 1946 in Binghamton, New York; married (1) Sylvia Ann Davis 1968 in Johnson City, New York; married (2) Leigh Nitka Jan. 1991 in Buffalo, NY.
- ii. Vincent Walter Thomas Sierzant, b. abt 1942 d. 2002; married Faye and two kids, Carolyn and David
- iii. Richard Sierzant b. 1943, residing in Boulder, CO in 2003
- iv. Harold Andrew Sierzant, b. abt. 1944; d. abt. 1962
- v. Eileen Sierzant,, b. 1945, married Richard Laskoski and had two kids, Nicholas and Christine.

14. Glen Otis Davis, b. Aug. 21, 1926 in Wilkesbarre, PA. He is the son of 28. Alivin Lamar Davis and 29. Pearl E. Kocher. He married 15. Joanne Evans July 1946 in Johnson City, New York. She was born Dec. 01, 1926 in Binghamton, NY; died Feb. 28, 1997 in Johnson City, NY. She was the daughter of 30. Walter Martin Evans and 31. Veronica Swartwood.

He ended formal education Nov. 23, 1943. He joined the US Navy one day later on Nov. 24, 1943 to serve in WWII. This has always been considered amusing in the family since he never swam a stroke in his life. He served as a signalman second class petty officer. He served on LCS 11 (landing craft support). His tour started in Boston, went through the Panama Canal to San Diego, then to Hawaii, the Philippines and Japan. He always considered crossing the equator on the way to the Philippines a major event in his life. He was in Okinawa for 96 days before going to Pesacadores Islands where he was with a mine sweeper. He was in Sasabo, Amori, Tokyo, Japan and Shanghai, China. He was the third youngest on the ship since he was only 17 when he enlisted (there were two 16 year olds). He returned home in May of 1946, met Joanne Evans and were married a few months later in July.

Glen Davis trading cigarettes for a Japanese flag in Tokyo after World War II. The flag is now in the possession of Leo Titus Jr.

His first jobs after World War II were at the Johnson City Post Office and at his brother-in-law's gas station on Grand Avenue. He started work at the Endicott Johnson Scout Factory ("EJ's") in Johnson City sometime between 1946 and 1952 and worked there until about 1988. He operated a pullover machine in the Lasting Room. It was piece work that required he cut coupons off each rack of 12 pairs. Each process during the production had a different coupon value. At the end of the week he would turn in all of his coupons and that is how he got paid. He was very fast and every week he had more coupons that would fit in his box. He was so good at it that he was eventually promoted to supervisor of the Lasting Room.

He was an avid fisherman and still loves to bowl. He coached little league baseball. He is a huge fan of both the New York Mets and the Binghamton Mets (AA). He is also a coin collector. My (Leo Titus) favorite times with Otis are those when we go to visit him in Johnson City and stay up late in the kitchen. We always get a "hot pie" (pizza) from Brozzetti's Pizza. We sit at the kitchen table and either play cards, sort through old coins or Otis will show me some old coin or card tricks. His favorite pastime is sitting on the couch watching baseball (or any other sport). He can often be found wearing headphones listening to one game while he watches another on TV.

Recollections of Joanne Evans Davis (by Jennifer Sierzant Titus):

"I have so many fond memories of my grandmother. I was one of those fortunate children who have a strong bond with their grandparents. All of the women in my family were tough. There were no shrinking violets in the Davis line! In fact, I think that's one of the qualities my husband Leo admires in me.

I remember driving around Johnson City on hot summer days in my Grandma's butterscotch color Chevy Nova with black vinyl interior. It would get so hot you'd put towels on the seat to protect your "bickets" as my Grandma would say. I loved spending a week or two in the summer with my grandparents. Grandma and I would sit for hours on her front porch and read magazines. We loved reading magazines. To this day I love getting my monthly copy of Family Circle and I think of Grandma. And, my Grandma loved reading the tabloids. This was always a blast as a teenager (we did not buy these at home!).

Jennifer Titus and Joanne (Evans) Davis - 1991

I loved cooking with Grandma. Simple dinners and desserts. Sometimes we'd spend the whole afternoon planning and cooking a meal for when my Grandpa "Otie" would arrive home. My Grandma worked when my mom was young but she retired by the time I was growing up. She had worked in the Endicott Johnson Shoe Factory.

My Grandma loved bowling. She was in various leagues and won various trophies. She was a tall woman with brown hair and beautiful clear blue eyes. One of the saddest memories I have of my entire life is of her eyes. My Grandma developed breast cancer at around age 55. I remember the chemotherapy slowly draining the blue from her eyes. They no longer twinkled but were clear grey.

My grandma's best friend was her younger sister, Barbara. Although they lived very different lives (my Aunt remained single with no children) they were extremely close.

My Grandma and I didn't always talk a lot. This is not to say that we didn't talk (because at times we'd gab for hours) but we had a deep bond that did not require words."

Glen Otis Davis and Joanne (Evans) Davis

Children of Glen Davis and Joanne Evans are:

7 i. Sylvia Ann Davis, born Nov. 20, 1947 in Johnson City, New York; married (1) Thomas David Sierzant, 1968 in Johnson City, NY; married (2) Terry Teemley; married (3) Robert Allen Dunn in 2000.

ii. Glen Otis Davis, Jr., married Mary K. Adopted son: Nicholas Davis. Resided in Morganton, NC in 2003.

Generation No. 5

16. Austin Edward Titus (#913 Titus Genealogy), born June 1887 in San Angelo, Texas; died Dec. 20, 1959 in Brooklyn, New York. He was the son of 32. Silas Wright Titus and 33. Mary Louise Collins. He married 17. Helen Adelaide Timms 1914 in Brooklyn, NY. More biographical information and a photo is presented under his entry #913 in Section II.. Helen was born August 23, 1894 in Brooklyn, NY; died May 20, 1969. She was the daughter of 34. John H. Timms and 35. Elizabeth Murphy. She was born in 1904. Memories of Mary Elizabeth (Titus) O'Brien-Fritz: "Helen Timms Titus was a lovely and popular, beautiful young woman, an accomplished pianist who trained for the concert stage. Her mother was an elegant seamstress and Helen was always stylishly dressed. She met Austin as a teenager and married him at nineteen, he was ten years older. Her faith was an important part of her life, a daily communicant, she tried to spend an hour a day in prayer and meditation before the Blessed Sacrament. She was a devoted mother who championed her children's causes fearlessly. When her son Si was offered a full football scholarship to Princeton University, Helen took a Greyhound bus to Holy Cross College (it was the depression) a Jesuit school in MA to as the Dean why he couldn't give Si the same deal rather than let him go to a "Protestant Institution". He agreed. When her son George married after the war, housing was limited and he couldn't find an available apartment. She went to the Mayor's office and waited for days until he agreed to see her. She then asked him why he allowed a veteran to be deprived of housing. He found one.

Her life ws not an easy one, raising and educating five children during the depression, fighting her son's disease of polio and resulting disability. Then surviving her husband's joblessness in the '30's, in '41 sending her sons off to war and the nightmare of Si being involved in 5 invasions in the South Pacific and finally being severely wounded twice on Iwo Jima. Her great faith sustained her through it all and her legacy to her children was her implicit trust and love of God and her undivided love of them. The sweetest memories the children of Helen and Austin had are the picture of them singing a duet with her at the piano and he dancing with straw hat and cane.

LEO H. HEALY WEDS BROOKLYN GIRL (March 30, 1921)

At one of the most charming wedding ceremonies ever performed in the Church of the Holy Cross, Brooklyn, N. Y., Leo H. Healy, formerly of this city, was married to Miss Gladys A. Cummings of Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Francis Healy, a brother of the groom. The bridesmaid was Miss Betty Howard of New York, and the best man was Francis R. Kent of Worcester. The bride wore a traveling suit of brown tricotine, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in a suit of blue tricotine and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Seated in the sanctuary were twenty guests, friends of the groom. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Hotel ----Alpin, after which Mr. and Mrs. Healy left on a honeymoon trip to California. On their return they will live in Brooklyn, where the groom has an extensive law practice. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a Ruby pendant, and the best man and others received cuff links from the groom. The ushers were Arthur Mc-----th and Charles Brown of Brooklyn.

Excerpt from an autobiography by Eileen Ann Titus

"... I was very close to Grandma Healy growing up and to this day I miss her very much. She was quite the character and always "called a spade a spade". She had no problem being direct and telling you what was on her mind. She spoiled me rotten and I loved her for that. I often took the train into Brooklyn to visit her at her apartment on Ocean Avenue, near Prospect Park. We would always go out to dinner, Italian restaurants were my favorite. She taught me how to play poker and gin rummy. She took me on a cruise on The QEII with my Aunt Maureen. Several times we vacationed at the Grand old hotel The Monmouth Hotel in Spring Lake, New Jersey.

I loved her stories about falling in love with Grandpa Leo, she was so proud to be his wife! The wife of a judge. He always wanted her to look good and would let her buy beautiful clothes. Whenever she visited she would bring Enteman's Bakery cakes. What I remember most about Grandma Healy was that she had a heart of gold. Sadly, I do not have many memories of my other grandparents."

Grandma Healy (Anna Cummings)

Children of Leo Healy and Anna Cummings are:

9 i. Eileen Gertrude Healy, born Dec. 27, 1921 in Brooklyn, New York; married Austin Edward Titus Feb. 08, 1947 in Brooklyn, New York.

ii. Maureen Healy, married William Lynam.

20. Paul Izzo, born August 15, 1888 outside of Naples in Formoli or Casters, Italy; died June 15, 1946 in Saratoga Springs, New York. He was the son of 40. Frank Izzo and 41. Caterina. He married 21. Rufina Mary Etes on April 27th, 1919 in St. Peter's Church, Saratoga Springs, New York. The funeral was held from the residence at 105 W. Circular St. at 9:00 a.m. and at St. Peter's church at 9:30 a.m. He was buried in St. Peter's cemetery on West Avenue in Saratoga Springs. He worked on the Delaware and Hudson Railroad on the "Iron Gang". The Iron Gang worked laying the rails and tracks. It was hard labor. According to his granddaughter Ann Izzo: During the depression he went to the Adirondack Trust Bank to try to get work doing odd jobs for fifty cents. They told him they couldn't give him any work because he owned his own home.

21. Rufina Mary Etes, born March 30, 1898 in Saratoga Springs, NY (according to birth certificate); died Nov. 2, 1975 in Saratoga Springs, New York. She was the daughter of 42. Stefano Etes and 43. Maria Caputo. Her first language was Italian. She was granted a certificate of literacy Oct. 15th, 1925. According to her granddaughter Ann Izzo: She worked as a chamber maid at the Grand Union Motel on South Broadway in Saratoga. She stopped working by about 1960. Every time you would go to her house, she would send one of the Izzo kids to the store for donuts, cold cuts or some other food. She would push a plate full food in front of you and say "Manga Manga!" (Eat, Eat!). She wouldn't take no for an answer. Her favorite saying was "Many hands make light work". Every Wednesday night she would have dinner at her son Frank's house. She had a grape vine on the side of the house and loved to pick the grapes to make jelly. She didn't have a lot of money but would always slip you a dollar bill when nobody was looking.

Obituary: "Mrs. Rufina Izzo, 77, of 105 West Circular St., Saratoga Springs, died Sunday (Nov. 2, 1975) at Saratoga Hospital. Born March 30, 1896, in Saratoga Springs, she had been a life resident. 22. Arthur Ferdinand Zickgraf, ("Pappy") born Dec. 24, 1889 in Holt, Michigan; died Feb. 17, 1981 in Mason, Michigan. He was the son of 44. Lewis Zickgraf and 45. Mary Elizabeth Moldenhauer. He married 23. Mary Marguerite Myers ("Mimi") July 06, 1915 in Caro, Michigan. He graduated as a Civil Engineer at Michigan State College (then Michigan Agricultural College) in 1912. He started Wolverine Engineering Company specializing in concrete products. He liked to smoke a pipe and every morning he would have a bowl of oatmeal with prunes or prune juice and a big soft cookie. He is buried in Mason Cemetery in Mason, MI. According to the Mason Telephone Directory, he lived at 413 East Oak street in March of 1957. 23. Mary Marguerite Myers, born April 28, 1891 in Saginaw, Michigan; died April 15, 1971 in Lansing, Michigan. She was the daughter of 46. Osborne Alexander Myers and 47. Clara Marguerite Kildau.

When their daughter Aileen was dating Frank Izzo in college, Mimi and Pappy treated him like their own son. They would do his laundry and let him stay at their home. For two years they dated and Frank was treated like a king. One day Frank mentioned to Mimi and Pappy that he wanted to take Aileen to Saratoga to meet his parents. Mimi reportedly put her hand over her heart and exclaimed "MY GOD ARTHUR... THIS IS SERIOUS... DO SOMETHING!!"

Obituary: Mrs. Marguerite Zickgraf, 79, of 552 Hall, died today at a Lansing hospital. She was a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and a former teacher. Arthur Zickgraf and Marguerite Myers – before they were married.

Children of Arthur Zickgraf and Mary Myers are:

11 i. Aileen Meyers Zickgraf, born Dec. 13, 1921 in Mason, Michigan; married Frank Paul Izzo May 26, 1944 in St. Mary's Church, Grand Rapids, MI.

ii. June Arthuse Zickgraf, born May 27, 1917 in Mason, MI; married (1) Don McPherson Bef. 1941; married (2) Wayne Bullen June 24, 1944; born July 24, 1915.

24. Thomas Frank Sierzant, b. Jan., 1895. He was the son of 48. Frank Sierzant and 49. Anna Stanislaw. Came to American from Poland in the early 1900's (probably between 1911 and 1912). His parents had money and were able to send him to stay with a polish family in New York City that the family knew and that is where he met his wife Olga. He possibly came via Ellis Island. First moved to the Kennosha, Wisconsin area. Moved to the Binghamton, NY area some time after 1917 and before 1927 when he is listed in the Binghamton directory living on Columbus Street. He worked in Binghamton as shoe worker at the Endicott Johnson shoe factory. He married 25. Olga Dubanevich (or Dubanewicz). Olga was born about Sep., 1895 and came to US when she was 15 years old in about 1910. She went to live with the same polish family in New York City that Thomas Sierzant lived with. They went to Susquehanna, PA and were married April 18, 1915. Their sons John and Victor (Vincent) were born in Susquehanna, PA before they moved to Conosha, WI where there were other family relatives.

Information from Eileen (Sierzant) Laskoski: "... Rumor has it (rumor only) that he was a boot legger and left the Chicago area quite quickly and settled in Binghamton with a new opportunity at Endicott Johnson Shoe factory. He had a brother Tony who also followed him to the Triple cities area and lived in Endicott. He never married. My father only had his only brother John who died one day before my Mother. (Jan 1976) Very sad time for my Dad. My Grandfathers wife, Olga, was quite a woman. She died the year I was born, (1945) so I never got to know her. Pictures of her show she was a proper woman, drove a car (which women did not do in those days. She went to a seamstress school, I have a copy of the diploma which is in Polish."

Children of Thomas Sierzant and Olga are:

12 i. Vincent Sierzant, born Abt. 1917 in Near Kennoshia, Wisconsin; died Abt. 1986 in Johnson City, NY; married Veronica Jachimowicz in Probably Johnson City, NY.

ii. John Sierzant, died Bet. 1974 - 1975 in Johnson City, NY.

iii. Alphonso Sierzant, died at birth

From the Endicott Johnson Retirement booklet: WALTER JACHIMOWICZ - 34 Years

Walter Jachimowicz came to America in 1912 and found his first job in Jersey City, New Jersey. Disliking the machine trade, he left there and went to Scranton, Pa., where he worked for three years in the mines. In 1914, he was married and the added responsibility of a wife made him realize that he did not want to spend the remainder of his life underground for the small remuneration it offered.

Together with several other young, married couples, Walter came to Binghamton, applied for a job with Endicott Johnson and was hired on June 1, 1916 in the Victory Factory, where he remained until Sept. 1, 1950, when he retired.

"I am so thankful and grateful to EJ," Walter said, "and want to say God bless everyone who is a part of it ... particularly Charlie Johnson. We owe them for everything ... our home and without their help, we could never have raised our big family of fourteen healthy children."

He is proud of the record that he holds with the company where he maintained he ,never lost a day' in the 34 years of employment. The long established habit of getting up every day at a designated hour to go to work proved a strong issue with Walter, who declared, "For a whole six months after I retired, I got up at the same hour and started getting ready for work . . . and I thought for the first few months that I just couldn't get used to it ... but now, I am beginning to take things a bit easier on account of my health."

34. John Henry Timms, died Jan. 06, 1940. He married 35. Elizabeth Murphy. She was born in County Mayo, Ireland. She was the daughter of 70. James Murphy and 71. Bridget Ansbro. John's father owned a livery stable and rented hearses and horses to local undertakers. John worked helping his father and determined that the undertaker business was a lucrative way of life. He became an undertaker in Brooklyn, NY. Elizabeth learned to be a seamstress and came to America at the age of 13. She got a job sewing expensive dresses for wealthy ladies. There was a bad flu epidemic in New York and the undertaking business was very busy. John had trouble keeping up with the demand for coffins. He made the coffins and Elizabeth sewed the linings. They were very successful and were eventually able to move to a nicer part of town called Park Slope. They bought a beautiful home on 8th Ave in Brooklyn. They liked entertaining friends and family. One person that was a frequent guest was a popular Irish singer of the time named Morton Downey.

Memories written by Mary Elizabeth, August 2003: "Elizabeth Murphy Timms ("Lizzie") was as Irish as they come. She arrived in this country with her 3 sisters Maggie, Kate and Annie and little else. Her brother James and her mother came later. She was thirteen and an accomplished seamstress. She got a position at Loeser's Dept Store on Fulton and DeKalb Streets downtown Brooklyn. She was talented enough to design and drape a gown (there wasn't any "ready to wear" fashions then) on a customer and then sew it without using a pattern.

When she and John married her goal was to live as close to Prospect Park as possible. The neighborhood was called The Park Slope and the climb went from 1st Ave to 9th. They started by living above their mortuary on 3rd Ave, under the "El" (elevated train) and over the years made it to 8th Ave., one block from the park (High Society).

"Mama" (she refused to be called grandmother) was a character with a one of a kind quick with and Irish wisdom. She loved to regale the men in the family with off-color jokes, or drink anyone under the table. (She made bathtub beer during Prohibition). She hated to cook. She loved to travel and took her granddaughter Virginia to Ireland when she was 13. On board ship she removed her wedding ring "to see how many men would notice her". On arrival she found the nearest tavern on the waterfront no less so she could introduce Virginia to a "real glass" of beer – Irish Stout. When they visited the relatives in County Mayo, Virginia was told "to make her own" when asked for the bathroom (meaning the outhouse). Mama had a repertoire of one liners, her favorite one: "Bill O'Dwyer (then Irish Mayor of NYC) has nothing on me."

Children of John Timms and Elizabeth Murphy are:

17 i. Helen Adelaide Timms, born August 23, 1894 in Brooklyn, NY; died May 20, 1969; married Austin Edward Titus 1914 in Brooklyn, NY.

ii. Elizabeth Timms "Bunny", married Edward Wynne. According to Mary Elizabeth Titus, Elizabeth was a lovely, friendly, very funny lady who was much loved by her family. She had a lovely singing voice which was sadly lost as a result of an adult adenoid and tonsil removal. She and her husband Ed had six children, one every year. He was elected Judge in Brooklyn who served many terms. Three of their boys became attorneys. Their children:

a. Edward, b. 1928
b. Mary Ann, b. 1929 m. Clifford Turbitt.
c. Joseph, b. 1930
d. Elizabeth, b. 1931
e. John, b. 1932
f. George, b. 1933

iii. Joseph Timms – became an undertaker like his father. Attended Holy Cross and Fordham University.

iv. George Timms

36. Jeremiah F. Healy, born 1846; died 1929 in Worcester, Massachusetts. He was the son of 72. Dennis Healy and 73. Margaret O'Raurk. He married 37. Nellie F. Higgins. Based on bits and pieces of information found in an old Healy scrap book, I believe Jeremiah Healy may have been born in Toronto, Canada. There are some property taxes and newspaper clippings suggesting that his father lived there and that he had a sister living there. No information regarding his actual place of birth has been found. Tax records dated 1855 and 1856 show that Jeremiah's father lived in Toronto at that time. Specifically, in the Ward of St. Lawrence. Based on newspaper clippings from Worcester, MA, it appears that Jeremiah lived most of his adult life in Worcester, MA. The scrapbook has several documents that suggest he was politically active in local Worcester politics. Articles mentioning Jeremiah found in the old Healy scrap book are presented below. He is buried in Shrewsbury, Massachusetts. 37. Nellie F. Higgins, born 1855; died 1936 in Worcester, Massachusetts. She is buried in Shrewsbury, Massachusetts.

Worcester Relatives and Friends to See Rev. F. J. Healy Ordained

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Healy, 20 Dewey Street, left Worcester yesterday noon for New York, accompanied by relatives and friends from Worcester, Detroit, Boston and Toronto. Mr. Healy entertained Monday night, Hon. J. J. Kelley, a member of the dominion parliament, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Healy, yesterday, to New York, where they will attend the ordination of their son, Francis J. Healy, which will be today in St. John the Baptist Church, Brooklyn. Bishop McDonnell will officiate. Misses Clara M., Gertrude A., and Leo H. Healy and Dennis J. Healy of East Brookfield were also in the party.

J. F. HEALY VISITS WORCESTER ACQUAINTANCES

J. F. Healy of Brooklyn, formerly a resident of the West side and for 20 years a member of the Democratic city committee, is renewing Worcester acquaintances. His daughters, Misses Rena N. and A. Gertrude are teachers in the Brooklyn public schools there. His sons are Rev. Francis J. Healy of St. Gregory's church, Brooklyn, and Leo H. Healy.

The latter attended Holy Cross and Fordham and is now chief counsel for Harris & McGill, one of the largest shipping corporations in New York. He took an active part in government service during the war, and was appointed a speaker for the National Security League, and toured the United States. While a resident of Worcester, Leo won a declamation championship.

Obituary of _____ Healy, sister of Jeremiah F. Healy Article is damaged and several parts are missing – date unknown.

------- {Mr. Denis J.} Healy has received -------- from Toronto, Canada, about ----- death of his only {living sister} ------- Healy, which occurred ------- morning. On account of -------- afeebled condition he was unable to take the long journey to attend her funeral. His brother, Jeremiah F. Healy and daughter, Miss ------- of Worcester on receipt of the {news}---- immediately started for Canada. ----- Healy was the daughter of ----- Major Denis Healy of her majesty's 41st Regt. Of foot, and ----aret O'Ruark, both of Killarney, Co. Kerry, Ireland where Miss Healy was born. She was for many years soprano soloist in St. Michael's cathedral, Toronto and fifty years ago was considered one of the leading vocalists of the city. She showed remarkable vocal ability at a very early age and was a pupil of M. Labitsky, grandson of the great composer and Herr Sebastian Klining----------, Toronto. She was always -----lling to give her services for any -----ritable purpose and sang in concerts in most of the cities and large towns of western Canada. She was --------enty years old. Out of a family ----- eight brothers and sisters only two are now living, Jeremiah F. Healy of Worcester and Denis J. of East Brookfield. One thing that is ----ery consolatory to Mr. Healy is that in a visit she made him at East Brookfield about eight years ago, at the residence of James M. Kimbal, and wife, of whom she was a guest at ------ - time, Miss Healy and her three brothers sang her favorite quartet "---- far in many lands I've wandered" into a graphophone and the record still remains in the family, so at any time he can hear her voice, also the voice of his dead brother.

Children of Jeremiah Healy and Nellie Higgins are:

18 i. Leo Harold Healy, born Abt. 1894 in Worcester, MA; married Anna Gladys Cummings March 13, 1921 in Church of the Holy Cross, Brooklyn, New York.

ii. Francis De Sales Joseph Healy, born June 09, 1883; died Dec. 10, 1940. See Biographical articles in Section III.

iii. Clara M. Healy, born 1881; died 1939.

iv. A. Gertrude Healy, born 1886; died 1969.

He settled in Saratoga Springs New York after coming to America before 1898. He was a flagman for the Delaware and Hudson Railroad in Saratoga. As a flagman, he would keep pedestrians, horses and vehicles from crossing the tracks when trains were coming through. According to his grandson Frank Izzo, Stephen's name was Izzo when he came to America. Izzo was pronounced "eetz-oh". When he was asked his name upon arriving in America the person writing down wrote "Etes" since that is what he heard Stephen say. The name remained Etes ever since. He was the son of 84. Giovanni Izzo and 85. Mary Santo Aroangelo. He married 43. Maria Caputo in Italy. She was born in Formicola, Italy in 1863. She died Saratoga Springs, NY in 1937. According to the 1920 City Directory of Saratoga Springs, NY, they lived at 17 South Franklin St. One of their children was actually born on a ship enroute to America. Since we know their son Anthony was born in 1895, they must of come to America in 1895 or before.

The Necrology of Sister Mary Sabina

Sister Mary Sabina, Veronica. Mary Kobus, was born seventy years ago in Scranton, Pennsylvania, where her father was employed as a Miner. She was baptized at Sacred Heart Church. She was one of 6 of Joseph and Mary Duch who followed that time the path of so many migrants from Poland. When ? young girl, her family moved to Binghamton, New York, where she attended St. Stanislaus Kostka school and from where she left for the convent on July 6, 1921.

During the five years in the aspirancy, Veronica completed her eighth grade and pursued high school studies. She began her religious 11516 as a postulant in 1926 and after her initial religious aryl teacher training became an elementary school teacher. On August 12, 1934, Sister Mary Sabina pronounced her final vows. That Sep. she was enrolled in the School of Nursing of Mt. St. Mary's Hospital in Niagara Falls, New York. She became a registered nurse in 19;37.

She pursued her nursing career in Felician Institutions. Among these were the Immaculate Heart of Mary Home, Toronto Canada, St. Rita's Home and the Felician Sisters Infirmary. After the closing of St. Rita's she assumed the duties of a staff nurse in the Felician Sisters Infirmary. After her major surgery in March 1978 she remained in the infirmary as a patient. She was a nurse at heart. Even as a patient she would don her white habit and ask to help at lighter tasks,

Perhaps the greatest thrill of her life was the privilege of a pilgrimage to the Holy Land in 1976, the fiftieth year of leer religious life, a trip that was graciously arranged by her friends. Sister Mary Sabina received vary pious upbringing at home and continued to deepen it in her religious life. She had a gift of piety that led her through God's mysterious ways. Especially in period of aridity she sought expert spiritual guidance.
She was always a hard-working nun. She did not shirk difficult tasks and was willing to sacrifice time and energy to ease the burden of others.

Conscientious and dedicated in her nursing profession had a good influence on those with whom she came in contact in her apostolate. In her letters to her family, friends, mud. acquaintances she had a way of inspiring any' exhorting. During her life she had personal difficulties and a generous share of suffering. She was sensitive to them and endured them patiently preferring to shed tears in seclusion rather than to complain. As a nurse she was conscious of her deteriorating physical condition of terminal cancer and prayed so much harder to prepare her soul for the meeting with her Spouse. She accepted God's krill with humility. Purified by intense suffering she died very peacefully in the Villa Maria Infirmay on Sunday, Feb. 25, 19791 at 5125 in the morning.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Anna Jachimowicz of Binghamton and also by nephews and nieces. Let us pray that, healed of the scared of human weakness through God's mercy, her soul may take flight to the heavenly home of Our Father where there is no more suffering but joy, praise and everlasting bliss: May God grant her peace Sister Mary Donate Feb. 27, 1979

56. Aaron Davis and his wife 57. Elizabeth "Lizzie" were born in Wales and came to America before Nov. 1894 when their son 28. Alvin Lamar Davis was born in Shamokin, PA. Aaron fought in the Spanish American War. They lived in a Welch mining community in Pennsylvania.

Death of Mrs. Silas Titus

A telegram received in this city yesterday, announced the death, at Brooklyn, of Mrs. Silas Titus, mention of whose dangerous illness has been made in these columns. Two weeks ago, Mrs. Titus left her home to attend the funeral of a grandchild, whose parents reside in the city of Brooklyn. At the time of her departure she seemed to be in usual health, but not many days later were developed the symptoms of fatal illness.

Mrs. Titus was the daughter of the late Thomas McCarthy, and was born in the village of Salina in 1818. Her life has been passed in this city, except a few years in early married life, which were spent in Detroit, where her husband, Co. Silas Titus, was engaged in business. It was her rare experience to witness the growth of a great city from the humblest of hamlets, and it was her good fortune to enjoy during a long life, the admiration and esteem of an unusually wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Titus was one of 12 children, nine of whom are still living. Of this number, her brothers, Hon. Denis McCarthy, Robert McCarthy, John MCCarthy, and a sister, Mrs. Matthew Murphy, reside in this city. It is a remarkable fact that in the demise of Mrs. Titus, death enters a circle of children which has been unbroken for 60 years. Mrs. Titus leaves two sons, Silas Titus Jr., of Brooklyn, and Robert Titus of this city.

Children of Silas Titus and Eliza McCarthy are:

32 i. Silas Wright Titus, born Jan. 18, 1849 in Syracuse, New York; died Jan. 07, 1922 in Brooklyn, New York; married Mary Louise Collins Bet. 1879 - 1880.

JOHN M'CARTHY PASSES AWAY AFTER ILLNESS OF THREE YEARS
Oldest Native Resident of Syracuse, Long Engaged in Business and Social Life – Born in Present First Ward

John McCarthy, the oldest native resident of Syracuse and for many years active in the business and social life of the city, died at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, No. 210 Green Street, from cerebral hemorrhages extending over a period of three years. He had been confined to the home for the past year. The funeral will be held at his late home at 3 o'clock to-morrow morning and a half hour later at St. Johns Cathedral.

Mr. McCarthy was born in what was then the town of Salina, but now the First ward, in 1822. He was the son of Thomas McCarthy, who came to this country in 1808 from Ireland. His mother was Percy Soule of Dalton, Mass. His father engaged in business in Salina in 1812 and soon became the leading business man of the community. Mr. McCarthy attended the district school in Salina, Onondaga Academy from which he graduated in 1837, and later Georgetown University. Upon completing his education he began work as clerk in his father's store. His brother Dennis McCarthy, at that time had served eight years as clerk. In 1835 the latter became partner in the firm.

The deceased continued as clerk until 1815, when his father sold out to his two sons. After continuing the store for four years they moved it in 1849 to the Empire Block. In 1853 Dennis McCarthy purchased his brother's interest and the latter engaged in the lumbering business, opening the only planning mill in the city, which still stands in the rear of the Old Chenango Valley Railroad station. This enterprise was also sold to his brother and Silas Titus, after which Mr. McCarthy with Mr. Mathew Murphy, entered the hardware business. Their store was located on the site at present occupied by Bacon, Chappell & Co. After eight years his interest in this business was sold to Mr. Murphy. After disposing of his hardware business Mr. McCarthy again engaged in the dry goods business with his brother, continuing until 1888 when he retired to take charge of the estate of his son-in-law, Theodore Dissel, to which he gave his attention until he retired from active life a few years ago.

Mr. McCarthy was a member of the Board of Education for eight years. During his last term as a member of the board the High School Building in West Genesee street was built. He was a staunch Democrat, but the only office he ever held outside that of school commissioner was canal collector in the First ward. During the Civil War he made many public addresses to promote the enlisting of volunteers.

He was baptized at St. John the Baptist Church, where for twenty years he was a member of the choir. He was a trustee of the church until 1888. In 1846 he married Elizabeth C. Toole of New York, who, with ten children and thirty-six grandchildren survive..."

According to a brief history written Osborne Alexander Myers, Alexander's grandson, Alexander and Rebecca emigrated to Tuscarawas County, Ohio sometime after their marriage in 1810. They bought government land and settled on it. They called it the Logan Homestead. According to the book "A Listing of Entrymen on Lands in Tuscarawas Co, Ohio" by L. Richard Kocher, on Sep. 21, 1815 Alexander purchased 160 acres of land in the southwest corner of section 23 of Perry Township. Alexander died there in 1838. Rebecca died there almost forty years later. They are both buried in a small cemetery on Titus road (relation to the TITUS family in Section II of this book has not been determined) in Tuscarawas Co., OH. The name of the cemetery is the Engle Cemetery. The following biography was written by Alexander's grandson, 46. Osborne Alexander Myers:

Logan-Bothwell Family History. Alexander Logan and Rebecca Bothwell were married in Maryland in the year 1793 [Date is wrong since Alexander was only eight years old in 1793 and marriage certificate in the Maryland Archives shows marriage on April 17, 1810] . He was of Scotch descent and she of English descent, being related to a distinguished family in England by same name, Bothwell. Rebecca Bothwell was a "planters" daughter of some wealth, and possessed what was then termed as good education, obtained, as she related to her grandson (the writer) in private schools.

She and her husband emigrated to Tuscarawas Co., Ohio in 1800 [probably between 1810 and 1820] on the Coshocton Road, near "Hedge's Tavern", she purchased from the United States Government 640 acres of land, then a virgin forest, timbered with oak, poplar, hickory, sweet chestnut, and other species of timber. On this homestead they built a log cabin with ax and hatchet. They began life there together and cleared most of the land and built houses on most of the same. In one of these little frame cottages of two rooms and a "fireplace" the writer of this article was born, as was his sister Amanda.

To Alexander and Rebecca Logan were born five sons: Jesse, John, Asbury, William, and Joseph; and three daughters; Malinda, Elizabeth, and Harriet A. All of these long since deceased. Malinda married a Mr. Platt, Elizabeth married Asa Titus, and Harriet A. married David Meyers.

Alexander Logan died at his home on the homestead mentioned, and Rebecca Bothwell Logan, his wife, lived on this same homestead until the close of her life in 1876. The writer of this article seemed to be one of her favorite grandsons and he being with her much until he was eighteen years old, and to the close of her life, he obtained from her the facts as here related."

514. Nehemiah Reynolds, born April 08, 1709 in Greenwich, CT; died Aft. 1784 in Dutchess County, NY. He was the son of 1028. Joseph Reynolds and 1029. Abigail Finch. He married 515. Abigail Palmer Abt. 1730 in Greenwich, CT. (I have not been able to find documentation to positively connect this Nehemiah Reynolds to our Sarah Reynolds that married Silas Titus. Several references state that Sarah Reynolds was the daughter of Nehemiah Reynolds. The only Nehemiah Reynolds that I have been able to identify in the area of Dutchess Co., NY where they were likely to marry is the Nehemiah listed above. However, all of the information that I have been able to find regarding this Nehemiah, there is no mention of a daughter Sarah. The only Sarah Reynolds that I have found that was born about the same time as our Sarah Reynolds was the daughter of Josiah Reynolds (Jonathan, Jonathan, John) and Barbara Briggs. This Sarah Reynolds was born May 21, 1742 which is close to the date of birth of the Sarah Reynolds that married Silas Titus. It is possible that Josiah is our Sarah's father and not Nehemiah, but for now, based on other references, I believe that Sarah is the daughter of Nehemiah Reynolds, born 1709. Hopefully further research will confirm the correct parentage of our Sarah Reynolds.

The Nine Partners Monthly Meeting records (available online at Ancestry) list a Nehemiah Reynolds as having been disciplined for marrying outside of the faith, then reinstated as a member of Nine Partners Monthly Meeting in 1781, and remarrying in 1787 to Austris Southworth. Nehemiah Reynolds is listed as a Revolutionary War soldier, page 93, Reynolds Family Annual, year 1916. He is listed as a Sergeant in Captain Jonathan Whitney's Company, Ninth Regiment, Militia, under General Wooster, 1776-1777, after two months, three days of service. Further Reference to verify this: John and Sarah Reynolds Genealogy, page 90; D.A.R. Patriot Index, page 565; and "Connecticut in the Revolution". 515. Abigail Palmer, died 1743 in Dutchess County, NY.

Children of Nehemiah Reynolds and Abigail Palmer are:

257 i. Sarah Reynolds, born Abt. 1741 in Nine Partners, Dutchess County, New York; married Silas Titus Bef. 1772.
ii. Nehemiah Reynolds, born Bet. 1732 - 1740 in Greenwich, CT; married (1) Mary Armstrong in Dutchess County, NY; married (2) Anstress Southworth May 24, 1787.

516. Samuel Starr, born July 28, 1732 in Danbury, Connecticut; died Oct. 18, 1770 in Ridgebury, Connecticut. He was the son of 1032. Samuel Starr and 1033. Abigail Dibble. He married 517. Ann April 01, 1752. She was born Nov. 05, 1731; died July 24, 1788 in Ridgebury, Connecticut. The following excerpt is from page 428 of "A History of the Starr Family", by Burgis Pratt Starr, 1879:

"... lived in Ridgebury Society, town of Ridgefield, Ct. Its locality will be better understood by the following memorial, signed by himself and two neighbors, presented to the General Assembly, May 1759; 'That we are owners of 256 acres of land adjoining the west line of Danbury; that we live on said land, are obliged to do duty in Ridgefield, it being 10 miles distant, and a very bad road, so that it is impracticable for us ever to attend divine worship at R., nor have any benefit of schools there; ... we have ever attended at D., whose meeting house is but about 4 miles, and there being a school at Mill Plain, a scant miles from us, and the road or war to D. being very good. ... pray to be annexed to Danbury.' It was not granted.

Feb. 16, 1761, he signed a petition for a new Society at the north end of town of Ridgefield, to be called Ridgebury. He was attacked of small pox, and, fearing he should nor recover, sent for his brother-in-law, Eli Mygatt, to make his will, to whom, while standing by the fence outside, he – within the house – dictated his wishes. Mr. Mygatt then had it drawn in regular form, agreeable to the directions, and it was properly executed Oct 10, 1770. Soon after he became delirious, got hold of the document, tore off his name, and otherwise mutilated it. These facts being proven before the General Assembly, they 'Resolved that the mutilated paper be declared his last Will and Testament, and ordered the estate settled accordingly.' He d. Oct. 18, 1770."

Children of Samuel Starr and Ann are:

258 i. Noah Starr, born March 24, 1753 in Ridgbury, Connecticut; died Jan. 06, 1782 in Ridgebury, Connecticut; married Sarah Keeler August 11, 1773 in Ridgefield, Connecticut.

2058. Joseph Finch He was the son of 4116. John Finch. He married 2059. Elizabeth Austin. She was the daughter of 4118. John Austin. Child of Joseph Finch and Elizabeth Austin is:

1029 i. Abigail Finch, born 1660; died Bet. 1717 - 1726; married Joseph Reynolds 1698.

2064. Capt. Josiah Starr, born Sep. 01, 1657 in Charlestown, Massachusetts; died Jan. 04, 1715/16 in Danbury, Connecticut. He was the son of 4128. Thomas Starr and 4129. Rachel Harris. He married first in April 1672 to Elizabeth Hicks, daughter of John Hicks and Herodias Long. She was 16 years old when she married. He married second 2065. Rebeckah Whitney in Prob. Long Island. She was born Bet. 1665 - 1666; died July 15, 1739 in Danbury, Connecticut. The following excerpt is from page 268 of "A History of the Starr Family", by Burgis Pratt Starr, 1879:

"... it seems quite possible that their widowed mother had removed with the younger members of her family [Josiah was 3 years old when his father died], to Long Island, thinking perhaps, to better their condition, for great inducements were held out to settlers there, and many families did emigrate thither from eastern Mass.

and Conn. It is evident that his riches, or his farm stock at least, did not increase rapidly, for in 'an account of the vallvation of the estates of thee inhabitants of ye town of Hampstead on Long Island is as followeth, Oct. 11, 1683, Josias Starr, heads 01, oxen 04, cowes 05, two year oulds 02, year oulds 04, hoggs 01 horses and majors 02.' But for some reason it appears he was not contented to remain in Hempstead, for in 1693, in company with several of his neighbors, they cross L. I. sound, travel back some 25 miles into the country, and locate at Danbury, Conn., soon after the first settlement of that town. Josiah Starr was one of the seven Patentees named in the grant, made 1702, giving town privileges to Danbury, and was elected the first Town Clerk, the second Justice of the Peace, afterward surveyor, etc.; in 1710 commisioned Lieut, and in 1713 Captain of the first company or "train band"; for three years was Justice of Fairfield Co.; in 1702 elected Deputy to the 'General Court,' a position of great honor and distinction, to which he was annually chosen as long as he lived.

Thus he appears to have been one of the leading and prominent citizens of the town, and a large landholder therein. He d. Jan. 4, 1715-16; was buried in the ancient burial-place in the rear of the present Court House. An upright slab of gray native granite marks the sunken grave, the inscription nearly obliterated by the storms of more than 160 years, and is the oldest gravestone erected to the memory of a Starr in New England... He was probably married on Long Island. There is no record, however, of it..."

Children of Josiah Starr and Rebeckah Whitney are:

2072. Samuel Keeler, born Abt. 1655 in Prob. Norwalk, Connecticut; died May 19, 1713. He was the son of 4144. Ralph Keeler. He married 2073. Sarah St. John March 10, 1681/82.

2073. Sarah St. John, born Jan. 18, 1659/60 in Norwalk, Connecticut; died April 14, 1740 in Ridgefield, Connecticut. She was the daughter of 4146. Mark St. John and 4147. Elizabeth Stanley.

According to "Ralph Keeler of Nowalk Connecticut" v.1, by Wesley B. Keeler, 1980: "Samuel took part in the 'direful swamp fight' of 19 Dec. 1675 in which men from the colonies of Massachusetts, Plymouth and Connecticut successfully attacked a strongly fortified encampment of Indians near Narragansett Bay. The Indians were led by Phillip, sachem of the Wampanoags, in an uprising against the colonists known as King Phillip's War.

For his services, Samuel received from the town 'one parcel of land lying upon Clapboard Hill, so called, containing twelfe acres more or less.'

Samuel and his two brothers were involved in efforts to establish a new town to the north, Now Ridgefield. Samuel and Ralph signed a 1697 petition to the General Assembly in Hartford asking permission to buy land from the Indians. A committee was named to study the proposal but little was accomplished, apparently, because a new petition, signed by Samuel, Ralph and John, was presented to the General Assembly in 1706. The petition was finally approved in May 1708 and 20,000 acres bounded on the south of Nowalk, on the north by Danbury and on the west by New York, was purchased 30 Sept. 1708 for one hundred pounds. Samuel's brothers were no longer on the list of petitioners, but his two oldest sons, Samuel and Joseph, had taken their place. The General Assembly decreed 13 Oct. 1709 that the new settlement should be 'an intire township of itself, and shall be called and known by the name of Ridgfield (the original spelling).'

Before moving to Ridgefield, Samuel represented Norwalk as deputy to the General Assembly in 1701, 1703, 1704, 1706 and 1709. An inventory of Samuel's estate was presented in court 17 June 1713 and was recorded in Sep. 1717. It was valued at 1,022 pounds. His land was divided among his five sons."

Children of Samuel Keeler and Sarah St. John are:

1036 i. Joseph Keeler, born Abt. 1683 in Norwalk, Connecticut; died Nov. 29, 1757 in Ridgefield, Connecticut; married Elizabeth Whitney 1705 in Norwalk, Connecticut.

v. Timothy Keeler, born Abt. 1695.

2074. John Whitney, born Bef. 1647; died Abt. 1720 in Norwalk, Connecticut. He was the son of 4148. Henry Whitney. He married 2075. Elizabeth Smith, daughter of 4150. Richard Smith, March 17, 1674/75 in Norwalk, Connecticut. The date of her death is unknown, but it was after April 3, 1741 when her son John Whitney provided for her future support in a codicil to his will. According to "The Whitney Family of Connecticut" by S. Whitney Phoenix (1878), he settled with his father in Norwalk, Connecticut. He millwright and miller. Phoenix cites several town records:

> "At a towne meting desember 27th 1677. At ye aforesaid meting it was voted and agreed on between the town and the miller, John Whitne, that the towns men are to carry their corne to the mill vpon the third and sixt dayes of the weak, commonly called Tuesday & Fryday, which days he is to Attend to grinde in & if the sayd John can clere the mill of the corne that is brought in the aforesaid two days, or before, then the Rest of the dayes of the ye week he may take to atend his own ocations, but if he cannot clere the mille of the corne seasonably brought in, he must clere it before he leaues."

He built a fulling-mill at Norwalk and gave it to his son John Whitney on April 14, 1707. His widow was a member of the First Congregational Church in Norwalk in 1725.

Children of John Whitney and Elizabeth Smith are:

4128. Dr. Thomas Starr, born Bet. 1615 - 1616 in Ashford, Kent, England; died Nov. 26, 1658 in Charlestown, Massachusetts. He was the son of 8256. Dr. Comfort Starr and Elizabeth Mitchell. He married 4129. Rachel Harris Abt. 1639. She died Aft. 1658. Dr. Thomas Starr was a prominent doctor in Plymouth Colony in the 1600's. There are several references to him in the early records of the colony. There are two books that document some of these records: "Early Starrs in Kent and New England" by Hosea Starr Ballou, 1944; and "A History of the Starr Family" by Burgis Pratt Starr, 1879. Some interesting historical records are presented below:

He fought in the Pequot War of 1637 and served as the surgeon. "... Dr. Thomas Starr, 'chirurgeon,' was Thomas Starr, surgeon, then in his twenty-second year, born in 1615 at Ashford, Co. Kent, England, son of the distinguished surgeon, Dr. Comfort Starr (1589-1659), with whom the young surgeon was living on the estate at what is now Harvard Square, Cambridge, which his father had bought of William Pantry (Peyntree)..." "... The descendants of Dr. Thomas Starr were granted 400 acres for his services in the Pequot War..."

On March 6, 1637/38 the following entry was recorded:

"... Thomas Starr being accused for speiking against the orders of the Court about swine & the same pved that hee said the law was against god's law, and hee would not obey it; so hee was committed & enjoyned to acknowledge his fault the 14th at the Gen'all Court, & was fined 201, & to give security for his fine, or pay the same before his releasement." Thirteen days late on March 19th, 1637/38 the court record reads: "... The fine of Thomas Starr was moderated to 51, wch is to bee discounted out of his wages for the voyage against the Pecoits..."

On Nov. 25, 1639 Dr. Thomas Starr sold property to Andrew Hallet:

"... Memorand That Mr. Thomas Starr of Duxborrow doth acknowledge that for and in consideracon of the sume of tenn pounds Sterl, fiue pounds whereof is in hand payd & thither fiue is to be payd the xxvth March next by Mr. Andrew Hellet [Hallet] of Plymouth Hath freely "& absolutely bargained and sould vnto said Andrew Hellet One frame of a house wth a chimney to be sett vp and thacked in Yarmouth in the place appointed and seventeen acres of vpland in two divisions and twelue acres of Marsh & meddow vnto the said house and meadstead belonging in Yarmouth aforesaid... The frame of the said house is to be made & set up with a chimney and to be thacked studded and latched (daubing expected) by William Chase who has agreed withal and payd for the doing thereof by the said Thomas Starr before the bargaine was made with Mr. Hellet and so assigned our to him..."

On May 15th, 1648, another entry is found in the record regarding Dr. Thomas Starr which also mentions a "Captain Standish", who I assume is Captain Miles Standish of the Mayflower:

"... for the division of lands in Yarmouth, it was ordered that Mr. Starr [Dr. Thomas Starr], Wm. Nichorsone, and Rt [Robert] Dennis shall be joined to the committees for the present year, and thence after by the town; ... and if any difference arise which they cannot compose themselves, they shall repair to Captain Standish for direction..."

Hosea Starr Ballou suggests in his book that Dr. Thomas Starr practiced medicine "chiefly in the families of relatives and friends in affluent circumstances. Among these may be mentioned first Mrs. Faithfull Rouse (Suretrust Starr), aunt of Dr. Thomas Starr and sister of Dr. Comfort Starr. She settled there as early as 1641 and died there 8 Jan. 1685, aged about 86 years." He also served as clerk of the writs which is a court officer. There is a document with his signature, written in June of 1658, still on file in the Court Files of Middlesex County. This is the only known sample of Dr. Thomas Starr's handwriting in the form of a signature and date. He died less than six months after signing that document on Nov. 26, 1658. Hosea Starr Ballou suggests his death was unexpected since his last will was very short and written by "the famous" Richard Brown.

The Last will of Mr. Thomas Starr of Charlestowne Deseased the 26 of : 9 mo. 1658
1 ffirst hee willed that his wife should bee soull executrix
2 hee wild that his eldest Sunn shold have a Dobell portion
3 that his Sonn ... should have his Bookes nott naming any Sunn butt him that fooled his Caling wittnis to this Richard Brown

Two inches below the signature of Richard Brown, Thomas' father, Dr. Comfort Starr, 71 years old, wrote the following:

First I understand by Bookes, that my Son meant only Phisical & Chirurgical Bookes
2d According to my remembrance his wife should have the one halfe of his estate
Comfort Starr

Another entry is in the General Court in Boston on the same day:

... Wheras Mr Thomas Starre, deceased, hauing left a desolate widow and eight smale children, was ye chirurgeon of one of the companies yt went against the Pequotts, in ansr to the request of seuerall gentn on yt behalfe, the Court judgeth it meete to graunt fower hundred acres of land to sajd widow and children, & doe heerby impower ye Tresurer [Mr. Richard Russell of Charlestown] & Capt Norton to make sale or otherwise to dispose of the sajd lands as may best conduce to ye benefit of the widow & children as they shall see meete. (Massachusetts Bay Records, vol. 4, pt. 1, p. 355)

4144. Ralph Keeler, born Abt. 1613 in England; died Oct. 1672. According to "Ralph Keeler of Norwalk Connecticut" v.1 by Wesley B. Keeler, 1980, he was probably the son of Ralph Keeler, "yeoman, who was living in Lawford, County Essex, in 1600." Ralph came to America about 1635 with his brother Walter. They settled in Norwalk, CT. In 1645 he was listed as a chimney viewer in Hartford. "His name appears in the Colonial Records, 1647:'Nicholas Gynigns, for miscaridge, beating of a cow of Ralf Keeler's' and in 1648: 'in the action of slander btwene John Webb, plaintiff, and Ralph Keeler, defendant, the Jury finds for the defendant.' In 1650, Ralph signed for the 'planting of Norwalk.' It is not certain when he went there from Hartford, but he is listed among the 'Ludlow Agreement Settlers – 1650' (Selleck's Norwalk), making him one of the original proprietors.

We know Ralph was in Norwalk in 1653. The town records contain this entry for 18 Dec. 1653: 'Agreede by the Townsmen about Mstr. Hanford's house with Ralph Keeler and Walter Haite as followeth, viz: Ralph Keeler is to fell all the timber, and hewe what is to be hewe, and frame all…' (Hall's Norwalk)."

The identity of Ralph's first wife, the mother of his children is unknown. His second wife was Sarah Whelpley, widow of Henry Whelpley.

Ralph's will is dated August 20, 1672. He states that his age was 59 years "or thereabouts". He bequeathed to "my loving wife Sarah Keeler the south end of my dwelling house to live and dwell in during the rest of her life or while she is a widow and twenty bushels of corn for her use as follows: fiveteen bushels of wheat and five bushels of Indian to be paid her by my two sons Samuel and Jonah yearly…" His land was divided among his sons. His daughters Elizabeth and Rebecca each received 20 pounds. The entire estate was valued at 366 pounds.

Children of Ralph Keeler are:

2072 i. Samuel Keeler, born Abt. 1655 in Prob. Norwalk, Connecticut; died May 19, 1713; married Sarah St. John March 10, 1681/82.
ii. Ralph Keeler, born Bef. 1650.
iii. John Keeler, born Bef. 1650.

iv. Isabel Keeler, born Bef. 1650; married Thomas Morehouse; born in Fairfield, Connecticut.
v. Rebecca Keeler, born Bet. 1649 - 1650; married (1) Benjamin Turney; born Abt. 1645; died Bef. 1699; married (2) John Hull Sep. 21, 1699 in Wallingford.
vi. Elizabeth Keeler, born July 17, 1673; married James Pickett; born in Salem, Massachusetts; died 1702.
vii. Jonah Keeler

4146. Mark St. John He married 4147. Elizabeth Stanley. She was the daughter of Timothy Stanley and Elizabeth. Child of Mark St. John and Elizabeth Stanley is:

2073 i. Sarah St. John, born Jan. 18, 1659/60 in Norwalk, Connecticut; died April 14, 1740 in Ridgefield, Connecticut; married Samuel Keeler March 10, 1681/82.

4148. Henry Whitney, born Abt. 1620; died Abt. 1673 in Connecticut. He was the son of Thomas Whitney and Mary Roach. An excellent resource for information on Henry Whitney and his descendants is "The Whitney Family of Connecticut" By S. Whitney Phoenix, 1878. He was living on Long Island in 1649 when records show he was associated with Edward Redwell and Thomas Benedict in buying William Salmon's land at Hashamommock, in Southold, Long Island. While he lived at Huntington, he built a grist mill for Rev. Leverich. Apparently Leverich did not think the mill was finished on time or the way he wanted it and withheld payment. It seems that Mr. Leverich and our Henry Whitney did not get along too well since there are records of several law suits between the two eventually leading to the dismissal of Mr. Leverich from Huntington. According to Phoenix, there is evidence that he was a "frank outspoken man – once fined for speaking his mind too freely before the Court – but when a charge was true, he would acknowledge it, without waiting for proof from his opponent..." He finally resolved his differences with Mr. Leverich as indicated by a document quoted in Phoenix's book, originally provided by Mr. James Riker, of Waverly, NY:

> "Nov. 1, 1660: These presents witness that I hennery whitne of huntingon doe acknowledge that I haue receued of mr William leuerich forty pouds for the building of his mill and doe by these presents fully acquit and discharge the aboue named mr leurich his eyers exceketors and assignes from all debts sues and demands that euer haue bin betwixt him and me, from the beginning of the world to this present daye Witnes my hand HENERY WHITNEY his marke Witnes JOHN STIKLIN his marke"

The first possible mention of his wife is found in the Huntington Court Records, p. 23 June 11, 1660 where it indicates he married a widow Ketcham. It is not known for sure, but Henry's wife may have been Sarah, the widow of Edward Ketcham, of Stratford, CT.

According to the Huntington Court Records, he was a defendant in two lawsuits at Huntington in Oct. of 1660. Both suits were brought by William Ludlom, who took over the mill from Mr. Leverich. The charges had something to do with breaking into the mill to grind his own corn causing "great damage". Apparently the court did not agree with Mr. Ludlom:

> "The defendant deny the breking of the mill but confessed he opened the dore, and went and groune his corne, his family being all sick, none abell to beate, he went to inquier for the kei but coulde not her of it for he was gone to the south, and his family with himselue being like to familsh he was constrained to doe it: yet not withstanding he gaue the miller his juste towle. The vardit of the courte in this acsion is they finde the defendant was necessitated to yt he did and the plaintiff suffered no damage."

He was still in Huntington in Jan. of 1661 when he witnessed the will of Henry Scudder. After that he moved to Jamaica Long Island and before 1665 he moved to Norwalk, Connecticut where he had a lot near the mill, "on the north side of Norwalk River, and was the first lot west of Mill Brook":

> "At a towne meeitinge heild the 24th of July, 1665... Also at the sayed meeiting – whearas Henry Whitney, hath agreed and incaged with the towne to make, build, and erect a goode and sufficient grounde corne mill, and that at the mouth of nowake River by the falles, and that upon certaine conditiones which conditiones are to be fully drawen up by Tho. Ffitch Leiftentant Olmstead mstr ffenn in wrighting to be confirmede and signed by the Towne oir those they shalle depute in their behalfe which conditions weare fully agreed upon at the sayede meeiting betweene the Towne and Henry Shitney, and to be signed and confirmed by the sayed Henry Whitneye which sayed wrightings doe fullie expresse the tearmes and conditions of Both parties.

Also at the sayed meeitinge the Towne voted and grantede unto the sayed Henry Whitney a home Lott consisinge of Twoe accres the sayed Lott to be Layed out upon the mill plaine upon the right hande of the path Leadinge downe to the ould mill, being over the Run Lett 2 or three rodd from the sayed Run Lett and also from the cart way, and so the grant of the other Lott is relinquishede."

Henry Whitney and Ralp Keeler (Sec IV, #4114) were grandfathers of Samuel Keeler (Sec IV, # 2072). They appear in records with each other in the records of "A General Assembly, held at Hartford, Oct. 10th, 1667,":

"At a Towne meting in Norwalk, April 15th 1669, henery Whitne and Ralph Keeler was voted and chosen by the towne to vew the pound which John Gregory Junr and Tho Bennydicke Junr., did agree to make, and the sayd med did takea vew of it at the same time & found it to be finished according to bargin and accordingly made their report to the towne. Also at the same meting voted and agreed that henery Whitne shall have liberty to make a fence vpon the bank of the other side of the Riuer aboue the Lower cart waye for the securing of his land."

According to Phoenix: The following will was his last appearance in the Norwalk town Records. He was one of the petitioners in May of 1672 to begin a new town which would become Danbury. He died sometime in the fall of 1673.

"The Last Will and Testament of Mr. Hen. Witne of Norwocke, made the 5th of June Anno 1672, Revoking all former wills. I Henerey Whitnee being weake and crazy in body, but throwe mercy perfect in memory and vnderstanding; doe bequeath my body to the dust, and to be decently Interred; my Immortal Soul into the hands of my mercifull redeemer, with an assured hope of a Joyfull Resurrection vnto a blessed eternal life; being purchased by the pretios Blood and merits of my dear Saueour. Jennifer Ann (Sierzant) Titus
Journal and Photos

The following is the journal of my wife, Jennifer Ann Titus. She started writing it soon after she was diagnosed with breast cancer in the summer of 2003. We had no idea that she would only have four months to live when she was diagnosed. These words are inspiring and I wanted to include them in this book for my children and their children.

Following the journal entries are a handful of photographs of Jen.

July 11, 2003

My friend from St. Theresa's School, Luann, bought me this beautiful journal. It's been about 3 weeks since my diagnosis, June 18, 2003. I had no idea how many wonderful friends I have.

Leo had been in Colorado for work that week. My surgeon, Dr. Turgeon, called Leo and told him the news. It took Leo about 12 hours to get home. He woke me up around midnight. His face was pale white. I knew there was something tragic – what was the worst new? I thought oh no, he doesn't love me. He said I have cancer. My head was spinning. We'll fight it he said. I cannot explain the terror of facing your own mortality.

The next 10 days were a hellish roller coaster ride. Telling family. Telling friends. Undergoing tests. Maybe its small. It's probably local. Curable. Quick to destroy. Pet scan. Bone scan. Bone marrow biopsy. Blood work.

The cancer is advanced. Six lymph nodes show activity. There are microscopic cancer cells in your bone marrow.

Have we reached the bottom – how can we keep getting worse news? I now dread every meeting with our oncologist. What else are they going to say?

Today we went to Reston Hospital for the 4th time this year. February 13th we went for Kelley's birth. June we went for the breast mass removal. 2 weeks ago we went to the ER when I had an allergic distonic reaction to one of my anti-nausea medicines. I couldn't talk or swallow – my tongue went crazy. A shot of benedryl and I was fine.

Today we went to have my catheter port place in my chest. They forgot to tell me that when the sedative and novacaine wore off it would hurt.

Luann cooked us dinner. My St. T's friends are cooking us dinner every Tues and Wed. Our neighborhood friends are cooking us dinner every Mon and Thurs. Andy they're all providing us molly maid cleaning every other Monday, to coincide with my chemotherapy.

Jill just sent me a charm bracelet with little pictures of Leo, Laura, Allison and Kelley. It is wonderful.

I have so many loving family members. I have so many friends. I am so blessed.

My girls are so beautiful. Leo is in this 100% with me. Oh, I love them. I know I will destroy this cancer. I know I'm meant to Mrs. Jennifer Titus, mommy and woozle.

July 22, 2003

Last weekend was perfect! We took the girls to Hershey Park with Frank and Heidi. It was so much fun! The weather was perfect, the girls had fun on the rides, the food and candy was fun. We went out to Lone Star – great steak dinner and stayed overnight in adjoining rooms. We had a fun summer blast – living!! Kelley was an angel – her first overnight trip ever. Leo had a great time and loved playing skeeball and buying the girls prizes.

Today was a nice day. Laura and Allison had dentist appts in the morning. They were so well behaved. No fussing at all. Allison looked like a tiny angel in the big chair! Laura has 4 loose teeth – she's so excited!

Kelley's hair is so beautiful in the sunlight – gorgeous apricot red. She's jumping in her jump seat in the kitchen doorway. Smiley peach!

Laura and Allison played in the blowup pool on our deck this afternoon with Karley, Kathleen, Ashley and Brendon. My neighbor Carolyn is so great. She's so thoughtful and fun. My friend from St T's, Monice, made us dinner – it smells great.

July 25, 2003

Allison is so adorable. She has become a total chatterbox – it's so fun! And Laura has 4 loose teeth. She's so psyched – it's fun!

Yesterday was a wonderful day. In the morning I took the girls to Ashburn Park. Laura and Allison ran around gleefully and Kelley cooed happily in her stroller. In the afternoon Maura and the kids came over to baby-sit. It was great seeing them. Maura painted Allison's nails! I went to the doctor's and it was fine! Blood work. I do need to take a once a week shot at home to boost my red blood cells – but I am so fortunate to have my good friend and nurse Fran right next door.

I wrote an email update two days ago. The response has been inspiring – people are thinking that I am "amazing", "strong", "inspiring"… me? I'm just a normal person doing what I MUST DO – LIVE and LOVE. I feel very blessed with friends and family.

Tonight is a huge night for Leo – the passing of the baton at ECS. He's now a Vice Pres!! I'm so excited about the night and I feel so fortunate to be Mrs. Leo Titus Jr. – he's just the best!

August 22, 2003

Allison had an awesome 3rd birthday party! We were at home with 10 of her friends (Caroline, Daria, Ashley, Abbey, Karley, Holly, Evan, Kathleen, Tara) a "Strawberry Shortcake" character cake, everyone dressed up as princesses! Her smile as we sand Happy Birthday lit up the world.

Last night I went over to my neighbor Becky's house for "Moms Night Out". It's always fun to hang out with my friends (Carolyn, Fran, Sherry, Kate, Terri, Angie…). I do get momentary pangs of – I'm different, I have cancer, they don't have any idea what it's like. But God places each of us on different paths – and this is my challenge right now.

I feel awesome physically. My 2 weeks of chemo have been great. Normal mom weeks – getting ready for the girls back to school next week.

All of my neighbors say that Laura is the kindest child around. It is true. She has a gift from God. She is the kindest, most thoughtful person I know. And I get to be with her every day! Kelley started baby food this week. Oh my – she is SO cute! Strangers always comment on how beautiful she is. I call her my little apricot! She is and amazing blend of Laura and Allison. Amazing.

August 23, 2003

I think I've always (as an adult at least) done a pretty good job of being appreciative and thankful for what I've been given. At several points I've felt so thankful – I've thanked God every day. This was before and after chemo/cancer.

I am finding though that post-cancer I am much better at living in the moment. I can enjoy the day – I am not as obsessed with my "To do" list. I have learned to appreciate the wonder and fun in the everyday things. I have always been thankful for Leo and the girls. Now though, I'm able to spontaneously take more advantage of moments. A couple of weeks ago as we were leaving a store the girls asked if I had money for the quarter prize machines. In 6 years I have never let them buy those toys – on that day I did! We had fun – it was fun – no rushing to the car – we had fun.

September 5, 2003

What a beautiful day! Sunny and cool. I went shopping with Allison and Kelley. Then I took them on a walk in the neighborhood. Laura is in 1st grade – what fun!

After school we played outside with all of the neighborhood kids. Leo is getting back from Rhode Island tonight. I feel great. It's odd to have cancer yet feel good. The house is clean. The girls have been really well behaved (as usual). Kelley is just starting to crawl – she gets up on her hands and knees and rocks. What a cutie!

September 7, 2003

I took Laura and Allison to 7:30 am mass and then I taught CCD to Allison's class. What joy! How crazy! Another sunny gorgeous day!

Laura played all day with Karley and Holly. At one point, Laura Allison, Holly and Karley were chasing all of the neighborhood boys with water guns! Hilarious!

Today at mass, Father said everyone should find time to read the Bible every day. Turn off the TV, etc… Allison whipped around to me "turn off the TV?!" Hilarious – she was incredulous.

Laura's homework was a section of her religion book. It stated – say how we can thank Jesus. Laura softly spoke "Give him our hearts". Wow! She is amazing!

September 11, 2003

Yesterday was Leo's birthday. He said he had an awesome day! Laura, Allison and I "snuck" around in the morning to make a "surprise" birthday breakfast. Then Leo went with the task force to Quantico to see President Bush speak – and they shook hands. How awesome! Bush said "Titus, how are you/" Leo said "Fantastic!" At dinner we had a birthday chocolate cake.

I love Allison and Kelley's strawberry blonde eyebrows. I love Laura's chocolate chip sprinkle freckles on her nose. Allison had preschool this morning. How cute and fun! Laura has ballet/tap class tonight.

A poem written by Jen September 10, 2003:

"At Home – September 10, 2003

I hope you feel the same way,
I think you do, as me:

I love our home.
I mean this on the deepest level –
It's a powerful, comforting combination of things.

I never doubted how much I wanted to marry you to build a home with you to raise children with you to enjoy life with you.

We have created this beautiful, cozy space with our girls with our neighbors with our family with our friends with our church.

Doesn't that make you smile?"
